Yep. Just like homebuilders could keep building homes because they knew that the government would keep increasing financial aid for low income buyers.

Same pattern.

Or, we take them offshore for college, which is my remedy of choice. It also gets them off the US taxman's radar screen and in some places, get them a second passport by the time they graduate.

And you can do all that and save money too.

No, it's a little more than that, but I stopped the lavish vacations and pissing money away. I cut WAY back on my charitable contributions, all of our cars are paid off since then, just hunkering down waiting for Obama to attack...

Guess that they are starting to use "state" names for these kind of ships. Used to be reserved for battleships only.

good time to get rid of the two party system and go to parliamentary

This is not news. Democrats have been doing this on the local level for years. Melissa Bean all but flat out denied she was a Democrat to get elected to Phil Crane's seat in the 8th District.

It was on none of her literature. Not until DNC TV spots hit the air was her party affiliation even mentioned.

And that in very small type.

In KINSTON, N.C. they even voted to take all party affiliations out of the process, and off the ballot. It took Obiteme's goons to overturn the electorate claiming that black voters rights couldn't be guaranteed without the Democrat party,

Hmmmmm. Hmmmmm. Hmmmmmm.

What if it's the name of a city? They have "Los Angeles" class submarines.

The two-party system was feared by some of the Founders.

Ahhhh, you inherited your money. So you have no idea what working for a living means.

Otoh, we liberals could be stupider than you reichtards, but at least we're not arrogantly stupid. Oh wait, being arrogantly stupid logically implies ya gotta be the stupider of the two of us. No doubt that conclusion is beyond your limited capacity for thought.

Golly, what a elightened dissection of my post....you gotta be a reichtard. I base my conclusion on the quality of your counterpoint.

Just wait till he gets cancer or heart problems. His job and insurance will be gone in weeks. Then his savings will be gone in a year.

Stupid people are soon separated from their money- when they have it.

This is due to the republiCAN't policy of destroying america. They will only pass a bill that puts money in their pocket and benefits BIG corporate business at the cost of american lives.

Saving money or lives for american citizens is not on the republiCAN'T agenda

My uncle was a CPO in the Navy. Lifer.

When he retired, he said that there are few in the world who work as hard as those who work below decks.

My grandfather was an officer. And one of the things he said consistently was that an officer may make the decision to point the ship, but it's the men who work for a living that make it go.

You don't need to agree with Steve. But he, better than most of us, knows what it's like to work for a living.

He's earned his retirement.

Funny how the libtards bitched about the $248 billion deficit under Bush but applaud the $1.9 trillion deficit under Obama. If it wasent for double standards liberals would have no standards.

Being the math illiterate that you are, you're right that nothing being proposed will lower costs, they're not meant to. They're meant to lower the rate at which those costs will continue to increase. Meaning, to use a simplified explanation that you can hopefully grasp, if what's being proposed will cost $1 trillion over 10 years, then keeping things at the status quo will cost $2 trillion over the same ten years. That's what reform is about - minimizing the rate of increase.

A minute ago you were reveling in spending others money for a failed

Jesus Christ - how much time did you spend on a post that just quotes from media groups bough out by iBiquity:

"Selected radio consultants, writers, and media organization heads are hired as carporegimes who act like press flacks and indie promoters to back Ibiquity and the HD Radio Alliance. Right?"

2987. Got a visit from CBS searching on "HD Radio Long Tail"

Newsgroup: rec.radio.shortwave

From: IBOCcrock <ibocisacrock@yahoo.com> Message-ID: <90dbac54-6f41-460d-a339-6b3d33381317@g1g2000vbr.googlegroups.com>

"Addressing The Long Tail: HD2s and HD3s for Fun and Profit"

"Analog AM/FM cannot address The Long Tail. HD Radio™ technology can help. Few business concepts have gained such quick and widespread acceptance as The Long Tail, put forth by Chris Anderson of Wired... You simply cannot program niche formats on analog stations and make the numbers work... RIFF2 with its edgy Detroit flavor... Clear Channel's Pride Radio... Bonneville's iChannel... Our friends at Arbitron say that HD2s are beginning to show up in PPM data... Put HD2s and HD3s on air, keep them on... Bob Struble"

http://tinyurl.com/66jb9s

"Harvard Business Review: Should You Invest in the Long Tail?"

"Chris Anderson, editor of Wired magazine, argues that the sudden availability of niche offerings more closely tailored to their tastes will lure consumers away from homogenized hits. The 'tail' of the sales distribution curve, he says, will become longer, fatter, and more profitable. Elberse, a professor at Harvard Business School, set out to investigate whether Anderson's long-tail theory is actually playing out in today's markets. She focused on the music and home-video industries -- two markets that Anderson and others frequently hold up as examples of the long tail in action -- reviewing sales data from Nielsen SoundScan, Nielsen VideoScan, the online music service Rhapsody, and the Australian DVD-by-mail service Quickflix. What she found may surprise you: Blockbusters are capturing even more of the market than they used to, and consumers in the tail don't really like niche products much."

http://www.citeulike.org/user/mmkurth/article/2984768

The first is a post from Struble back in September 2008. If you look at the bottom of his post there is a para\graph missing. Well, what he just took out was the part about receiving email, "questioning his family background and sanity." I had that missing section quoted in my blog, so CBS must have alerted Stuble. What I did was to up the ante and clearly show that his "Long-Tailed" claims are false, adding the "Compete" webstats:

http://hdradiofarce.blogspot.com/2009/01/hd-radio-hd2shd3s_1897.html

Struble is a "Baker Scholar" and Harvard MBA Grad - don't tell me that he doesn't read the Harvard Businees Review, which also debunked his "Long-Tailed" claims. This guy is nothing but a very slick con-artist.

HD fails because it can't provide what consumers want today..

The ability to listen to what they want when they want. Any format heard on analog or HD radio is like yesterdays news. It's like listening to a strangers playlist with commercials. Besides old radio guys who wants that?

Oh sure, maybe the UK can start with their explanation of gas pipelines going through the country? We need socialist or Islamic propaganda from the UK like we do not need Al Gore.

Putting sensors in your trash cans and going around in unmarked vans filming people having sex using thermo cameras without permission is just plain wrong. Just because there are criminals out there does not mean we are all criminals. These people really T me off, they are just about demanding that we put cameras in our bedrooms so they can watch us like they are some kind of visiting alien species with nothing better to do.

Americans demonstrated the stupidity of the British elite once before, and Americans will be happy to rub their noses in the poop if they decide to ignore their potty training.

As an objective, third-party observer, I am compelled to point out your use of slang names, e. g. "limpballs" makes you appear to be on the same intellectual firmament as your opponent.

Home Equity Loan -
Understanding the Basics of Home Equity Mortgage

Home Equity Loan - Understanding the Basics of Home Equity MortgageA home equity loan or home equity mortgage is an effective second mortgage on your home, taken out after you have developed some equity in your home. For example, if you purchase a home for $200,000 and you have paid $40,000 over the years against the loan principal and the market value for the home is now $250,000, you now have equity in the home of $90,000. Theoretically, you could apply for a $90,000 loan against the equity, but in practice, most lenders prefer to keep the loan at 80% loan to value or, in this case $187,500. In this example, a loan for $27,500 could be approved.

Definitions

Some of the definitions that you will need to be familiar with include equity, mortgage, interest rate, loan fees, loan type, principal and amortization. If you don't understand the meaning of these words and others insist on an explanation from the loan broker or lender. You can also do the research yourself so that you are certain you understand the difference between an ARM and a fixed rate loan and why you should choose one or the other, depending upon your circumstances. There are some very good primer level books and classes on almost any subject you can name out on the internet including that of a home equity loan.

Terms

In the case of a home equity mortgage, the word 'terms' can mean 'words' or it can mean the length of time before the loan is paid off. A loan against the equity of your home often will have a longer term than a personal loan. You may see terms of 15 years, 20 years, even 30 or 40 year terms on the loan. Of course, the longer the term, the more money in interest you will be charged and the larger the percentage of funds you pay are for the privilege of using the money rather than for the money itself.

Rates

The home equity loan rates are also called interest rate or interest. Interest rates are usually structured in one of two ways, although there are other types of loans as well. The fixed rate loans set an interest rate up front and it remains in effect throughout the term of the loan. The adjustable rate mortgage loan has an interest rate that will vary according to a predetermined index or formula. For example the rate may be two point above prime rate, adjustable not more than twice every two years. These requirements will vary depending upon the economy of the time.

Advantages and Disadvantages

A home equity loan or home equity mortgage has the advantage of being a lump sum of money that you can use in any way you see fit--presumably legal. It has the disadvantage of increasing your debt loan and increasing the cost of money sometimes significantly. For example taking out was is actually a second mortgage on your home may raise your debt to value level to the point where private mortgage insurance is mandated by many lenders. This can add thousands of dollars to the repayment amount over the years.

3022. HD Radio - it's over - LOL!

"If you check the recent post-NAB edition of RW you'll learn there's big trouble brewing in HD-land, with pubcasters and Alliance pro-HD zealots increasingly at odds over the proposed digital power increase for FM-HD. A thoughtful, well-crafted and technically unimpeachable field study by NPR has landed with a thud, revealing that almost any digital increase over the current -20 dBc in most populous areas of the country will result in massive tuneout among the vast majority of still-analog listening due to adjacent-channel IBOC interference, particularly in the car. (NPR Engineering Chief Mike Starling dryly notes that most radio listeners do not sit immobile in their living rooms tending to meticulously maintained and installed audiophile receiving systems with sophisticated external antennae, a truism apparently lost on HD-pushers.) So there it is: NPR won't go for -10 dBc because of the interference debacle which will inevitably result. NPR won't even go for -14 dBc, the current "compromise" being batted around without enthusiasm by ANY of the parties. iBiquity meanwhile attempts the equivalent of lifting oneself by one's own shoelaces, struggling to defuse the disastrous NPR findings without undermining pubradio's critical support for HD which they desperately need. At the NAB there were reports of acrimony between pubcasters and pro-HD Alliance nuts who are evidently bitterly lumping NPR with, one supposes, Bob Savage, in the hated "HD Naysayers Club." (Starling, perhaps anticipating a looming typical HD Radio attack on his professional bona fides, has invited third party critique of NPR's findings by any reputable organization, which would certainly leave out iBiquity, CBS, Greater Media or other self-interested HD liars.) Check the NPR "HD Interference Calculator." For just about any callsign from the Northeast region you enter you get the same result: -20 dBc is the max. Very occasionally you'll encounter a -18 dBc or a -16 dBc, whoopdee doo, in terms of enhanced digital coverage. Can a public attack on Starling or NPR by "Guy Wire" be far behind?? Of course, the kicker is: -10 dBc won't improve anything much, even if it were attempted. Ask any sentient broadcast engineer. And virtually nobody's going to indulge in six-figure rebuilds of transmitter sites and double their utility costs just to implement an HD digital power hike. Footnote: manufacture of HD-AM capable receivers has just about ceased. All the new HD products, like the portables, are FM only. It's over. NEXT!"

Doug Hoffman won the Election (in my opinion)!

If a Democrat had lost in a fashion where over 5 percent of the vote went to someone that had dropped out the race, the Justice Department would be getting an ear full about the need for re-run? In my opinion, Mr. Hoffman would have gotten those votes if Mrs. Scozzafava had not been on the ballet. Dropping out of the race only two days before the election is enough to confuse voters who do not keep up to date with daily events.

So to watch Mr. Axlerod claim the race was some kind of microcosm for the country only proves just how desperate these people in charge are willing to go to lie straight to our faces about the facts on the ground. They understand what is going on and what happened, but choose to try to paint a picture that alters the appearance of what happened. Other positions in New York State that were up for election went to Republicans, so it is very deceptive to claim this race was some kind of microcosm, unless you like watching soap operas.

But what really burned me up today was listening to Mr. Gingrich explain his actions regarding this race. Many of us are volunteering our time and energy behind the scenes to lend our support to the rise of Conservatism that does not exclude other people. The simple facts of the matter are that the ambitious plans of the left are imploding their political party, and the Republicans do not have to gear themselves to be more like them, we can simply paint a picture over time that accurately describes what their policies are, and why they will fail.

That might not sit well with politicians that may like Mr. Gingrich, who think that politics is a code word for an alternative economy which is a never ending process of the looting of tax payers. I'll give Mr. Gingrich the benefit of the doubt regarding the spur of the moment vacancy of the position, but Mr. Obama may have done the Republican Party the greatest favor that it has done thus far, expose Newt Gingrich for the obstacle to the good of the country that many of us are beginning to realize that he is. If he did not select the candidate, or could not imagine himself doing so, he had no real business lending an endorsement in my opinion.

This is why the Republicans are out of power, because people like Newt Gingrich convince people that Republican Liberals are necessary to the party, when in fact all most of us can remember is that Congress was in grid lock more often than not. The United States simply can not afford to play such kind of juvenile games when we have the Chinese citizens wanting to emulate Democracy represented by Conservatism, or other countries that will look at the foolish spending habits of liberals and declare the kind of Democracy that the United States represents is neither welcome, or easy to replicate.

And the reason that I am so furious with Newt Gingrich is that he makes these audacious conclusions without any discovery of the candidates that are running next year for office or their citizens, he is just making the assumptions? Many business leaders, scientists, and other educated citizens are dropping what they are doing to bring about the complete power of the media to expose why these North Eastern states are suffering, and how the Democrats are using mental warfare games to not make our lives better, but to win elections?

But it doesn't stop there does it? What do you call examining large corporations in order to possibly break them up to pose less risk to the financial sector? I read that today in the local non-neutral newspaper, who did not seem to mind that such concepts violate the 5th Amendment? It took decades to build Walmart, and you want to give some elected officials who only hold office for a few years at most a say in their future, and the future of the employees or investors (who lately have been told tough luck, you loose?), all in the name of ignoring bankruptcy laws?

We are not talking about protecting helpless old people, but the actual rebuilding of American society into a tyrannical structure that will regulate your every thought and action?

Guess what Newt? You want me to go knocking door to door, don't expect me to explain how our moderate liberal will be the radical left liberal, even though a moderate liberal will infuriate the international community or the interests of the United States overseas. This is bigger than Newt Gingrich, and Newt Gingrich had his opportunity to make the fine adjustments. Those adjustments did not work, and Democracy means we give the best qualified candidates the opportunity to crush the egg shell minds of liberals that resort to deception in order to further their agenda. Mr. Obama did a lot of painting and a lot of money was spent, to no avail in New Jersey and Virginia.

Let me be clear Mr. Gingrich, if you expect to change the minds of liberals in power now, from turning away from dumb decisions, you don't offer the position of dumber version 1.2. I sincerely hold that belief, that people in power are sometimes there because they do actually change their minds and positions when God moves them that way. And I believe we send mixed messages by trying to endorse candidates that hold similar views, there is no incentive to change your mind, you only think that deep down inside, Newt Gingrich validates your ideas and opinions. Which makes me wonder, why is he trying to influence the Republican Party, if deep down he is a Democrat?

I picked up an old (big tubes) Echophone and there is no model number. There is one cap dangling on the bottom and it has six tubes, plus it is a transformerless design (which I hate) with 130 ohms from chassis to the plug terminal, both if I turn on the power switch. It is a 3 bander with .55 to 2 MHz, 2 to 8 MHz, and 8 to 30 MHz with a bandspread dial across the bottom. I found a few sites that have schematics if I have the model number but I need a picture ID site if one exists or maybe someone here can ID it by description. This is going to be repair week since my restored Sears-Silvertone console needs work too, plays fine for about 10 minutes then fades out on AM, completely. No smoke but no sound either. Add a 27" TV and it gets busy.
Not to beat it to death but if anyone knows about this radio it would be a big help.
Thanks,
Bill Baka

Freeze property tax rates, no raising of tax rates from the original purchase price of the house or commercial property (until it is resold).

Big city politicians frequently trample over citizen rights by raising appraisal values, instead of controlling spending, and frequently force people into the real estate market or into foreclosure, especially when citizens can not get pay raises.

Rising property values are pointless when the property is not sold, and that is a problem of REAL GREED in America? AND you won't get all these kooky ideas to help millions of Americans that do NOT want to work based on imaginary money, but real value?

Now there is a proposal I can really get behind. Tax property on what is actually PAID for it, not what some pencil pusher says it should be worth, since the property owner isn't getting any more use out of the property than he did when it was bought, major improvements notwithstanding, of course.

I don't think he did. Overstepped what this stick up the ass society thinks is normal maybe, but not a molester. You want molesters, go to Saudi Arabia where some old gray fart married an 8 year old, which is legal under Muslim law where women are property. International outrage made the Saudis cancel the marriage. He claimed he wouldn't have sex with her until she entered puberty. Right, at about 11 years old. Damned rag headed perverts.

Duh!

Bill Baka (6 blond girl friends from 11 to 19 years old).
Note the space, friends, that's all.
Not that way, just that my hiking and biking little kid accomplices are growing up and getting bumpies in the front. I never did anything out of the way but other adults (the stick up the ass crowd) always looked at me funny. Now they seek me out for boyfriend advice and even one 14 year old came by and was bragging about her sex life. 14! She popped out a box of rubbers and asked my opinion, which was "No way, Katie.".
Kids around here in California seem to be having a contest to lose their virginity as soon as possible. I don't know how it is in the Midwest but here is crazy. I've seen pregnant 13 year olds (East Indian) and that appears to be part of their culture.

I don't know what's up with them but it seems they should obey our laws and not claim it is their custom. It sure isn't our custom.

Weird world.

Obama been in office for 9 or 10 MONTHS.

They are "his" wars only in that he INHERITED them from Bush.

BUSH started both wars and they dragged on for EIGHT YEARS.

How odd, sad and hypocritical of you that we didn't hear you asking your questions above any time at all during the last EIGHT YEARS. It's a damn shame you weren't worried about the "boys and girls" back then.

- Democrat Controlled US Senate Disrespect
- All Working Americans by Cutting-Off Their

US Senate Finally Acts to 'Extend' Aid for Jobless Americans by just 20 Weeks : Short 'Changing' Hard Working Un-Employed Americans Again.
http://www.voanews.com/english/2009-11-05-voa2.cfm

Point-of-Fact : Many Americans have Paid into their States Un-Employment {Insurance} Programs for 5-10-15-20 and 25 Years or more and the US
Senate only wants to pay-them-back with 20 Weeks

Way To Go Harry Reid and the Democrat Controlled US Senate paying back a few Dollars to Millions of American Workers while taking their Tax Money and Giving Billions to Wall Street 'Special Interests'.

Way To Go Prez Obama Short "Change"ing Millions of American Workers while taking their Tax Money and Giving Billions to the Wall Street 'Friends' of the Obama-Regime©.

Reality Check we are still in a Recession {It Ain't Over Yet} and have continue to have very High Un-Employment that may go on for Years : So the US Joblessness Benefits should be 'Extended' for One Year {all of 2010} for anyone that has held a Job for a Total of 36 Months or more in the last 5 Years.

Plus -imho- everyone who is presently Un-Employed should have their Home Mortgage Payments
'Suspended' for the time that they are Un-Employed.

The US Senate has done little {next to nothing} $60B to HELP Hard Working American Tax Payers who are presently Un-Employed -while- Gifting Wall Street with $700B in Bail-Outs to Millionaires.
WAY TO GO HARRY REID !
WAY TO GO DEMOCRAT CONTROLLED US SENATE !
WAY TO GO NANCY PELOSI !
WAY TO GO DEMOCRAT CONTROLLED US HOUSE !
WAY TO GO DEMOCRATS !

No doubt Brett, that's kind of how I feel about him. If for anything else I find his writing/BS absolutely fascinating. Loved those links, I liked the "awards" link...lol...took a few seconds for me to comprende.....then I about busted out laughing.

In all seriousness, does anyone know where his abode is now?

It makes for some pretty enjoyable (IMO) reading for when you're bored to just read his posts. The one girl in the cooking/food group (another bust) asked Steve for his recipe (forget what it was for) that he said (If I remember right) that he had in a cookbook....lol.

3066. Health care does not affect the economy

What people spend on health care has nothing to do with the job market. You can spend more on health care and get better results, that has nothing to do with your "global financial competition", minimum wage, or union actions.

These discussions are all about the deceptive use of the media to gain power. If the environmental "green movement" was that sincere, there would be no talk about world currencies or government since it actually harms the environment (if you literally believed their science, which I do not) to transport all these "competitive, cheap goods" all over the world.

There would be no talk of "net neutrality" when google searches or simply using the internet for a period of time are proven to waste as much energy as boiling a cup of water, or what ever it is they claim. If you can't buy a stack of compact discs to record your data, then what good is free internet?

People that can not afford internet access do not have the financial skills to use the internet appropriately, and net neutrality advocates point to the opportunity of lead programs that are really education centers, not internet access points. Training programs do not have to operate on the internet, and most job applications involve showing up, filling out a form, and having a contact number, employers to not have time to interact on the internet with potential employees.

Net neutrality's abuse potential outweighs its benefit, by giving the government the eventual control of personal communications and the freedoms privacy that represents.

h) It is the opinion of the author that effective 1 December, 2009, the proposed regulations from the FTC violate the first and fifth amendments of the United States Constitution, by infringing through economic affliction the burden without compensation all financial details concerning the communications of both free enterprise and opinion, and other civil rights such as "punishment must be fair" and not at the "discretion" of public officials, or that advertisers are assumed to be guilty of deception when United States law provides that you are innocent before being proven guilty, and are in fact demonstrations that there are current members of Congress that neither understand the spirit of the law our founding fathers made for the United States of America, or understand how they work in the opinion of the author, as of October 10th, 2009, especially in light of anticipated, and hopefully defeated, legislative taxes relating to energy use and the burden of publishers and advertisers to comply with the law and manage the environment, and in light that there are various consumer protection agencies, including the Better Business Bureau, which have free consumer information.

i)Although the content provided meets or exceeds those new requirements to the knowledge of the author, and modifications to version 1.3 of this disclaimer is a result of the opinion of the author that blogging is another definition for a potentially infinite number or forms of electronic communication, as such the author will retroactively apply this version, 1.4 to all forms of previous communications, when and wherever possible, as time allows, in order to properly convey the intention of the author and to demonstrate an enthusiasm to comply with the law, and not enthusiastically pursue getting high on cocaine as often as possible as Barack Hussein Obama has admitted in his book (paraphrase, synopsis), according to (mmm, mmm, mmm (sonic emphasis)) Rush Hudson Limbaugh, (mmm mmm mmm (sonic emphasis)).

j) Use of this disclaimer for either personal or professional use is permitted with no restrictions. These restrictions or disclaimers do not prohibit the author from pursuing or communicating in a truthful manner, or guarantee that the audience will understand all things as intended, and, or result in being called incoherent, or even a Chicken Chaser!

Mr. Obama's campaign manager is a poor liar in this regard, of just young and dumb?

Opportunity for the Obama administration is fading quickly to do the right thing, and when Americans get hungry, their eyes open.

Maybe yes, maybe no.

3070. ObaMa0-Pelosi to Health Insurers: Shut Up or We'll Shut You Down

President Obama, House Speaker Nancy Pelosi, and their Democratic followers in Congress have a rather draconian message for the private sector: Speak now, and we'll make you forever hold your peace.

Up until a few weeks ago, America's health insurers were sheepishly on board with the Obama-Pelosi health care reform plan. Perhaps the industry feared that voicing any concern about the plan would unleash the ire of an increasingly rabid Democratic majority on Capitol Hill. As it turns out, the health insurers were right.

No longer able to sit idly by while the President and his chief minion in the House amateurishly try to revamp one-sixth of the U.S. economy, the health insurance industry released a study they commissioned that analyzes the costs of the Obama-Pelosi plan. The results are quite sobering. The study shows that "between 2010 and 2019 the cumulative increases in the cost of a typical family policy under this reform proposal will be approximately $20,700 more than it would be under the current system." (Emphasis mine.)

Rather than challenge the study's results on merit, Obama and Pelosi wasted no time demonizing the health insurance industry with hyperbole and rhetoric. And then Pelosi lowered the boom, expressing "tremendous interest" in revoking the industry's decades-old antitrust exemption. This proved to be no empty threat, as the Democrat-run House Judiciary Committee promptly passed a bill to do exactly that.

The health insurance industry has pulled out the lie machine, going 7x24 to the tune of billions of dollars. You can't believe anything you hear from them. Follow the money. They want to kill this no matter what. They don't care who dies. They like that part.

There are a number of regions in Cook, Lake and DuPage counties, Illinois, where home values have gone up. My own went down from the peak in 2007. The YL's place in Buffalo Grove went up.

Interesting to note, however, that both locations are currently higher than they were in 2005.

There's a lot of generalizing, in all these discussions. The truth is, that not everyone's property values have dropped. Some are higher, now, than they were at the previous peak. Few, to be sure.
But it is happening.

The general result is that scheduled tax reassessments have been delayed in areas where there has been dramatic value loss, but reassessments have been accelerated in areas where there has been value increase to cash in on increased revenue stream.

Rule of thumb: the government will never do with less. Whether you do or not.

President Obama, House Speaker Nancy Pelosi, and their Democratic followers in Congress have a rather draconian message for the private sector: Speak now, and we'll make you forever hold your peace.

Up until a few weeks ago, America's health insurers were sheepishly on board with the Obama-Pelosi health care reform plan. Perhaps the industry feared that voicing any concern about the plan would unleash the ire of an increasingly rabid Democratic majority on Capitol Hill. As it turns out, the health insurers were right.

No longer able to sit idly by while the President and his chief minion in the House amateurishly try to revamp one-sixth of the U.S. economy, the health insurance industry released a study they commissioned that analyzes the costs of the Obama-Pelosi plan. The results are quite sobering. The study shows that "between 2010 and 2019 the cumulative increases in the cost of a typical family policy under this reform proposal will be approximately $20,700 more than it would be under the current system." (Emphasis mine.)

Rather than challenge the study's results on merit, Obama and Pelosi wasted no time demonizing the health insurance industry with hyperbole and rhetoric. And then Pelosi lowered the boom, expressing "tremendous interest" in revoking the industry's decades-old antitrust exemption. This proved to be no empty threat, as the Democrat-run House Judiciary Committee promptly passed a bill to do exactly that.

That's interesting, and good for you. In S. Florida, we have it among the worst in the country. My home is still worth twice what I paid for it in '99.

Right? After the peak of the housing boom down here, we're wondering all the money went when taxes were high and why the Town couldn't go back to the budgets prior to 2005.

There's a lesson to be learned here with all of these expensive programs this administration is throwing out there. The taxes will go up and it will be hard to bring them back down.

"AM, and How! Not All Stations on the Senior Band Are Struggling"

"Arbitron ratings from some of the largest markets in the United States reveal that some AM radio stations in the largest markets are very highly rated. Financial data from BIA/Kelsey, a financial and strategic advisory service, suggest that some are very profitable, too.Similarly, the same can be said for some small- and medium-market AMs, where local high school sports and agricultural news bring in a lot of local ad dollars... WGN, which he said turned off its HD Radio earlier this year because of concerns it was causing interference, broadcasts the Chicago Cubs and Chicago Blackhawks, further identifying with this sports crazy city, Langmyer said. We cume a million listeners. This is an AM market if there ever was one. There are a lot of great AM stations here and they drive a lot of people to the AM dial."

Also, how about Contract "With" America, not "For". What if people don't like what someone else thinks it is "for"!
Of course, to be a contract, both parties must agree, and usually give up certain things to compromise.

Yet most of the talk going on here seems to be completely unrelated to short wave radio and much more about right wing politics. If I wanted to hear about how Obama is Marx re-incarnate or how Sarah Palin is the second coming of Christ, I wouldn't be reading this newsgroup, I'd be watching Fox News. Seriously. What's up with all the politics?

Here in Florida, people are still paying taxes on the "inflated" rates during the "boom" years. This place is lousy with For Sale signs, Foreclosure Signs, and overgrown yards where people just walked away.

If spending is constant and all assessed property went down 10%, the mil rate will go up 10% because it's determined by dividing the amount they're spending by the total assessed value of all property on the tax roll.

To reduce taxes, you need to cut spending or you need new development that doesn't include many school kids. (Around here a house that sells for $800,000 is assessed at $560,000 and won't generate enough property tax to pay for one student in school)

Most of a town or city budget is for payroll and benefits for union workers. Those are very hard expenses to control because of binding arbitration. As a result, you need to be aggressive about controlling spending in every line item you can. It also pays to look at the long haul because sometimes spending a little extra money now will save you a bunch of money down the road.

In my city, our mil rate is 18.61 - well below surrounding towns, and we provide services like trash collection that other area towns don't include. Fiscally conservative Republicans have dominated our government for 18 years.

If you're involved in your local government or are contemplating getting involved, I can suggest some ideas that have helped us the most. (email me direct)

Uh, no, Prop 13 was introduced -and the campaign paid for- largely by big business; who collectively designed it to take a huge chunk of the property-tax burden off of their shoulders and shift it onto those of California's middle-class wage-earners.

Here's how it works: Under prop 13, property tax assessments may not be raised from the level they were at when 13 passed, but this only applies to the folks (and corporations) who happened to already own their property at that time. Anyone buying a new home, or buying one that has been previously owned, is taxed at the present-day rates, and their taxes are not frozen: they can be -and are- reassessed regularly.

This means that the longer you've owned your property, the lower your tax rates are as compared to those who've bought real-estate since 1978. And since nearly all homeowner-owned property has changed hands one or more times since '78, comparatively few middle-class homes are still being taxed at the low original rates, while the really huge (and far more valuable) tracts of land owned by big agribusiness and corporations such as the railroads are still paying taxes at the 1978 rate, and their taxes will never go up.

So, since the property taxes of big businesses have essentially been frozen ever since 1978, the middle-class new home buyer has assumed more and more of the property tax burden as time has gone by, and will assume even more of it in the future if nothing changes.

This is not exactly what you'd call a tax system designed to spread the load equally, and help middle America.

I have to agree with you. I was somewhat guilty of it before the election because I was tired of hearing all the Bush Whacking going on for years.

Of course I knew Obama was going to win and throughout his entire term everything was STILL going to be blamed on Bush.

I'm pretty much out of the politics talk unless it is

Well, the very right-wing, very Republican Wall Street Journal said the current Depression began in 4Q '07/1Q '08, clearly on Bush's watch. Even if you assume that the Depression didn't just happen overnight, but took 3-4-5-6 years to develop, that still is clearly on Bush's watch.

Also, Bush started both the Afghan and Iraq wars.

Obama, in his few months on the job only INHERITED the Depression and the two wars from Bush...so, yes, we DO blame Bush.

This was a terrorist act by a soldier turned into a traitor, who has oddly enough timed this so that the media could possibly saturate their media coverage with this story, instead of the story regarding a march on Washington today by several thousands of citizens? Mr. Obama wasted no time taking advantage of this media event that could possibly distract from the political protest of a planned health care vote?

The best thing that should occur, is that the media not cover this event until Monday, out of respect for what these soldiers stand for, because if this was an act of terrorism geared to helping Mr. Obama push through legislation that will destroy the political fabric of America, the media should not give that traitor a hand? Will the FBI make a connection to any political organizations in the US that will assume the FBI will not look that hard at them, after all, this was obviously a foreigner?

The Clinton administration has turned the Community Reinvestment Act, a once-obscure and lightly enforced banking regulation law, into one of the most powerful mandates shaping American cities—and, as Senate Banking Committee chairman Phil Gramm memorably put it, a vast extortion scheme against the nation's banks. Under its provisions, U.S. banks have committed nearly $1 trillion for inner-city and low-income mortgages and real estate development projects, most of it funneled through a nationwide network of left-wing community groups, intent, in some cases, on teaching their low-income clients that the financial system is their enemy and, implicitly, that government, rather than their own striving, is the key to their well-being.

The CRA's premise sounds unassailable: helping the poor buy and keep homes will stabilize and rebuild city neighborhoods. As enforced today, though, the law portends just the opposite, threatening to undermine the efforts of the upwardly mobile poor by saddling them with neighbors more than usually likely to depress property values by not maintaining their homes adequately or by losing them to foreclosure. The CRA's logic also helps to ensure that inner-city neighborhoods stay poor by discouraging the kinds of investment that might make them better off.

The Act, which Jimmy Carter signed in 1977, grew out of the complaint that urban banks were "redlining" inner-city neighborhoods, refusing to lend to their residents while using their deposits to finance suburban expansion. CRA decreed that banks have "an affirmative obligation" to meet the credit needs of the communities in which they are chartered, and that federal banking regulators should assess how well they do that when considering their requests to merge or to open branches. Implicit in the bill's rationale was a belief that CRA was needed to counter racial discrimination in lending, an assumption that later seemed to gain support from a widely publicized 1990 Federal Reserve Bank of Boston finding that blacks and Hispanics suffered higher mortgage-denial rates than whites, even at similar income levels.

In addition, the Act's backers claimed, CRA would be profitable for banks. They just needed a push from the law to learn how to identify profitable inner-city lending opportunities. Going one step further, the Treasury Department recently asserted that banks that do figure out ways to reach inner-city borrowers might not be able to stop competitors from using similar methods—and therefore would not undertake such marketing in the first place without a push from Washington.

None of these justifications holds up, however, because of the changes that reshaped America's banking industry in the 1990s. Banking in the 1970s, when CRA was passed, was a highly regulated industry in which small, local savings banks, rather than commercial banks, provided most home mortgages. Regulation prohibited savings banks from branching across state lines and sometimes even limited branching within states, inhibiting competition, the most powerful defense against discrimination. With such regulatory protection, savings banks could make a comfortable profit without doing the hard work of finding out which inner-city neighborhoods and borrowers were good risks and which were not. Savings banks also had reason to worry that if they charged inner-city borrowers a higher rate of interest to balance the additional risk of such lending, they might jeopardize the protection from competition they enjoyed. Thanks to these artificially created conditions, some redlining of creditworthy borrowers doubtless occurred.

The insular world of the savings banks collapsed in the early nineties, however, the moment it was exposed to competition. Banking today is a far more wide-open industry, with banks offering mortgages through the Internet, where they compete hotly with aggressive online mortgage companies. Standardized, computer-based scoring systems now rate the creditworthiness of applicants, and the giant, government-chartered Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac have helped create huge pools of credit by purchasing mortgage loans and packaging large numbers of them together into securities for sale to bond buyers. With such intense competition for profits and so much money available to lend, it's hard to imagine that banks couldn't instantly figure out how to market to minorities or would resist such efforts for fear of inspiring imitators. Nor has the race discrimination argument for CRA held up. A September 1999 study by Freddie Mac, for instance, confirmed what previous Federal Reserve and Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation studies had found: that African-Americans have disproportionate levels of credit problems, which explains why they have a harder time qualifying for mortgage money. As Freddie Mac found, blacks with incomes of $65,000 to $75,000 a year have on average worse credit records than whites making under $25,000.

The Federal Reserve Bank of Dallas had it right when it said—in a paper pointedly entitled "Red Lining or Red Herring?"—"the CRA may not be needed in today's financial environment to ensure all segments of our economy enjoy access to credit." True, some households—those with a history of credit problems, for instance, or those buying homes in neighborhoods where re-selling them might be difficult—may not qualify for loans at all, and some may have to pay higher interest rates, in reflection of higher risk. But higher rates in such situations are balanced by lower house prices. This is not a conspiracy against the poor; it's how markets measure risk and work to make credit available.

Nevertheless, until recently, the CRA didn't matter all that much. During the seventies and eighties, CRA enforcement was perfunctory. Regulators asked banks to demonstrate that they were trying to reach their entire "assessment area" by advertising in minority-oriented newspapers or by sending their executives to serve on the boards of local community groups. The Clinton administration changed this state of affairs dramatically. Ignoring the sweeping transformation of the banking industry since the CRA was passed, the Clinton Treasury Department's 1995 regulations made getting a satisfactory CRA rating much harder. The new regulations de-emphasized subjective assessment measures in favor of strictly numerical ones. Bank examiners would use federal home-loan data, broken down by neighborhood, income group, and race, to rate banks on performance. There would be no more A's for effort. Only results—specific loans, specific levels of service—would count. Where and to whom have home loans been made? Have banks invested in all neighborhoods within their assessment area? Do they operate branches in those neighborhoods?

Crucially, the new CRA regulations also instructed bank examiners to take into account how well banks responded to complaints. The old CRA evaluation process had allowed advocacy groups a chance to express their views on individual banks, and publicly available data on the lending patterns of individual banks allowed activist groups to target institutions considered vulnerable to protest. But for advocacy groups that were in the complaint business, the Clinton administration regulations offered a formal invitation. The National Community Reinvestment Coalition—a foundation-funded umbrella group for community activist groups that profit from the CRA—issued a clarion call to its members in a leaflet entitled "The New CRA Regulations: How Community Groups Can Get Involved." "Timely comments," the NCRC observed with a certain understatement, "can have a strong influence on a bank's CRA rating."

The Clinton administration's get-tough regulatory regime mattered so crucially because bank deregulation had set off a wave of mega-mergers, including the acquisition of the Bank of America by NationsBank, BankBoston by Fleet Financial, and Bankers Trust by Deutsche Bank. Regulatory approval of such mergers depended, in part, on positive CRA ratings. "To avoid the possibility of a denied or delayed application," advises the NCRC in its deadpan tone, "lending institutions have an incentive to make formal agreements with community organizations." By intervening—even just threatening to intervene—in the CRA review process, left-wing nonprofit groups have been able to gain control over eye-popping pools of bank capital, which they in turn parcel out to individual low-income mortgage seekers. A radical group called ACORN Housing has a $760 million commitment from the Bank of New York; the Boston-based Neighborhood Assistance Corporation of America has a $3-billion agreement with the Bank of America; a coalition of groups headed by New Jersey Citizen Action has a five-year, $13-billion agreement with First Union Corporation. Similar deals operate in almost every major U.S. city. Observes Tom Callahan, executive director of the Massachusetts Affordable Housing Alliance, which has $220 million in bank mortgage money to parcel out, "CRA is the backbone of everything we do."

In addition to providing the nonprofits with mortgage money to disburse, CRA allows those organizations to collect a fee from the banks for their services in marketing the loans. The Senate Banking Committee has estimated that, as a result of CRA, $9.5 billion so far has gone to pay for services and salaries of the nonprofit groups involved. To deal with such groups and to produce CRA compliance data for regulators, banks routinely establish separate CRA departments. A CRA consultant industry has sprung up to assist them. New financial-services firms offer to help banks that think they have a CRA problem make quick "investments" in packaged portfolios of CRA loans to get into compliance.

The result of all this activity, argues the CEO of one midsize bank, is that "banks are promising to make loans they would have made anyway, with some extra aggressiveness on risky mortgages thrown in." Many bankers—and even some CRA advocates—share his view. As one Fed economist puts it, the assertion that CRA was needed to force banks to see profitable lending opportunities is "like saying you need the rooster to tell the sun to come up. It was going to happen anyway." And indeed, a survey of the lending policies of Chicago-area mortgage companies by a CRA-connected community group, the Woodstock Institute, found "a tendency to lend in a wide variety of neighborhoods"—even though the CRA doesn't apply to such lenders.

If loans that win banks good CRA ratings were going to be made anyway, and if most of those loans are profitable, should CRA, even if redundant, bother anyone? Yes: because the CRA funnels billions of investment dollars through groups that understand protest and political advocacy but not marketing or finance. This amateur delivery system for investment capital already shows signs that it may be going about its business unwisely. And a quiet change in CRA's mission—so that it no longer directs credit only to specific places, as Congress mandated, but also to low- and moderate-income home buyers, wherever they buy their property—greatly extends the area where these groups can cause damage.

There is no more important player in the CRA-inspired mortgage industry than the Boston-based Neighborhood Assistance Corporation of America. Chief executive Bruce Marks has set out to become the Wal-Mart of home mortgages for lower-income households. Using churches and radio advertising to reach borrowers, he has made NACA a brand name nationwide, with offices in 21 states, and he plans to double that number within a year. With "delegated underwriting authority" from the banks, NACA itself—not the banks—determines whether a mortgage applicant is qualified, and it closes sales right in its own offices. It expects to close 5,000 mortgages next year, earning a $2,000 origination fee on each. Its annual budget exceeds $10 million.

Marks, a Scarsdale native, NYU MBA, and former Federal Reserve employee, unabashedly calls himself a "bank terrorist"—his public relations spokesman laughingly refers to him as "the shark, the predator," and the NACA newspaper is named the Avenger. They're not kidding: bankers so fear the tactically brilliant Marks for his ability to disrupt annual meetings and even target bank executives' homes that they often call him to make deals before they announce any plans that will put them in CRA's crosshairs. A $3 billion loan commitment by Nationsbank, for instance, well in advance of its announced merger with Bank of America, "was a preventive strike," says one NACA spokesman.

Marks is unhesitatingly candid about his intent to use NACA to promote an activist, left-wing political agenda. NACA loan applicants must attend a workshop that celebrates—to the accompaniment of gospel music—the protests that have helped the group win its bank lending agreements. If applicants do buy a home through NACA, they must pledge to assist the organization in five "actions" annually—anything from making phone calls to full-scale "mobilizations" against target banks, "mau-mauing" them, as sixties' radicals used to call it. "NACA believes in aggressive grassroots advocacy," says its Homebuyer's Workbook.

The NACA policy agenda embraces the whole universe of financial institutions. It advocates tough federal usury laws, restrictions on the information that banks can provide to credit-rating services, financial sanctions against banks with poor CRA ratings even if they're not about to merge or branch, and the extension of CRA requirements to insurance companies and other financial institutions. But Marks's political agenda reaches far beyond finance. He wants, he says, to do whatever he can to ensure that "working people have good jobs at good wages." The home mortgage business is his tool for political organizing: the Homebuyer's Workbook contains a voter registration application and states that "NACA's mission of neighborhood stabilization is based on participation in the political process. To participate you must register to vote." Marks plans to install a high-capacity phone system that can forward hundreds of calls to congressional offices—"or Phil Gramm's house"—to buttress NACA campaigns. The combination of an army of "volunteers" and a voter registration drive portends (though there is no evidence of this so far) that someday CRA-related funds and Marks's troop of CRA borrowers might end up fueling a host of Democratic candidacies. During the Reagan years, the Right used to talk of cutting off the flow of federal funds to left-liberal groups, a goal called "defunding the Left"; through the CRA, the Clinton administration has found a highly effective way of doing exactly the opposite, funneling millions to NACA or to outfits like ACORN, which advocates a nationalized health-care system, "people before profits at the utilities," and a tax code based "solely on the ability to pay."

Whatever his long-term political goals, Marks may well reshape urban and suburban neighborhoods because of the terms on which NACA qualifies prospective home buyers. While most CRA-supported borrowers would doubtless find loans in today's competitive mortgage industry, a small percentage would not, and NACA welcomes such buyers with open arms. "Our job," says Marks, "is to push the envelope." Accordingly, he gladly lends to people with less than $3,000 in savings, or with checkered credit histories or significant debt. Many of his borrowers are single-parent heads of household. Such borrowers are, Marks believes, fundamentally oppressed and at permanent disadvantage, and therefore society must adjust its rules for them. Hence, NACA's most crucial policy decision: it requires no down payments whatsoever from its borrowers. A down-payment requirement, based on concern as to whether a borrower can make payments, is—when applied to low-income minority buyers—"patronizing and almost racist," Marks says.

This policy—"America's best mortgage program for working people," NACA calls it—is an experiment with extraordinarily high risks. There is no surer way to destabilize a neighborhood than for its new generation of home buyers to lack the means to pay their mortgages—which is likely to be the case for a significant percentage of those granted a no-down-payment mortgage based on their low-income classification rather than their good credit history. Even if such buyers do not lose their homes, they are a group more likely to defer maintenance on their properties, creating the problems that lead to streets going bad and neighborhoods going downhill. Stable or increasing property values grow out of the efforts of many; one unpainted house, one sagging porch, one abandoned property is a threat to the work of dozens, because such signs of neglect discourage prospective buyers.

A no-down-payment policy reflects a belief that poor families should qualify for home ownership because they are poor, in contrast to the reality that some poor families are prepared to make the sacrifices necessary to own property, and some are not. Keeping their distance from those unable to save money is a crucial means by which upwardly mobile, self-sacrificing people establish and maintain the value of the homes they buy. If we empower those with bad habits, or those who have made bad decisions, to follow those with good habits to better neighborhoods—thanks to CRA's new emphasis on lending to low-income borrowers no matter where they buy their homes—those neighborhoods will not remain better for long.

Because many of the activists' big-money deals with the banks are so new, no one knows for sure exactly which neighborhoods the community groups are flooding with CRA-related mortgages and what effect they are having on those neighborhoods. But some suggestive early returns are available from Massachusetts, where CRA-related advocacy has flourished for more than a decade. A study for a consortium of banks and community groups found that during the 1990s home purchases financed by nonprofit lenders have overwhelmingly not been in the inner-city areas where redlining had been suspected. Instead, 41 percent of all the loans went to the lower-middle-class neighborhoods of Hyde Park, Roslindale, and Dorchester Center/Codman Square—Boston's equivalent of New York's borough of Queens—and additional loans went to borrowers moving to the suburbs. In other words, CRA lending appears to be helping borrowers move out of inner-city neighborhoods into better-off areas. Similarly, not-yet-published data from the state-funded Massachusetts Housing Partnership show that many new Dorchester Center, Roslindale, and Hyde Park home buyers came from much poorer parts of the city, such as the Roxbury ghetto. Florence Higgins, a home-ownership counsellor for the Massachusetts Affordable Housing Alliance, confirms the trend, noting that many buyers she counsels lived in subsidized rental apartments prior to buying their homes.

This CRA-facilitated migration makes the mortgage terms of groups like NACA particularly troubling. In a September 1999 story, the Wall Street Journal reported, based on a review of court documents by Boston real estate analyst John Anderson, that the Fleet Bank initiated foreclosure proceedings against 4 percent of loans made for Fleet by NACA in 1994 and 1995—a rate four times the industry average. Overextended buyers don't always get much help from their nonprofit intermediaries, either: Boston radio station WBUR reported in July that home buyers in danger of losing their homes had trouble getting their phone calls returned by the ACORN Housing group.

NACA frankly admits that it is willing to run these risks. It emphasizes the virtues of the counselling programs it offers (like all CRA groups) to prepare its typical buyer—"a hotel worker with an income of $25K and probably some past credit problems," says a NACA spokesman—and it operates what it calls a "neighborhood stabilization fund" on which buyers who fall behind on payments can draw. But Bruce Marks says that he would consider a low foreclosure rate to be a problem. "If we had a foreclosure rate of 1 percent, that would just prove we were skimming," he says. Accordingly, in mid-1999, 8.2 percent of the mortgages NACA had arranged with the Fleet Bank were delinquent, compared with the national average of 1.9 percent. "Considering our clientele," Marks asserts, "nine out of ten would have to be considered a success."

The no-down-payment policy has sparked so sharp a division within the CRA industry that the National Community Reinvestment Coalition has expelled Bruce Marks and NACA from its ranks over it. The precipitating incident: when James Johnson, then CEO of Fannie Mae, made a speech to NCRC members on the importance of down payments to keep mortgage-backed securities easily salable, NACA troops, in keeping with the group's style of personalizing disputes, distributed pictures of Johnson, captioned: "I make $6 million a year, and I can afford a down payment. Why can't you?" Says Josh Silver, research director of NCRC: "There is no quicker way to undermine CRA than through bad loans." NCRC represents hundreds of smallish community groups, many of which do insist on down payments—and many of which make loans in the same neighborhoods as NACA and understand the risk its philosophy poses. Still, whenever NACA opens a new branch office, it will be difficult for the nonprofits already operating in that area to avoid matching its come-one, come-all terms.

Even without a no-down-payment policy, the pressure on banks to make CRA-related loans may be leading to foreclosures. Though bankers generally cheerlead for CRA out of fear of being branded racists if they do not, the CEO of one midsize bank grumbles that 20 percent of his institution's CRA-related mortgages, which required only $500 down payments, were delinquent in their very first year, and probably 7 percent will end in foreclosure. "The problem with CRA," says an executive with a major national financial-services firm, "is that banks will simply throw money at things because they want that CRA rating." From the banks' point of view, CRA lending is simply a price of doing business—even if some of the mortgages must be written off. The growth in very large banks—ones most likely to sign major CRA agreements—also means that those advancing the funds for CRA loans are less likely to have to worry about the effects of those loans going bad: such loans will be a small portion of their lending portfolios.

Looking into the future gives further cause for concern: "The bulk of these loans," notes a Federal Reserve economist, "have been made during a period in which we have not experienced an economic downturn." The Neighborhood Assistance Corporation of America's own success stories make you wonder how much CRA-related carnage will result when the economy cools. The group likes to promote, for instance, the story of Renea Swain-Price, grateful for NACA's negotiating on her behalf with Fleet Bank to prevent foreclosure when she fell behind on a $1,400 monthly mortgage payment on her three-family house in Dorchester. Yet NACA had no qualms about arranging the $137,500 mortgage in the first place, notwithstanding the fact that Swain-Price's husband was in prison, that she'd had previous credit problems, and that the monthly mortgage payment constituted more than half her monthly salary. The fact that NACA has arranged an agreement to forestall foreclosure does not inspire confidence that she will have the resources required to maintain her aging frame house: her new monthly payment, in recognition of previously missed payments, is $1,879.

Even if all the CRA-related loans marketed by nonprofits were to turn out fine, the CRA system is still troubling. Like affirmative action, it robs the creditworthy of the certain knowledge that they have qualified by dint of their own effort for a first home mortgage, a milestone in any family's life. At the same time, it sends the message that this most important milestone has been provided through the beneficence of government, devaluing individual accomplishment. Perhaps the Clinton White House sees this as a costless way to use the banking system to create a new crop of passionate Democratic loyalists, convinced that CRA has delivered them from an uncaring Mammon—when, in all likelihood, banks would have been eager to have most of them as customers, regulation or no.

CRA also serves to enforce misguided views about how cities should develop, or redevelop. Consider the "investment" criterion—the loans to commercial borrowers rather than individual home buyers—that constitutes 25 percent of the record on which banks are judged in their compliance review. The Comptroller of the Currency's office makes clear that it is not interested in just any sort of investment in so-called underserved neighborhoods. Investment in a new apartment building or shopping center might not count, if it would help change a poor neighborhood into a more prosperous one, or if it is not directly aimed at serving those of low income. Regulators want banks to invest in housing developments built through nonprofit community development corporations. Banks not only receive CRA credit for such "investment"—which they can make anywhere in the country, not just in their backyard—but they also receive corporate tax credits for it, through the Low Income Housing Tax Credit. Banks have little incentive to make sure such projects are well managed, since they get their tax credits and CRA credits up front.

This investment policy misunderstands what is good for cities and for the poor. Cities that are alive are cities in flux, with neighborhoods rising and falling, as tastes and economies change. This ceaseless flux is a process, as Jane Jacobs brilliantly described it in The Economy of Cities, that fuels investment, creates jobs, and sparks innovative adaptation of older buildings to new purposes. Those of modest means benefit both from the new jobs and from being able to rent or purchase homes in once-expensive neighborhoods that take on new roles. The idea that it is necessary to flash-freeze certain neighborhoods and set them aside for the poor threatens to disrupt urban vitality and the renewal that comes from the individual plans and efforts of a city's people.

But keeping these neighborhoods forever poor is the CRA vision. CRA will help virtually any lower-income family that can come close to affording a mortgage payment to purchase a home, often in a non-poor neighborhood. Thanks to CRA-driven bank investment, poor neighborhoods would then fill up with subsidized rental complexes, presumably for those poor families who can't earn enough even to get a subsidized, easy credit mortgage. The effects of all this could be to undermine lower-middle-class neighborhoods by introducing families not prepared for home ownership into them and to leave behind poor neighborhoods in which low-income apartments, filled with the worst-off and least competent, stand alone—hardly a recipe for renewal.

It will take a Republican president to change or abolish CRA, so firmly wedded to it is the Clinton administration and so powerfully does it serve Democratic Party interests. When Senator Gramm attacked the CRA for its role in funding advocacy groups and for the burden it imposes on banks, the Clinton administration fought back furiously, willing to let the crucial Financial Services Modernization Act, to which Gramm had attached his CRA changes, die, unless Gramm dropped demands that, for instance, CRA reviews become less frequent. In the end, Gramm, despite his key position as the chairman of the Senate Committee on Banking, Housing and Urban Affairs (even the committee's name reflects a CRA consciousness) and his willingness to hold repeal of the Glass-Steagal Act hostage to CRA reform, could only manage to require community groups to make public their agreements with banks, disclosing the size of their loan commitments and fees.

A new president should push for outright abolition of the CRA. Failing that, he could simply instruct the Treasury to roll back the compliance criteria to their more relaxed, pre-Clintonian level. But to make the case for repeal—and ensure that some future Democratic president couldn't simply reimpose Clinton's rules—he might test the basic premise of the Community Reinvestment Act: that the banking industry serves the rich, not the poor. He could carry out a controlled experiment requiring no CRA lending in six Federal Reserve districts, while CRA remains in force in six others. A comparison of lending records would show whether there is any real case for CRA. In addition, CRA regulators should require nonprofit groups with large CRA-related loan commitments to track and report foreclosure and delinquency rates. For it is these that will reflect the true threat that CRA poses, a threat to the health of cities.

Well, if -you- claim to know this, then it would be a very fair assumption to say that Bush knew it, too...AND DID NOTHING ABOUT IT FOR EIGHT YEARS!

So, with that in mind, once again, we DO blame Bush.

Hasan, who was born and raised in Virginia and graduated from Virginia Tech University, turned against the wars after hearing the stories of those who came back from Afghanistan and Iraq, Nader Hasan said. Maj. Hasan, raised a Muslim, had wanted to go into the military against his parent's wishes, but he was taunted by others after the terror attacks of Sept. 11, his cousin said.

A former Fort Hood colleague of the shooter said Hasan would frequently make "outlandish" comments.

"He said maybe Muslims should stand up and fight against the aggressor," retired Col. Terry Lee told Fox News. "At first we thought he meant help the armed forces, but apparently that wasn't the case. Other times he would make comments we shouldn't be in the war in the first place."

Hasan had been optimistic that President Obama would start pulling troops out of Iraq and Afghanistan, Lee said, but when that didn't happen as quickly as he hoped, Hasan became angry.

Army: Fort Hood shooting rampage suspect is alive
By APRIL CASTRO and DEVLIN BARRETT - 10 minutes ago

FORT HOOD, Texas - A military mental health doctor facing deployment overseas opened fire at the Fort Hood Army post on Thursday, setting off on a rampage that killed 12 people and left 31 wounded, Army officials said.

Authorities said immediately after the shootings that they had killed the suspected shooter, but later in the evening they recanted and said that he was alive and in stable condition at a hospital, watched by a guard.

"His death is not imminent," said Lt. Gen. Bob Cone at Fort Hood. He offered little explanation for the mistake, other than to say there was confusion at the hospital.

A law enforcement official identified the shooting suspect as Army Maj. Nidal Malik Hasan. The official spoke on condition of anonymity because he was not authorized to discuss the case publicly.

The violence was believed to be the worst mass shooting in history at a U.S. military base.

The shooting began around 1:30 p.m., when shots were fired at the base's Soldier Readiness Center, where soldiers who are about to be deployed or who are returning undergo medical screening, Cone said.

It was unclear what the motive was, though it appeared he was upset about a scheduled deployment. U.S. Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison said the Army major was about to deploy overseas, though it was unclear if he was headed to Iraq or Afghanistan and when he was scheduled to leave. Hutchison said she was told about the upcoming deployment by generals based at Fort Hood.

I'm a "lair"? (I think you mean 'liar').

I said only that "he was born in America" (which by definition, makes him a 'native American', which the OP didn't quite seem to grasp).

YOU said he "was born and raised in Virginia".

That makes me a "lair"? Last time I looked, Virginia was in America.

Thanks for illustrating the pointn N0 0bama0! You're yet another buggereatin'-moron right winger blathering away about something that has no bearing at ALL to this group. And why? Because in a group where folks in the know
DO discuss this, he'd be buried and laughed off of the group!

I'm neither Republican or Democrat, I'm a Libertarian. You know, what Thomas Jefferson was. What many republicans were before they got so hot to sell out completely to the highest bidder. All of that garbage you spouted took up more room than the whole rest of the discussion, and never a mention of the irreparable harm done by the Reagan administration.
And yet, HE is credited with ending the Cold War??? Charlie Wilson did more to end the cold war than the entire Reagan administration, which really means that the only thing they can really be credited with is destroying whatever chances this country ever had of maintaining some checks and balances inherent in the two party system.

Face it, you REALLY haven't a clue, you can only maintain belief in the republican party by listening to bloated, corrupt, drug addicts that get paid top dollar to create from whole cloth whatever noise will sound like reason to their deeply disenfranchised and confused audience.

I won't go off on the Democrats because, quite frankly, they're just not as completely off the wall, at least on this group, AND,
AGAIN, THAT IS NOT WHAT THIS GROUP IS HERE TO DISCUSS!

Pull your head out! and get your ass off of this group if you have anything to discuss other than shortwave radio! Be a man and see how long you last in a political discussion group fairly represented by ALL parties. Of course you won't, you haven't the brains or the guts!

Oh Yeah the Evil of Big Business
-note- Basic Trust In People To Do Right

Interest of The Body of People.
-that's- Social Economic Synergy ©

Hey May Be Big Government is Evil Too
-note- Trusting in an Entity "Government"
-wrt- Government the fundamental 'corpus'
of Corporation : Created By Itself For Itself and Eventually Taking On a Life Unto Itself.

Wow Big Business + Big Government :
It's a Double Whammy !

- Anyone buying a new home, or buying one
- that has been previously owned, is taxed at
- the present-day rates,

OK that's their Baseline {Starting Point} and True.
http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/California_Proposition_13_%281978%29

- and their taxes are not frozen :
- they can be -and are- reassessed regularly.

OK Now Is That True ?
http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/California_Proposition_13_%281978%29

- This means that the longer you've owned your
- property, the lower your tax rates are as compared
- to those who've bought real-estate since 1978.
- And since nearly all homeowner-owned property
- has changed hands one or more times since '78,

"ALL" is an Absurd generalization since clearly
I personally know of several/many California Home Owners who are still in their Homes from the 1970s to this day -so- Many/Most would be more appropriate and valid in this statement of 'supposed' facts.

- comparatively few middle-class homes
- are still being taxed at the low original rates,

Prop 13 allows for a 2% per Year Increase in the Assessment on All Real Property in Cali-$-Ni-A http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/California_Proposition_13_%281978%29

> while the really huge

Resulting in a Lower Cost of Products {Goods} and Services to many {most of the} End Users Consumers/Customers the Citizens of California.

Like It Sort of Like All 'Balances-Out' in the End.

Thus many Big Business have 'stay' in Cali-4-Ni-A especially those that are "Land" Based like AGRA.
Business => Jobs => Home Ownership >>> Government
B-Taxes => J-Taxes => P-Taxes >>> Government

- This is not exactly what you'd call a tax system

This is the crap that cracks me up. Yepper, all that confusion at the hospital don't you know.

It's pretty easy there Lt.
If he is / has flatlined and his heart isn't beating on his own.....that usually means he is dead. If they put Mr. Blankie over your body and head that is not a good thing.
JUST TELL THE TRUTH FROM THE BEGINNING,
what a concept.

Apparently, the CID had him all along, and allowed the rumor of his death to propogate so they would have a better chance to find if he had any help.

Just do some "eyeball" filtering of the list. I've been reading the Vegas logs, stuff like that. Nothing particularly interesting in the posts lately, but utility or military is more my game. Most of the "government shortwave" is streamed on the net these days.

I got a copy of "Spycraft." It calls those numbers station OWVL (one way voice link). The book has a page on the one time pad, how to decode and encode, etc.. Now what's cool is there is a photo in the book of a Soviet spy working on his OWVL decoding. The photo was taken by the KGB, who was spying on the spy.

I highly reccommend the book. Lots of geeky stuff in it since it is written from the viewpont of the techies in the CIA.

It takes no special skill to receive a 100,000 Watt radio station 3,000 miles away. It is much more fun to get a 200 Watt airplane halfway to Japan, or a USCG C-130 doing SAR over the Caribbean or something.

Then there's the hams...

People are people and they're often interested in politics and post off-topic to this group. You'll encounter that in lots of groups, not just this one.

This group was at one time dedicated to the SWL hobby. It's focus is now the business-side of commercial radio broadcasting. If you're interested in learning about the business of commercial radio, the HD boondoggle, etc., then there's lots of discussion of those things here. If you're interested in shortwave listening, antennas or any of the technical aspects of the SWL hobby, you'd be better served by some other group.

January 1965 to October 29,1965 is NOT three years. It may have felt

Pretty telling link about the mindset of this guy. People IMO should be more aware and when these signs are present to tell someone with the power to do something about it.

This guy cleaned out his apartment and was giving his neighbor....who he had never spoken to before, some of his things.

Not a good sign.

WOFL out of Fla. has reported this.
I-4 Eastbound at SR50 is completely shut down, the shooter/shooters still has not been found.

I am hearing they fear this may be a copycat shooting. :-I

Eight in critical condition and two dead is what I heard on WLW, remember this is just what I am hearing.

Such as...

The group is about (among other things)wireless communications, from DC to daylight. Quite a few people here are BCB DXers. Since the 'Dwardos of the world want to ruin the bands with interference, there is a lively discussion on how corporate America is incapable of doing good radio.

I was there at rec.cooking and broke the story over at SCT. He didn't really berate her that much but instead told her she had it all wrong and that if she really wanted a great dish to buy his cook book and in essence to "throw her receipes away". Apparently she was making the sauce with a "roux" and as I recall he demanded it be "done with a corn starch slurry" and to cook the loin to med rare, remove it from the oven, and then let it rest as the internal temp will cook it to the desired doneness. The post was a long time ago but if I remember right he wanted an "apple pairing stuffing" with the pork loin and not the traditional bread stuffing we are all use to seeing. Fancies himself as a classicly trained chef I guess amongst other things. Well its neither here nor there quite frankly however I would enjoy reading his book.

You are in the wrong group. Shortwave radio is rarely discussed here anymore except by a few die-hards. John Plimmer's reports on MWDX around the world are the only thing that keeps me subscribing.

I don't care about Ibiquity or IBOC, or 'Dwardo. I read John's great posts about MWDX, some of the new guys who are actually dx'ing(the guy from Vegas), and a few others. Like the radio reviews from the people who actually want to talk radios, but then there are the other groups for that: antique radio+phono, boatanchors, etc. That is where the real radio guys hang out.

and Obama Transition Team Worker
http://www.freerepublic.com/focus/f-news/2379728/posts

him by not Ending the Iraqi and Afghanistan Wars

You mean jump to conclusions why President Obama has ingnored members of Congress who happen to be Republicans, in his new "era of post-partisanship" and have officially asked three times since July to have an appointment with the President to discuss heath care, yet has managed to play more golf than any president in history, can campaign for governor races, play basketball, pitch the olympics to a city, while ignoring those requests, when those members represent the equivalent of several football stadiums full of voters?

You see Mr. Axlerod, we don't have to bug the White House like Nixon to figure out what you people are up to, God explains it to us, on a level that even a 5th grader can understand?

OMG! Checkout Rep. Gingrey's presentation (11-6-2009 late pm)!

Health Care Spending in the USA is said to be 15% of the GDP -that's- One in Seven Dollars

Funding US Heath Care through US Jobs and US Incomes Taxes on American Workers ADDS to the Cost of American Products {Goods} and Services.
Resulting in Increasing those Cost for Domestic Made Items; and Items that we Export {Made in the USA}; while Imported Items do not have those Costs Built into them.

Funding US Heath Care through a VAT Sales Tax Taxes both Domestic and Imported Products {Goods} and Services Equally; plus USA Made Items then sell Cheaper on the International Market.
http://groups.google.com/group/rec.radio.shortwave/msg/dde71b44cb7f7488

Why Obama-Care© SUCKS -cause- It's Funding is based on US Jobs and US Incomes Taxes on American Workers and Employers; and puts American Made Products {Goods} and Services at a Price Disadvantage Around the World; which is Bad for the American Economy and Kills American Jobs.
http://groups.google.com/group/rec.radio.shortwave/msg/ea97b840be227617

Well, that might be an interesting story if it was written by credible journalists. The truth of the matter is that suicide covers a diverse range of factors, one could probably pull up the numbers for all 17 to 26 year olds, and then track suicide rates to a survey of pop music lyrics (and a whole range of other social factors). You would also want to know how many suicides are the result of romance issues, or drug use. You may come to the conclusion that war is not the cause, but perhaps thousands of Americans who choose to sit on their rear ends, instead of doing something to defend themselves, but instead write stupid blogs that help the enemy, and force real soldiers to complete tours of duty they should not have to because there are too many cowards in the United States, and that argument supports a draft?

Not sure what the Huff and Puff Post wants to accomplish, maybe they should hire real journalists and writers that are not out to collect a welfare check for not doing anything. This jerk got a sucker punch in, and the these events are and will be prevented in the future. The Huff and Puff Post also seems to ignore the fact that this is a daily event where our troops are stationed overseas? So what's next Huff and Puff, will you write about how a universal health care plan where the government takes over the health care system, how easy it will become for conservatives who eventually take over the government, to just say, we don't have to overturn Roe Vs. Wade, we'll just make abortions a non-government covered procedure?

Or will they seriously talk about the reason for unemployment is that employers do not have the time or the energy to complete endless reams of paperwork to comply with new and surprise laws made by a lunatic Congress?

The Liberal Troll was standing in the hole waiting for something to develop....and WHAP! He got developed? Resistance if futile, you must comply.......with the truth!

Can you smell el el el el el el el el el .........what the Rock of Truth, who has the smartest eyebrow in the Universe, and the whitest teeth known to man, is ..........................cooking?

Being that this is the most exciting, most entertaining, fact finding, brain busting, fun loving, liberal egg shell mind crunching, invincible smacketh downeth erectus among us, you can't see the truth coming, but you know it is anyway, sonic boom of Conservatism, and, most powerful keyboard in the world,

Do you feel lucky?

Hey Diane, do you think requiring people to buy insurance is a tax? We don't care about Americans if you crash the economy? If she thinks these arguments are irrational, than obviously it is time for this California fruit cake find another line of work?

There is so much anger against your plans Dianne, because people that can see down the road, see this current health care system, crashing, we see people loosing their jobs, we see medical care disappearing, not being created, that's why we are angry. We are angry because Medicare and Medicaid are supposedly going broke, and doctors don't want to participate in the program because the government price controls makes it not worth their time.

This is not about compassion, this about fools running government, and this is about fools running government when other nations around the world have guns pointed at our heads?

Competition also means that the government can run the show, and that it can fail at doing so, and taxpayers will not have any choice, other than to accept excuses?

Congressional Black Ruacus, and imaginary legitimate organization?

This is about power. You want free health care? Fine, pay for it with mineral, oil and gas royalties? Otherwise you are all a bunch of liars? 72 hours to read 2000 pages? We should have 72 weeks?

What do you say Professor Oui Weed Obama? Are you Oui Weed Up today? Surrounded by men that go Oui Oui? Trying to grab enough power so we have to ask to go Oui Oui? Just say Nein, be all you can be? Better Free than Need Big Government? So Time Magazine will write an article about President Obama that explains excessive government regulation is not communism?

Claims the Democrats are pursuing a bi-partisan agenda. Guess the fact that other members of Congress, while she watched, testified that Mr. Obama refused to meet with three times since July on health care, wants to applaud Mr. Obama for being Bi-Partisan? Ignores the chaos of never-ending government regulations on business and thinks this is a great environment to create jobs?

Fort Hood Shooting was Preventable

I'll keep this short and sweet. The shootings at a recruiter station in the United States earlier this year were evidence that a subversive element in the United States was present and acting to effect the harm of soldiers in the employ of the United States Government. The event of 9/11 was also evidence that radical terrorists were in the United States trying to inflict damage.

This event is preventable by following the most basic of all infantry combat rules, don't congregate soldiers. This goes back to the Revolutionary War, you don't stand in a line and exchange fire with the enemy. I sincerely believe there was no need to congregate those soldiers in that manner on the base, they could have staggered the processing so that no more than a dozen or so soldiers would be processed at any one point in the laborious processing day, or within firing range of a hand gun.

This is not unreasonable, considering that the military probably has within its ranks members who have been exposed to radical Islamic propaganda, which has proven to be effective when certain social and environmental factors are mentally projected in the right combination on an individual to effect their thought patterns and ideas. Without going into a lengthy psychoanalysis (90% of the science is junk anyway, you end up writing a book to disprove contemporary thinking) the same thought process that a person goes through to wake up and go to work with a smile on their face can also be manipulated to make one think their lot in life is hopeless because of others (sound familiar, tactics used on the poor?)

Of course this is a curious observation to communists, since you can not possibly pursue a world government when there are large blocks of poverty, and redistributing the wealth does nothing to tell people how to create it, which deepens, rather than solves problems (hence why Conservatism is on fire today)?

I had the privilege of serving at Fort Hood, and when the base is locked down, the security is very deep, including metal detectors at entrances of sensitive buildings. These kinds of things are not new, the events have happened through out the history of war, and police stations and other military recruiting centers are targeted frequently by those in Iraq and other countries.

By congregating so many unarmed soldiers in one area, it sounds like they made a temptation to good to pass up to the mind of a terrorist. In any event, you can be sure that future security measures may include armed guards to accompany events where large numbers of soldiers are congregated, or that soldiers are allowed to carry personal fire arms. Part of being a soldier that lives, is understanding that to avoid becoming a target, you stay away from others as much as possible.

Military training bases are basically artificial hell on earth, in some aspects. They simulate combat and social pressures designed to break and train soldiers for real battles. If you did not want the hot temper of an 18 year old with a gun in a training environment, surely the trainers and supervisors should always have them. An ammo clip with $10 worth of ammo could have prevented the loss of life and liberty, not to mention the hundreds of hours of training spent on these people.

And it also sends the message to the rest of us, if we don't carry a gun, maybe we should at least carry a big steel ball bearing, or a baseball, or a rock, and practice a simple technique(s)at home in our spare time, drop, roll, and throw, at simulated targets of bad guys.

Being that this is the most exciting, most entertaining, fact finding, brain busting, fun loving, liberal egg shell mind crunching, invincible smacketh downeth erectus amongus, you can't see the truth coming, but you know it is anyway, sonic boom of Conservatism, and, most powerful keyboard in the world,

Ok, I will...

The way I count it, it's about ten months...It isn't a big deal and

When you do a brush pass, resist the urge to do an elbow bump. Have you finished your jack in the box for use in the carpool lane?

They never explained how "the thing" works. It looks to me that the sound vibration detunes the antenna a bit, altering the antenna gain, making the signal amplitude modulate.

I did. The missing period makes it confusing. For the normal Cuhulinesque State of Grammar, it should have read:

"I was at Fort Hood,Texas from January 1965 till the morning of October 29,1965. When my three years in the Army was over, Honorable Discharge, thank you very much Lt.Mariano.I deeeeeeecided not to RE-UP.I went on back to civilian life."

Instead of:

"I was at Fort Hood,Texas from January 1965 till the morning of October 29,1965 when my three years in the Army was over."

The sentence makes it sound as though the time span in the sentence constitutes the entirety of his term in the Forces. Had I known he had enlisted at a much earlier date (something about avoiding jail time for running 'shine), I would never have questioned his Chronology.

As it stands, I'm sorry I mentioned anything. The misperceived error wasn't important enough to waste the coulombs on.

That's very nice. I don't consider hunting flamethrowers with $4k Japanese radios much sport. Try resolving call signs on 1240 AM some time.

Since SWBC is going away the true hobbyist needs to find new sources of international news and new targets for their receivers.

Clue: Amateurs are way more likely to verify than AM broadcasters, and much more challenging to receive.

3263. "AUSTRIA: media regulator puts DAB radio on hold"

"AUSTRIA: media regulator puts DAB radio on hold"

On 3 November 2009, the Austrian media regulator RTR presented the results of a study that had been commissioned in December 2008 on the potential for digital radio in Austria. Dr Alfred Grinschgl, managing director of RTR, commented: “The reason we in Austria are not presently digitising radio is that, in neighbouring Germany, there is no unanimous agreement on adopting DAB or DAB+ and therefore no successful large-scale launch."

ORF, Austrian state radio, technical director Peter Moosmann commented that the time was not yet “ripe” for the introduction of digital radio and he rejected the notion of planned FM switch-off. “In every Austrian household, there are four or five radio sets that would need to be replaced with one blow,” he said. “We do not want to force the listener to switch, but want to entice them to digital radio with the appeal of new radio formats”.

The chairman of the association of Austrian private broadcasters, Christian Stogmuller, said that the successful launch of digital radio in Austria could only happen under a single European-wide technical standard, the existence of sufficient digital radio devices in the market and a significant financial commitment from public funds to launch digital radio.

The Austrian Association of Free Radios, VFRO, said it was sceptical because DAB/DAB+ is designed for large-scale radio services, whereas it suggested alternative technologies such as the DRM+ system be used for expanding local radio.

Michael Wagenhofer, managing director of transmission company ORS (60% owned by ORF), said: “The introduction of a digital radio transmission standard will require simulcasting [broadcasting content on both analogue and digital] for about 15 years because the car industry alone has a six-year implementation cycle”. He estimated the cost of building DAB multiplex infrastructure in Austria would be around 8m Euros.

Dr Grinschgl of RTR said that the anticipated carriage cost of DAB transmission for a local station would be around 100,000 Euros per annum, and that nationwide coverage on DAB would cost 800,000 Euros per annum. He warned that, if individual stations had to bear the costs of broadcasting on both FM and DAB, then DAB would develop only “very slowly”.

Back in June 2008, an ORF article on digital radio had noted: “The reason for the lack of consumer interest in digital radio is that RTR [the regulator] licenses a good range of conventional analogue radio services. The consumer is more than satisfied with the existing diversity of content and the quality of reception”.

Meanwhile, at the Media Days event in Munich this week, Jurgen Doetz, president of VPRT, the German association of private broadcasters, was reported to have proclaimed: “Digital radio is dead, dead, dead”.

Where it says, recycledgoods,,, I have a Seerite Model 6x6 Opaque Projector just like that one, and I have two pull up/pull down movie screens like the kind you have seen in classrooms before.I bought that stuff at a Goodwill store about fourteen years ago.

I also have some little bitty tv sets, one or two of them have screens about six or seven inches size.I was wondering if I can set that stuff up so I can have a BIG tv set?

I also have a Stryker Bone Saw I bought at a Goodwill store (the Goodwill store that used to be on Palmyra Street in down town Jackson where I also bought my Seerite projector) about fourteen years ago.I wonder if those Fein tools blades will fit on my Stryker bone saw?

Like the standard Bill of Laden, you need a Standard Insurance Contract, because you are GOING TO GET ONE, either by the private sector, or if government takes over the industry and destroys it? At some point, all you lawyers out there, have to make stand, either an imaginary greedy rock star mentality, poverty, or a common sense of reality that makes a decent living that does not harm those living in poverty?

And lets not forget, all these different insurance contracts are necessary because the profit margin on these insurance companies is so low?

What if you guaranteed a profit margin (through tax write offs, subsidized by oil, gas, and mineral royalties) to insurance companies, and issued a standard contract that all companies shared? Denying pre-existing conditions denies you the ability to take premiums from people willing to pay, and the subsidation through oil, gas, and mineral royalties would be a safety net for those who demonstrate financial hardship?

Government health care in foreign countries demonstrates that the health care system is hurt, not helped?

Time will tell ... on both counts.

He was elected in the middle of a recession gifted to him by his predecessor. How could you possibly judge his performance at this early stage? Judge him when he's near the end of his second term to give him a fair assessment.

So, now that we understand the Speaker's mentality, that all children should live with their parents until the age of 28, they should there for not have the adult privileges of voting, and other things we allow 18 year olds to do?

Well how else do take the declaration of a lawmaker during a pre-speech before a vote on health care lootislation? Speaker Pelosi is the Dough Nut Hole (the black hole for your tax dollars, and jobs disappear?)

From:

http://www.radiotalkingpoints.com/articles/2009_radiotalkingpoints_article_0054_Novt_07_FreeSpeech.html

What is electronic harrassment?

Recently I got a notice in the mail, from a politician that thinks federal stimulus money is some kind of good thing, that new laws have been enacted regarding on line harassment? This new law describes a person who communicate with others without revealing their true identity, that they are prohibited from harming others. In my view, that definition is exclusively limited to the physical injury to a person as a direct sole result of the communication in question, that requires medical attention, otherwise you infringe, or abridge the free speech of political ideas?

The law also covers other issues, such as identity theft, etc. The only reason I am writing this is that the word harm can cover a broad range of issues, and it can not conflict with traditional freedoms of speech, without a public announcement that such free speech has been removed from the Constitution of the United States of America. For instance a law that requires that I buy health insurance, could harm my budget, so that means that members of Congress that vote to approve such a law, could potentially be guilty of a third degree felony? History is full of individuals that are not harmed by criticism, and in fact such criticism can motivate and inspire them to prove their critics wrong?

Personally, I would argue that social network sites are informal means of communication that are not designed to properly convey the intention of authors or explain viewpoints in the same context or clarity as sending a certified letter to someone regarding your viewpoints, especially when every day on the media, they claim that the internet is full of lies, you can't have it both ways people, you can't say the internet is full of lies, and then start suing people for real or imaginary damages, because the public perception is that the internet is not a valid communication source, but an unreliable one that is not guaranteed

When the designers of such software programs that make social networking sites require users to accept terms and conditions, those same terms and conditions should apply to users of software when ever possible. To say that Twitter is a valid vehicle for a world wide view is a lunatic view, most messages are viewed by less than a thousand people, not world wide, and there is reasonable doubt that a 140 character message (or even a series of them) can encompass your entire view about a subject to define a legal viewpoint, let alone justify your loss of freedom of speech that is not to be abridged by lawsuits.

Unless there is a specific literal threat that would describe in detail how the author a of a message is going to cause you physical injury that requires medical attention, which is therefore a threat, I believe that we have no business regulating free speech, because your opinion is protected speech, there is no law that says you have to like a product, service, or individual.

What are you going to do to compete in a global economy, sue other countries because they harmed your imagination? Such laws amount to enforcement by the discretion of lawmakers, since it would be impossible to enforce all violations of the law if you regulated the thought process, instead of the actions of individuals? When you make laws that are only enforceable by the discretion of law makers, have you violated your fundamental basis of American law, that all laws are just and apply to everyone? Oh that's right, I am writing about a country where 40% of the population does not pay income taxes, because that is fair, and that is another issue we should try to change if you want good jobs?

What is to abridge? To turn aside, to reduce in scope, shorten in duration, shorten in extent. In other words, the government is to have a hands off approach to speech, because being a part of society (which someone recently attempted to "advise" me on) includes that the speech of others is part of your environment. If you don't like your environment, you either get out of there, or change it. God said to run away from evil, and he would not have said that, if He did not always provide a way out.

You respect people when you consider their views, by reflecting their thoughts or actions against your own? That may not happen over night, or in a blink of an eye, although it can happen that way. The good, new idea is not a litmus test, it is an audition? Some of us can wrestle with the expressions of opinion, by using the same moves of criticism, by using the same moves of negative opinions, but we win the battle with love, because those negative viewpoints are not used by themselves, but in combination of the alternative viewpoint and positive justification?

If I can wrestle your mind with opinions, and drag you through the torment of failure, by demonstrating the end result of peace, faith, and love (which includes defeating error), then I have performed the ultimate smacketh down of all time, without laying a hand on you? And that is what God does, by opening the ears of the oppressed.

If God was a wrestler, did he have to use a chair? It takes the pressure of soil, to get the seed to begin to live?

Being that this is the most exciting, most entertaining, fact finding, idea busting, fun loving, egg shell mind crunching, invincible smacketh downeth erectus amongus, you can't see the truth coming, but you know it is anyway, sonic boom of Conservatism, and, most powerful keyboard in the world,

Do you feel lucky?

Universal Disclaimer for the Public Domain, Version 1.5, dated Nov 7th, 2009 (which supersedes all previous versions, to which this new version applies)

The writings, views, expressions expressed by this author to include all written and electronic forms of communication are subject to the following disclaimer and conditions:

a) The views expressed by this website and the author to include all electronic forms of communication are not representative of advertisers, or other third parties that may store and or transmit the messages from this private computer, which you may observe at your own risk, with no liability to the authors, or any party related to transmitting, storing, or any other aspect of the material involved, including email correspondence, which is not necessary to the function of the website, and may or may not be archived due to other limitations incorporated into the licensed email software in use at the time such as automated spam or virus filters. No personal information exchanged will be shared without your consent, or provided to third parties with out the express permission of the parties and, or, individuals concerned.

b) The author(s) of this content and those who may interact with it in various known or unknown electronic methods do not give permission to any third parties to share or provide private personal information who may operate as part of any type of electronic or written communications system, including all parties, who may technically intercept communications due to the nature of network conditions beyond both the author's legal and physical control, unless those communications represent violations of the law, upon which the author, and or web site will cooperate to pursue any legal remedies.

c) The views expressed by the author or website may or may not contain factual information, due to the use of sarcasm or parody. The views may or may not be complete, either by design, to pre-empt being called a liar even if telling the truth, or by error due to typographical, grammer, or other technical communication problems not realized or imagined, or the possibility of views based on false or missing information, or with the intention of being used for entertainment purposes only, and not as a definitive judgment on the actions, character, or reputation of an organization, individual, or groups of individuals, with the intent of communicating with a limited group of people, and not the general public, however no distribution restrictions apply for fair use purposes described by the US Copyright Office, if no other restrictions are present or communicated, with all

d) Any reference to copyrighted material is done in the spirit of fair use, to illustrate the context of a discussion regarding public events for reference purposes that adds to the conversation, for which that discussion constitutes a new and separate piece of intellectual property, for which the referenced copyrighted material can not convey by itself, and that the author reserves the right to retain any profits from the newly created intellectual property. This term also serves to promote the referenced copyrighted material, without necessarily endorsing the material for any particular fitness, use, or purpose, for which the purpose of fair use referral law was created for, through inclusion of a partial, but not whole, body of works that the copyright fair use reference applies, for which the intent of all terms of this disclaimer apply to that reference of a copyrighted work.

e) Any humor if used, is not intended to offend people, and may be designed to apply the principals of peer pressure through reverse examination to accomplish the communication of principals or ideas that consist of traditional or proposed social values that are proven to advance the common good, and are not meant to discredit, disparage or demean any person or entities in any professional or personal manner, by attempting to share through the eyes or opinion of the author, for which it is expected that you read at your own risk, with no liability held to the author or any third parties who may store, transfer, or forward this message to others, in the traditions of free speech, fair use, and to play a positive role in a society that believes that graphically depicting male homosexuals having sex, and other unusual sex acts is considered free speech or that the use of abortion to limit Negros, Latinos, and other races from "spreading the wealth around" as a "matter of privacy" (which the author does not condone).

f) The use of humor is a known ingredient in providing teachable moments, and to validate and even demonstrate artistic expressions that are not shared by others, as demonstrated by many valuable scientific observations that were scoffed at in the past, yet proven to be quite valid decades later, upon which the humor used in all electronic communications by the author are based, in the principals and traditions of free speech and pursuit of happiness, and may not be a representation of others, including God.

g) It is the opinion of the author that you respect people when you consider their views, by reflecting their thoughts or actions against your own, which may include use of language that conveys an emotional depth that is to be imagined, but not enacted through use of language that accurately, or inaccurately describes the situation, circumstance, or idea, which does not imply that any action occur other than the consideration of the thought, for which beyond the author has no control, or liability for the action of the reader as presented in all terms of this diclaimer, and may simply be the venting of emotions with the intent of no consequence by the author to an audience the author assumes will understand the message and intent, and wishes to hear those views.

h) Since all intellectual property, discussions and other communications this disclaimer applies to, either in written, or electronic form, subscribe to the terms described in paragraph (e) and (g) of this disclaimer, under no circumstances are any communications meant to violate the terms of any electronic harassment laws which include the word “harm”, for which the author understands to be limited to the definition of physical harm (not self inflicted mental harm) that requires immediate medical attention based solely or in part by the communications of the author, regardless of whether the author chooses to remain anonymous or not.

i) It is the intention and opinion of the author that History is full of individuals that are not harmed by criticism, and in fact such criticism can motivate and inspire them to prove their critics wrong. Based on this historical evidence, any alleged mental harm amounts to self inflicted injury not treatable by either medical or other professionals (despite the fact that many people live from the profits of lies through gradual illusion, without judicial interference), for which the author has no control over the mental development of any potential reader prior to the discovery or reading of the material for which this disclaimer applies, as evident by the necessity that speech is to be protected by law as determined by the founders of the United States of America, who, in the opinion of the author, wrote the legal framework, which was created by God, not slaves.

j) Additional use of automated anonymous page use tracking computer scripts (web page programs) or advertisements may be licensed by www.google.com, for bandwidth verification, or determination of potential advertisement opportunities subject to all other terms described in this disclaimer.

k) Advertisements that may appear are not necessarily endorsed by the author, either by admission, or by silence, nor are any electronic links that may transport the reader to other web pages, sites, or computers, and such links that may be provided for all or any of the following known or unknown purposes, but not limited to, informational, educational, and for the purpose of giving copy right credit referral information under the terms outlined in the conditions applied to the term "fair use" regarding conversations and print under US Copy Right Law, and for which the author assumes no liability for any particular use, fitness, or legality there of, any link, current, past, or future, which the reader should use at their sole risk, with no liability to the author, or any other party that may store, transmit, or otherwise facilitate use of the material for which this disclaimer applies.

l) It is the opinion of the author that effective 1 December, 2009, the proposed regulations from the FTC violate the first and fifth amendments of the United States Constitution, by infringing through economic affliction the burden without compensation all financial details concerning the communications of both free enterprise and opinion, and other civil rights such as "punishment must be fair" and not at the "discretion" of public officials, or that advertisers are assumed to be guilty of deception when United States law provides that you are innocent before being proven guilty, and are in fact demonstrations that there are current members of Congress that neither understand the spirit of the law our founding fathers made for the United States of America, or understand how they work in the opinion of the author, as of October 10th, 2009, especially in light of anticipated, and hopefully defeated, legislative taxes relating to energy use and the burden of publishers and advertisers to comply with the law and manage the environment, and in light that there are various consumer protection agencies, including the Better Business Bureau, which has free consumer information which preclude the use and need for excessive government regulation that burdens business with obstacles it may sense that it can not overcome without inflicting harm on the business plan or survival ability of the business to provide advertised, goods and or services.

m) Although the content provided meets or exceeds those new requirements to the knowledge of the author, and modifications to version 1.3 or 1.4 of this disclaimer is a result of the opinion of the author that “blogging” is another definition for a potentially infinite number or forms of electronic communication, as such the author will retroactively apply this version, 1.5 to all forms of previous communications, when and wherever possible, as time allows, in order to properly convey the intention of the author and to demonstrate an enthusiasm to comply with the law, and not enthusiastically pursue getting high on cocaine as often as possible as Barack Hussein Obama has admitted in his book (paraphrase, synopsis), according to (mmm, mmm, mmm (sonic emphasis)) Rush Hudson Limbaugh, (mmm mmm mmm (sonic emphasis)).

n) Use of this disclaimer for either personal or professional use is permitted with no restrictions. These restrictions or disclaimers do not prohibit the author from pursuing or communicating in a truthful manner, or guarantee that the audience will understand all things as intended, and, or result in being called incoherent, or even a Chicken Chaser!

o) This disclaimer is meant to establish the intent of the author who may participate in message forums, or create other written or electronic forms of communication to comply with current law, and may be revoked without prior notice, due to circumstances beyond the author's control, changes in the law, or for any of the purposes, terms, or conditions that may be in effect or described by this disclaimer, or to changes in this disclaimer that the author may clarify in a revised version of this disclaimer.

p) This disclaimer is attached to this message, and retroactively applies to all previous forms of communication by the author, and is done so because there is no recognized central suppository of a public disclaimer recognized by the Government of the United States to the author, and as such, the legal imperative of the author is to apply this disclaimer to all manner of correspondence as the author seems fit or prudent, so that no misunderstandings occur, or to comply with past, current or future revisions of the law, due to any of, but not limited to, any or all of the terms, partial terms, or combination of terms, of this disclaimer, which is derived from the freedom of speech, for it appears to the author that the zeal of lawmakers to take away free speech outweigh the providence of attaching this disclaimer to all correspondence for which this applies, and any inconvenience for which this presents, is the result of simply complying with the law, and not to inconvenience the reader.

Let me add that it should not take a whole lot of effort, to say that there is reasonable doubt that Twitter is designed to represent your legal viewpionts, especially when a barrage of messages are nothing but spam messages that none of us have time to verify, unless we decide to actually go outside the door and investigate for ourselves?

Because if you don't assume personal responsibility for your welfare, who will listen to the government if they ignore your welfare, and you delegate control of your life over to them? This is a basic freedom that I believe is commonly distorted because communist regimes are not used to the concept, so it is fairly easy for them to distort these subjects because they do not fully understand them?

Meanwhile, creating more entitlements without creating wealth only creates a black hole where wealth and prosperity disappears? Is Cuba the leading edge of medical development today? Also, expenditures were meant to be capped by a two year borrowing limit as the US Constitution out lays?

This is about personal responsibility. I am part Spanish, part English, and other nationalities. Does that mean I should trace down all my ancestoral ties, hop on a plane, and contest several land owners in Europe that they have "stolen" my inheritance? Of course not, because my belief is, if I can not create the same wealth that my ancestors did, then I DONT WANT what my ancestors have, because obviously they obtained it by being mean, or cruel to others?

I almost laughed at the notion that we should give the American Indians more land, why? Do we really know what happened? Were there no Negros in America, did the American Indian wipe them off the continent thousands of years ago? At some point, the spark of Conservatism is going to erupt into the warm fire of love, in a cold world of hate?

First Cookbook Publication from One of Our REC.FOOD Members!!!

Hi Guys

Just thought some of the regular posters might be interested to hear one of our long-term members is about to have his first cookbook released for sale. Picked up this small review from a local publishing brochure and thought I would retype the piece for all those interested. Here's a sneak preview Congrats Steve and Bon Appétit!

Global Flavors from the Heart - Stephen Rafael Kramer

Born in Madrid in Spain and raised in the New England region of the U.S, Stephen R Kramer's cooking is an eclectic mix of succulent tastes and inspiring ingredients ranging from spicy aromatic Thai salads and curries, delectable and oh-so-fresh sushi and tempura dishes from Japan to the heart-warming and traditional tapas offerings from his homeland. Lauded by renowned chefs such as Andrew Zimmern and Anthony Bourdain as a rising star in Pan Asian cuisine, Kramer epitomizes the quintessential, contemporary chef who is more than just a cook. Rather, 'food designers' such as Kramer treat cooking as something of an art form, where the end product not only tastes like heaven on the palette, but also looks akin to a masterpiece which should instead be displayed in the finest of European eateries.

In this 105 page book which is a feast for both eyes and stomach, Kramer provides a detailed description and step-by-step guide for all dishes; the vast majority of which are his own original recipes. Of particular note are the gloriously-defined color photographs depicting the magnificence of his creations; this comes as no surprise as Kramer is also highly regarded in photographic circles for his spectacular wildlife and nature work.

In explaining his love for food, Kramer notes in the introduction of how his early upbringing played a major role in how he now looks upon food. "I would sometimes get picked on at school when I first arrived in the States. Many of them found it odd that I would not indulge in and enjoy the regular American kids diet of hotdogs and soda. I instead would often bring dishes such criadillas and paella which I had prepared the night before.On one occasion a group of 3 or 4 older teenagers tried to take my lunch box away from me when I was about 13 years of age. Let's just say that was their first and only attempt. Now, I have people (Kramer indicates many of whom are American tourists) paying what some might say are ridiculous amounts of money to step into my dining establishment in Singapore to taste my fusion food. Don't you just love irony".

Global Flavors from the Heart is expected to be released in all major book outlets next month with a RRP of $49.95.

So far it has not hit the book stores that I can find as yet...Can't wait to see what "the Kraven" has in store for the culinary world...:-)

Hey now Krypsis don't talk to me like a child. I'm not going to go through the whole series of events that led my friends here.

I'll give you a hint though....it started and ended with the biggest troublemaker and documented liar in RRS that "tried to" bully and stir up trouble in here FOR YEARS. Bottom line, if it weren't for him, I wouldn't even be replying to you because I'd have never known you.

I've tried to be as nice and civil as I can to you.
You have absolutely no reason to type my name in this group but to stir the pot yourself.

Everyone in here is an adult, if they don't want to read Fred/Larb/Takin/Brett or myself they don't have to. I hope you're just not here to stir the pot because that is what I'm starting think.
Take care and I mean that. :-)

3297. Rep Dingell more concerned with auto profits than health care?

I want to thank Mr. Boehner for his floor arguement today, which clarifies not only were all the old health care objections in the bill, but also even new mechanisms to tell you how to raise your children, throw you in jail, tell you if you can or can not participate in the insurance exchange (so why have one?) establish waiting lists, what treatments will be approved and for how much, establish a PUBLIC SERVICE CORPS to create medical staff for this plan, all while Rep. Dingell tells seniors their care will improve (with budget cuts) and that Canada makes more per car.

Well, that's a lot of hype in one five minute slot Mr. Dingell, and with all do respect, that's more than my common sense will allow you to distort. Mr. Dingell quotes the New York Times, a newspaper that is financially in trouble, and has a history of distorting the issues, into the unproveable argument that health care costs will completely dominate the economy if we do nothing, which again, is more than my common sense will tolerate. I did not elect the New York Times.

This kind of rhetoric only creates one thing, mistrust? This is going to throw millions of Americans "off the grid" and employers, they will just disappear, fleeing the country?

Americans are not going to pay the fines, they are not going to buy insurance, because there is no money for those who live paycheck to paycheck. You think there is a housing crisis now, you wait until we all move out of our houses and start living in trailer trash dumps?

a) The views expressed by this website and the author to include all electronic forms of communication are not representative of advertisers, or other third parties that may store and or transmit the messages from this private computer, which you may observe at your own risk, with no liability to the authors, or any party related to transmitting, storing, or any other aspect of the material involved, including email correspondence, which is not necessary to the function of the website, and may or may not be archived due to other limitations incorporated into the licensed email software in use at the time such as automated spam or virus filters. No personal information exchanged will be shared without your consent, or provided to third parties with out the express permission of the parties and, or, individuals concerned.

b) The author(s) of this content and those who may interact with it in various known or unknown electronic methods do not give permission to any third parties to share or provide private personal information who may operate as part of any type of electronic or written communications system, including all parties, who may technically intercept communications due to the nature of network conditions beyond both the author's legal and physical control, unless those communications represent violations of the law, upon which the author, and or web site will cooperate to pursue any legal remedies.

c) The views expressed by the author or website may or may not contain factual information, due to the use of sarcasm or parody. The views may or may not be complete, either by design, to pre-empt being called a liar even if telling the truth, or by error due to typographical, grammer, or other technical communication problems not realized or imagined, or the possibility of views based on false or missing information, or with the intention of being used for entertainment purposes only, and not as a definitive judgment on the actions, character, or reputation of an organization, individual, or groups of individuals, with the intent of communicating with a limited group of people, and not the general public, however no distribution restrictions apply for fair use purposes described by the US Copyright Office, if no other restrictions are present or communicated, with all commercial proceeds associated with the distribution of the content to remain the sole possession of the original author.

d) Any reference to copyrighted material is done in the spirit of fair use, to illustrate the context of a discussion regarding public events for reference purposes that adds to the conversation, for which that discussion constitutes a new and separate piece of intellectual property, for which the referenced copyrighted material can not convey by itself, and that the author reserves the right to retain any profits from the newly created intellectual property. This term also serves to promote the referenced copyrighted material, without necessarily endorsing the material for any particular fitness, use, or purpose, for which the purpose of fair use referral law was created for, through inclusion of a partial, but not whole, body of works that the copyright fair use reference applies, for which the intent of all terms of this disclaimer apply to that reference of a copyrighted work.

e) Any humor if used, is not intended to offend people, and may be designed to apply the principals of peer pressure through reverse examination to accomplish the communication of principals or ideas that consist of traditional or proposed social values that are proven to advance the common good, and are not meant to discredit, disparage or demean any person or entities in any professional or personal manner, by attempting to share through the eyes or opinion of the author, for which it is expected that you read at your own risk, with no liability held to the author or any third parties who may store, transfer, or forward this message to others, in the traditions of free speech, fair use, and to play a positive role in a society that believes that graphically depicting male homosexuals having sex, and other unusual sex acts is considered free speech or that the use of abortion to limit Negros, Latinos, and other races from "spreading the wealth around" as a "matter of privacy" (which the author does not condone).

f) The use of humor is a known ingredient in providing teachable moments, and to validate and even demonstrate artistic expressions that are not shared by others, as demonstrated by many valuable scientific observations that were scoffed at in the past, yet proven to be quite valid decades later, upon which the humor used in all electronic communications by the author are based, in the principals and traditions of free speech and pursuit of happiness, and may not be a representation of others, including God.

g) It is the opinion of the author that you respect people when you consider their views, by reflecting their thoughts or actions against your own, which may include use of language that conveys an emotional depth that is to be imagined, but not enacted through use of language that accurately, or inaccurately describes the situation, circumstance, or idea, which does not imply that any action occur other than the consideration of the thought, for which beyond the author has no control, or liability for the action of the reader as presented in all terms of this diclaimer, and may simply be the venting of emotions with the intent of no consequence by the author to an audience the author assumes will understand the message and intent, and wishes to hear those views.

h) Since all intellectual property, discussions and other communications this disclaimer applies to, either in written, or electronic form, subscribe to the terms described in paragraph (e) and (g) of this disclaimer, under no circumstances are any communications meant to violate the terms of any electronic harassment laws which include the word “harm”, for which the author understands to be limited to the definition of physical harm (not self inflicted mental harm) that requires immediate medical attention based solely or in part by the communications of the author, regardless of whether the author chooses to remain anonymous or not.

i) It is the intention and opinion of the author that History is full of individuals that are not harmed by criticism, and in fact such criticism can motivate and inspire them to prove their critics wrong. Based on this historical evidence, any alleged mental harm amounts to self inflicted injury not treatable by either medical or other professionals (despite the fact that many people live from the profits of lies through gradual illusion, without judicial interference), for which the author has no control over the mental development of any potential reader prior to the discovery or reading of the material for which this disclaimer applies, as evident by the necessity that speech is to be protected by law as determined by the founders of the United States of America, who, in the opinion of the author, wrote the legal framework, which was created by God, not slaves.

j) Additional use of automated anonymous page use tracking computer scripts (web page programs) or advertisements may be licensed by www.google.com, for bandwidth verification, or determination of potential advertisement opportunities subject to all other terms described in this disclaimer.

k) Advertisements that may appear are not necessarily endorsed by the author, either by admission, or by silence, nor are any electronic links that may transport the reader to other web pages, sites, or computers, and such links that may be provided for all or any of the following known or unknown purposes, but not limited to, informational, educational, and for the purpose of giving copy right credit referral information under the terms outlined in the conditions applied to the term "fair use" regarding conversations and print under US Copy Right Law, and for which the author assumes no liability for any particular use, fitness, or legality there of, any link, current, past, or future, which the reader should use at their sole risk, with no liability to the author, or any other party that may store, transmit, or otherwise facilitate use of the material for which this disclaimer applies.

l) It is the opinion of the author that effective 1 December, 2009, the proposed regulations from the FTC violate the first and fifth amendments of the United States Constitution, by infringing through economic affliction the burden without compensation all financial details concerning the communications of both free enterprise and opinion, and other civil rights such as "punishment must be fair" and not at the "discretion" of public officials, or that advertisers are assumed to be guilty of deception when United States law provides that you are innocent before being proven guilty, and are in fact demonstrations that there are current members of Congress that neither understand the spirit of the law our founding fathers made for the United States of America, or understand how they work in the opinion of the author, as of October 10th, 2009, especially in light of anticipated, and hopefully defeated, legislative taxes relating to energy use and the burden of publishers and advertisers to comply with the law and manage the environment, and in light that there are various consumer protection agencies, including the Better Business Bureau, which has free consumer information which preclude the use and need for excessive government regulation that burdens business with obstacles it may sense that it can not overcome without inflicting harm on the business plan or survival ability of the business to provide advertised, goods and or services.

m) Although the content provided meets or exceeds those new requirements to the knowledge of the author, and modifications to version 1.3 or 1.4 of this disclaimer is a result of the opinion of the author that “blogging” is another definition for a potentially infinite number or forms of electronic communication, as such the author will retroactively apply this version, 1.5 to all forms of previous communications, when and wherever possible, as time allows, in order to properly convey the intention of the author and to demonstrate an enthusiasm to comply with the law, and not enthusiastically pursue getting high on cocaine as often as possible as Barack Hussein Obama has admitted in his book (paraphrase, synopsis), according to (mmm, mmm, mmm (sonic emphasis)) Rush Hudson Limbaugh, (mmm mmm mmm (sonic emphasis)).

n) Use of this disclaimer for either personal or professional use is permitted with no restrictions. These restrictions or disclaimers do not prohibit the author from pursuing or communicating in a truthful manner, or guarantee that the audience will understand all things as intended, and, or result in being called incoherent, or even a Chicken Chaser!

o) This disclaimer is meant to establish the intent of the author who may participate in message forums, or create other written or electronic forms of communication to comply with current law, and may be revoked without prior notice, due to circumstances beyond the author's control, changes in the law, or for any of the purposes, terms, or conditions that may be in effect or described by this disclaimer, or to changes in this disclaimer that the author may clarify in a revised version of this disclaimer.

p) This disclaimer is attached to this message, and retroactively applies to all previous forms of communication by the author, and is done so because there is no recognized central suppository of a public disclaimer recognized by the Government of the United States to the author, and as such, the legal imperative of the author is to apply this disclaimer to all manner of correspondence as the author seems fit or prudent, so that no misunderstandings occur, or to comply with past, current or future revisions of the law, due to any of, but not limited to, any or all of the terms, partial terms, or combination of terms, of this disclaimer, which is derived from the freedom of speech, for it appears to the author that the zeal of lawmakers to take away free speech outweigh the providence of attaching this disclaimer to all correspondence for which this applies, and any inconvenience for which this presents, is the result of simply complying with the law, and not to inconvenience the reader.

Your friends? Make that a quintet of trolls then!
I, personally, would be ashamed to be seen to be associated with such an assortment of clowns and reprobates.

Your opinion...

So you think bullying is fair? I shudder to think what you might have been like in the playground at school. Your "call to arms" was very reminiscent of a gang gathering to beat up on a single individual.

Ah, those days of bliss. Sad they they are no more. You've "outed" yourself and can never go back to that anonymity that I wish you still had!

Gregg, by your own admission, you led the trolls here.
Would you rather I wrote, "a misguided fool led the trolls here!". Hey, every poster here would still know it was you, Gregg.

Anyway, is Gregg your real name? I personally doubt it as you trolls are well known for your use of pseudonyms

No need for me to stir the pot. The quintet is doing a sterling job on that without any assistance from me.

No, that is what killfilters are for. Trouble is, back in SCT, when you engage the killfilters to sift out the rot, there is precious little left. The same will be true for RRS should the trolls get free rein.

I'm very pleased to see that you are starting to think. I might add, it's not before time! If we're lucky, you may soon see what a goose you look to the rest of us here with your enlistment in the quintet of trolls!

Take care? Is that a hint of a threat? I trust you're capable of Mayhap you'll do better back in your old school playground. You might have frightened the children there!

I still travel but these days I restrict myself to traveling where I want to go, not where others want me to go.
Before I retired, I was frequently interstate and overseas. There was one year where I was lucky to be at home a week in every month. Travel quickly loses its gloss in those circumstances.

I got out of it after a couple minutes too, it's all nonsense I've seem before, just reedited from entire clips to the little chunks of video that seems to be a hallmark of kookvids of all kinds. I love the spooky music on the 911 kookvids. it just makes it funnier.

The out of all context editing on videos seems to be something that draws the kooks like shit does to flies. To me, it's both amusing as hell, and scary at the same time. Scary as in there are people out there actually taking these videos seriously.

As everyone knows we're hosting the Steve Kombat Kraven Krammer Bangkok Arrest Anniversary BASH on Jan 8th 2010 to be held at rec.knives, sct, rec.radio.shortwave, and rec.cooking...for those unaware "the Kraven" was given a "cease and dissist" order from the Thai Police and summoned to Thai HQ's to face charges of sabatoging Cheesy Bob's Yogurt and Pickle business in Chaing Mai (flooded the place with non stop faxes)...you can find pictures and threads in the UseNet archives...so we're celebrating the day...why not join in the fun!!!

New business, to be held the day of the BASH, will be the nomination of BushcraftGreg into the UseNet Distinguished Troll Society...Any members of said Society (or non members) wishing to voice their opinions may do so in this thread or any of the numerous threads on the Day of the BASH...Good luck to the Bushcraft on his pending nomination...

I "was" going to answer parts of your post in order, till I read your above quoted remark at the end. So I'll just cut to the chase of it.

A threat? Really? You thought of that as a threat? I love delving into the minds of people such as yourself...lol.... just usually not on usenet. Do you know psychologically speaking what that says about you, I mean, your response when I simply said " take care and I mean that ?" - followed up with a smiley emoticon?

I now know your weakness, you slipped up, see Krypsie/Kramer or whoever you claim to be....with people such as yourself....you just start blabbering and hammering those keys to try an convince others of your intellectual prowess and the lack thereof of your mark. Just like M.Bryant and just like Kramer. Color me not impressed.

I could refer you to some great texts and studies as to what I am speaking about but I seriously doubt you would be interested. You would read the part and or parts that I am speaking about and then you would feel warmth throughout your face.....more than likely - actually it would be visual if someone was watching you. Your pulse would go up somewhat dramatically, dramatically for just the visualization of words and not a object. Then of course....lol...feelings of embarrasment and anger.

Is that what happened to you today Krypsie/Kramer? I now know, no matter what you're response is.....that it happens quite often to you. I found the chink in your usenet armor so too speak. Of course, this leads into your real life also but the difference is - in your real life no one "really" pays much attention to you so you find your power hammering away at your keys trying to impress anyone that would be stupid enough to not see right through you.

Remember YOU followed ME into MY group - - not the other way around. PLEASE LEAVE ME ALONE unless you want to talk about the hobby of radio/shortwave - anything less than that colors YOU as the usenet bully. <shaking my head and REALLY rolling my eyes>

Obviously the word "hint" doesn't figure in your vocabulary.

It's what many other trolls have said before you and will say after you too. Must admit, the other trolls were a trifle more overt but the same nonetheless.

Great, now try to exploit what you "perceive" as my weakness. It's the way you bullies work, isn't it? Dig in, find a weak spot, then exploit it to hell.

> Krypsie/Kramer or whoever you claim to be....with people such as

Not Kramer for sure. I don't think I've claimed to be anyone in particular. I don't think Kramer and I even reside in the same country.

I'm not here to impress you, just point out your trollish behaviour.

I'm too old to get embarrassed by the activities of people such as yourself. You just keep on bullying people behind your internet cloak of anonymity secure in the knowledge that you will never have to face them in the real world. It's easy for you to be brave in this instance. If anyone should feel a flush of embarrassment, it would be you.

Remember! You came into groups I frequented and then assisted the resident trolls in destroying them.

For that matter, since when have you been the "owner" of RRS? I know you have been trying to act like a policeman in here but you don't own RRS by any stretch of the imagination nor do you have the right to determine who can or can not post here.
It's only common basic decency on the part of its participants that keeps a group healthy. You have been showing precious little of that lately, less now that you have teamed up with your troll pals. You and your quintet of trolls will soon have this group on its knees. Will you feel proud of yourself then?

But you didn't want to discuss Thai culture when you came into SCT nor did you want to discuss knife topics in RK! In fact, I think you focussed on EVERY OTHER TOPIC but those, especially when one of your troll mates bought into them.

> - anything less than that colors YOU as the usenet bully.

So let me get this clear now. You can troll around the various usenet groups bullying and harrassing people as much as you like BUT, according to you, it's not troll like behaviour when YOU do it. When somebody points out the hypocrisy of this to you, your reaction is to accuse them of being a "usenet bully". Give me a break!

Dude, you are freeking baked in the head, that's all I have to say about that. I've never posted in whatever Thai group you're talking about, the only way you can stretch that to fit your delusion is if I responded to a post in the knife group and someone had crossposted it, that's not my fault.

I completely stand by what I said about you and that is that. Your weak try at misdirection is noted and again very telling. You are the freeking troll "Mr. Policeman." <rolling my eyes> I think either you are Kramer's sock or you have an extremely embarrasing IMO man crush on him.

You need to go soak your teeth and have a glass of warm milk and go to bed, your attempt at being a usenet Rambo/
Kramer/ Bryant isn't working just because your delusional senile brain

I know I won't be on usenet at your age taking up for one of the most notorious bullcrappers in usenet history. Go to bed Grandpa, you don't deserve the respect that a gentleman of your age warrants.

Again I say LEAVE ME ALONE you old wretched hardened heart of a man. Now I know you are going to respond because well...lol...I just know.....and I will let you get in the last word so you can feel the victory that all usenet bullies crave. Old man, I would be ashamed of myself if I were you. So if YOU keep typing my name in your posts it really shows who the troublemaker is, sheesh. <sad>

"Pandora nearly beats CBS in Online Radio"

CBS Radio is number one - but look at who's number two, Pandora.

Pandora, the company with exactly zero terrestrial radio stations.
Pandora, the company that has no Arbitron nor any need for Arbitron.
Pandora, the company that actually charges folks who use the service the most.

Pandora is a handful of streams away from being the leading source of online radio in the US (among those that Ando measures).

During September, Pandora was launched more than 80 million times - 20 million more than CBS Radio and 60 million more than Clear Channel and its hundreds of streaming brands.

60 million more!

Recognize, of course, that this industry is young. Recognize, of course, that it will only grow.

But recognize, most importantly, that your station - our industry - need not be the leading players or even significant players in this world unless we specifically set out to do so.

You don't win at online radio by repurposing your over-the-air signal online.

You win at online radio by providing an experience matched to the digital medium and the expectations of a digital audience. You win by catering to the audience, not to your pre-existing over-the-air brands. You win by thinking digital, not by thinking analog belongs digital.

This is radio's game to lose.

In a thinly veiled disguise to steal votes, Democrats twist the arms of members of Congress to pass a health care bill that amounts to double dipping -- No health care bill that is designed to "reduce costs" can ignore the insurance paid by car owners who are mandated to cover bodily injury coverage? To say that we must all have health insurance and bodily injury coverage if you happen to own a car is double dipping?

Voters will not only have to quit spending scarce dollars in the economy out of protest, but out of necessity? Those of us who actually plan our budgets realize that there is no disposable income for this kind of luxury tax, and we WILL stop money, not out of choice, but out of necessity?

Unemployment is going to SKYROCKET?

How's that hope and change, from a big defense contractor with no bid contracts, who unlike Halliburton, owns a big media arm -- GE?

How's that demand for a closure of Gitmo when there are no jury of peers in the United States (that are loyal to the United States) working for ya?

What does it take to wake up Democrats being hood winked by communists?

a) The views expressed by this website and the author to include all electronic forms of communication are not representative of advertisers, or other third parties that may store and or transmit the messages from this private computer, which you may observe at your own risk, with no liability to the authors, or any party related to transmitting, storing, or any other aspect of the material involved, including email correspondence, which is not necessary to the function of the website, and may or may not be archived due to other limitations incorporated into the licensed email software in use at the time such as automated spam or virus filters. No personal information exchanged will be shared without your consent, or provided to third parties with out the express permission of the parties and, or, individuals concerned.

b) The author(s) of this content and those who may interact with it in various known or unknown electronic methods do not give permission to any third parties to share or provide private personal information who may operate as part of any type of electronic or written communications system, including all parties, who may technically intercept communications due to the nature of network conditions beyond both the author's legal and physical control, unless those communications represent violations of the law, upon which the author, and or web site will cooperate to pursue any legal remedies.

c) The views expressed by the author or website may or may not contain factual information, due to the use of sarcasm or parody. The views may or may not be complete, either by design, to pre-empt being called a liar even if telling the truth, or by error due to typographical, grammer, or other technical communication problems not realized or imagined, or the possibility of views based on false or missing information, or with the intention of being used for entertainment purposes only, and not as a definitive judgment on the actions, character, or reputation of an organization, individual, or groups of individuals, with the intent of communicating with a limited group of people, and not the general public, however no distribution restrictions apply for fair use purposes described by the US Copyright Office, if no other restrictions are present or communicated, with all commercial proceeds associated with the distribution of the content to remain the sole possession of the original author.

d) Any reference to copyrighted material is done in the spirit of fair use, to illustrate the context of a discussion regarding public events for reference purposes that adds to the conversation, for which that discussion constitutes a new and separate piece of intellectual property, for which the referenced copyrighted material can not convey by itself, and that the author reserves the right to retain any profits from the newly created intellectual property. This term also serves to promote the referenced copyrighted material, without necessarily endorsing the material for any particular fitness, use, or purpose, for which the purpose of fair use referral law was created for, through inclusion of a partial, but not whole, body of works that the copyright fair use reference applies, for which the intent of all terms of this disclaimer apply to that reference of a copyrighted work.

e) Any humor if used, is not intended to offend people, and may be designed to apply the principals of peer pressure through reverse examination to accomplish the communication of principals or ideas that consist of traditional or proposed social values that are proven to advance the common good, and are not meant to discredit, disparage or demean any person or entities in any professional or personal manner, by attempting to share through the eyes or opinion of the author, for which it is expected that you read at your own risk, with no liability held to the author or any third parties who may store, transfer, or forward this message to others, in the traditions of free speech, fair use, and to play a positive role in a society that believes that graphically depicting male homosexuals having sex, and other unusual sex acts is considered free speech or that the use of abortion to limit Negros, Latinos, and other races from "spreading the wealth around" as a "matter of privacy" (which the author does not condone).

f) The use of humor is a known ingredient in providing teachable moments, and to validate and even demonstrate artistic expressions that are not shared by others, as demonstrated by many valuable scientific observations that were scoffed at in the past, yet proven to be quite valid decades later, upon which the humor used in all electronic communications by the author are based, in the principals and traditions of free speech and pursuit of happiness, and may not be a representation of others, including God.

g) It is the opinion of the author that you respect people when you consider their views, by reflecting their thoughts or actions against your own, which may include use of language that conveys an emotional depth that is to be imagined, but not enacted through use of language that accurately, or inaccurately describes the situation, circumstance, or idea, which does not imply that any action occur other than the consideration of the thought, for which beyond the author has no control, or liability for the action of the reader as presented in all terms of this diclaimer, and may simply be the venting of emotions with the intent of no consequence by the author to an audience the author assumes will understand the message and intent, and wishes to hear those views.

h) Since all intellectual property, discussions and other communications this disclaimer applies to, either in written, or electronic form, subscribe to the terms described in paragraph (e) and (g) of this disclaimer, under no circumstances are any communications meant to violate the terms of any electronic harassment laws which include the word “harm”, for which the author understands to be limited to the definition of physical harm (not self inflicted mental harm) that requires immediate medical attention based solely or in part by the communications of the author, regardless of whether the author chooses to remain anonymous or not.

i) It is the intention and opinion of the author that History is full of individuals that are not harmed by criticism, and in fact such criticism can motivate and inspire them to prove their critics wrong. Based on this historical evidence, any alleged mental harm amounts to self inflicted injury not treatable by either medical or other professionals (despite the fact that many people live from the profits of lies through gradual illusion, without judicial interference), for which the author has no control over the mental development of any potential reader prior to the discovery or reading of the material for which this disclaimer applies, as evident by the necessity that speech is to be protected by law as determined by the founders of the United States of America, who, in the opinion of the author, wrote the legal framework, which was created by God, not slaves.

j) Additional use of automated anonymous page use tracking computer scripts (web page programs) or advertisements may be licensed by www.google.com, for bandwidth verification, or determination of potential advertisement opportunities subject to all other terms described in this disclaimer.

k) Advertisements that may appear are not necessarily endorsed by the author, either by admission, or by silence, nor are any electronic links that may transport the reader to other web pages, sites, or computers, and such links that may be provided for all or any of the following known or unknown purposes, but not limited to, informational, educational, and for the purpose of giving copy right credit referral information under the terms outlined in the conditions applied to the term "fair use" regarding conversations and print under US Copy Right Law, and for which the author assumes no liability for any particular use, fitness, or legality there of, any link, current, past, or future, which the reader should use at their sole risk, with no liability to the author, or any other party that may store, transmit, or otherwise facilitate use of the material for which this disclaimer applies.

l) It is the opinion of the author that effective 1 December, 2009, the proposed regulations from the FTC violate the first and fifth amendments of the United States Constitution, by infringing through economic affliction the burden without compensation all financial details concerning the communications of both free enterprise and opinion, and other civil rights such as "punishment must be fair" and not at the "discretion" of public officials, or that advertisers are assumed to be guilty of deception when United States law provides that you are innocent before being proven guilty, and are in fact demonstrations that there are current members of Congress that neither understand the spirit of the law our founding fathers made for the United States of America, or understand how they work in the opinion of the author, as of October 10th, 2009, especially in light of anticipated, and hopefully defeated, legislative taxes relating to energy use and the burden of publishers and advertisers to comply with the law and manage the environment, and in light that there are various consumer protection agencies, including the Better Business Bureau, which has free consumer information which preclude the use and need for excessive government regulation that burdens business with obstacles it may sense that it can not overcome without inflicting harm on the business plan or survival ability of the business to provide advertised, goods and or services.

m) Although the content provided meets or exceeds those new requirements to the knowledge of the author, and modifications to version 1.3 or 1.4 of this disclaimer is a result of the opinion of the author that “blogging” is another definition for a potentially infinite number or forms of electronic communication, as such the author will retroactively apply this version, 1.5 to all forms of previous communications, when and wherever possible, as time allows, in order to properly convey the intention of the author and to demonstrate an enthusiasm to comply with the law, and not enthusiastically pursue getting high on cocaine as often as possible as Barack Hussein Obama has admitted in his book (paraphrase, synopsis), according to (mmm, mmm, mmm (sonic emphasis)) Rush Hudson Limbaugh, (mmm mmm mmm (sonic emphasis)).

n) Use of this disclaimer for either personal or professional use is permitted with no restrictions. These restrictions or disclaimers do not prohibit the author from pursuing or communicating in a truthful manner, or guarantee that the audience will understand all things as intended, and, or result in being called incoherent, or even a Chicken Chaser!

o) This disclaimer is meant to establish the intent of the author who may participate in message forums, or create other written or electronic forms of communication to comply with current law, and may be revoked without prior notice, due to circumstances beyond the author's control, changes in the law, or for any of the purposes, terms, or conditions that may be in effect or described by this disclaimer, or to changes in this disclaimer that the author may clarify in a revised version of this disclaimer.

p) This disclaimer is attached to this message, and retroactively applies to all previous forms of communication by the author, and is done so because there is no recognized central suppository of a public disclaimer recognized by the Government of the United States to the author, and as such, the legal imperative of the author is to apply this disclaimer to all manner of correspondence as the author seems fit or prudent, so that no misunderstandings occur, or to comply with past, current or future revisions of the law, due to any of, but not limited to, any or all of the terms, partial terms, or combination of terms, of this disclaimer, which is derived from the freedom of speech, for it appears to the author that the zeal of lawmakers to take away free speech outweigh the providence of attaching this disclaimer to all correspondence for which this applies, and any inconvenience for which this presents, is the result of simply complying with the law, and not to inconvenience the reader.

My ancestory includes several races from Europe. Do you see me hopping on a plane tracing those people down, demanding that I have a share of my imaginary inheritence? HELL NO. You know what, if I can't do what my grandfathers did, create my own wealth, then I DONT WANT IT, because obviously the only way they got such wealth, was to be mean and cruel to others?

How do I know that the American Indian did not wipe off the face of North America several thousand years ago all Negros -- because there was no decent entertainment like Fox News?

It's time American Negros and all other people that listen to this kind of crap get bitch slapped in the face to wake them out of their trance while they walk off a cliff? It's too late to undo the tangled web that our grandfathers made, but we have something to say about not repeating their mistakes?

How's that hope and change by turning your citizens into evil zombies working for ya?

Quote: He was standing in the hole waiting for something to develop....and WHAP! He got developed? (John Earl Maddon, unrelated conversational quote, a scenario however that applied to a football player who thought he knew what was going on in the game, and got schooled, seemed like an appropriate metaphoric epiphany at this point in the conversation?)

Resistance if futile, you must comply.......with the truth!

Can you smell el el el el el el el el .....what the Rock of Truth, who has the smartest eyebrow in the Universe, and the whitest teeth known to man, is .....cooking?

Being that this is the most exciting, most entertaining, fact finding, brain busting, fun loving, liberal egg shell mind crunching, invincible smacketh downeth erectus among us, you can't see the truth coming, but you know it is anyway, sonic boom of Conservatism, and, most powerful keyboard in the world,

ARE YA MOTIVATED?

Hell YEAH!

What do you say Professor Oui Weed Obama? Are you Oui Weed Up today? Surrounded by men that go Oui Oui? Trying to grab enough power so we have to ask to go Oui Oui? Just say Nein, be all you can be? Better

Free than Need. So Time Magazine will write an article about President Obama that explains excessive government regulation is not communism?

Being that this is the most exciting, most entertaining, fact finding, brain busting, fun loving, liberal egg shell mind crunching, invincible smacketh downeth erectus among us, you can't see the truth coming, but you know it is anyway, sonic boom of Conservatism, and, most powerful keyboard in the world, you've got to ask yourself one question.....

Does Temporary Contractor President Obama make you feel stupid?

Well are you?

Gee, I thought all the rag heads walking around were some kind of fashion statement, why, this catches me with total surprise, and I had NO IDEA that muslim mosques were not in Washington DC or next to military bases, why that is some kind of silly conspiracy theory? No nead to put all prisoners in solitary confinement for their own safety, after all these are only rumors that militants of Islam only successfully recruit the poor, the uneducated, those prone to committ violence, and all they have to do is comit a crime to get into a closed environment to talk to all these wonderful citizens of the United States?

Don't worry, when the rumors of rat tunnels were confirmed in Vietnam, American soldiers were guaranteed all the fun in the sun they could ask for? Don't ask, don't tell about Gitmo, or that a jury of peers (loyal to the United States) does not exist in America, where a new major no bid defense contractor, who owns an arm of the media (unlike Halliburton) GE, is given all kinds of wonderful new projects to work on, because they support (you fill in the blank)?

I don't know Taco Smell, why don't you ask why Hermain Cain is not a Republican Skin Head that should go to jail, because he is Republican? I don't appreciate your hallucinigenic stretch of the imagination that skin heads that are skin heads because they anticipate going to prison, because they love violence (future Islam converts?) and are probably addicted to meth, may commit violent acts that put them in jail? Are all bald people "skin heads"? Is Van Jones a "skin head"?

And what kind of person are you to suggest that rape in prisons is OK? What if you commit a crime? Rape is not punishment, it is a crime, and then you expect people to listen to your political justifications when you have demonstrated that you have the common sense of the living dead?

I don't appreciate your hate speech.

I think if you look back in history to the clinton administration, you will find most of the housingfiasco was caused by regulations instituted at that time. You will also notice that the terrorist problem worsened significantly during clintons tenure, but was not given a high priority on the "fix-it list.". Hence, the attacks of 9/11. Unfortunately, no matter who you blame for the current ills here in the U.S., we still have to look at what the democratic party has determined, to be the solutions. And, I'm afraid that in most cases, their cures are going to be worse than the problems. There is too much money being given out and the obamaadministration is aware that we don't have that money. So the US is just getting further in debt. At some point that has to catch up with us. The youth summer employment program was designed to give 14-24 year ds jobs and work experience. Part of the reasoning behind that was that that segment of the population spends almost all of what they make. Yet retail sales were way down for the month of July. Makes one wonder where that money went that the adolesents were paid.

Oh, Don't worry Major_Debacle (who would not surprise me is the same person) we're requesting that you be banned also for hate speech and for good measure, we will be asking web masters at google to just do a courtesy check to see if you are attempting to access computer resources while using a false identity, which would constitute hacking, which I am fairly certain, is not part of the Google terms of service agreement, and that all your archived posts under that identity using Google resources should be deleted permanently from the system.

So all you usenet members out there that are sick of this crap, start reporting abuse, and we will put a stop to something these internet users agreed to not do in the first place.

And these people have the gall to pitch their political ideas?

Universal Legal Disclaimer for the Public Domain, Version 1.5, dated Nov 7th, 2009 (which supersedes all previous versions, to which this new version applies)

a) The views expressed by this website and the author to include all electronic forms of communication are not representative of advertisers, or other third parties that may store and or transmit the messages from this private computer, which you may observe at your own risk, with no liability to the authors, or any party related to transmitting, storing, or any other aspect of the material involved, including email correspondence, which is not necessary to the function of the website, and may or may not be archived due to other limitations incorporated into the licensed email software in use at the time such as automated spam or virus filters. No personal information exchanged will be shared without your consent, or provided to third parties with out the express permission of the parties and, or, individuals concerned.

b) The author(s) of this content and those who may interact with it in various known or unknown electronic methods do not give permission to any third parties to share or provide private personal information who may operate as part of any type of electronic or written communications system, including all parties, who may technically intercept communications due to the nature of network conditions beyond both the author's legal and physical control, unless those communications represent violations of the law, upon which the author, and or web site will cooperate to pursue any legal remedies.

c) The views expressed by the author or website may or may not contain factual information, due to the use of sarcasm or parody. The views may or may not be complete, either by design, to pre-empt being called a liar even if telling the truth, or by error due to typographical, grammer, or other technical communication problems not realized or imagined, or the possibility of views based on false or missing information, or with the intention of being used for entertainment purposes only, and not as a definitive judgment on the actions, character, or reputation of an organization, individual, or groups of individuals, with the intent of communicating with a limited group of people, and not the general public, however no distribution restrictions apply for fair use purposes described by the US Copyright Office, if no other restrictions are present or communicated, with all

d) Any reference to copyrighted material is done in the spirit of fair use, to illustrate the context of a discussion regarding public events for reference purposes that adds to the conversation, for which that discussion constitutes a new and separate piece of intellectual property, for which the referenced copyrighted material can not convey by itself, and that the author reserves the right to retain any profits from the newly created intellectual property. This term also serves to promote the referenced copyrighted material, without necessarily endorsing the material for any particular fitness, use, or purpose, for which the purpose of fair use referral law was created for, through inclusion of a partial, but not whole, body of works that the copyright fair use reference applies, for which the intent of all terms of this disclaimer apply to that reference of a copyrighted work.

e) Any humor if used, is not intended to offend people, and may be designed to apply the principals of peer pressure through reverse examination to accomplish the communication of principals or ideas that consist of traditional or proposed social values that are proven to advance the common good, and are not meant to discredit, disparage or demean any person or entities in any professional or personal manner, by attempting to share through the eyes or opinion of the author, for which it is expected that you read at your own risk, with no liability held to the author or any third parties who may store, transfer, or forward this message to others, in the traditions of free speech, fair use, and to play a positive role in a society that believes that graphically depicting male homosexuals having sex, and other unusual sex acts is considered free speech or that the use of abortion to limit Negros, Latinos, and other races from "spreading the wealth around" as a "matter of privacy" (which the author does not condone).

f) The use of humor is a known ingredient in providing teachable moments, and to validate and even demonstrate artistic expressions that are not shared by others, as demonstrated by many valuable scientific observations that were scoffed at in the past, yet proven to be quite valid decades later, upon which the humor used in all electronic communications by the author are based, in the principals and traditions of free speech and pursuit of happiness, and may not be a representation of others, including God.

g) It is the opinion of the author that you respect people when you consider their views, by reflecting their thoughts or actions against your own, which may include use of language that conveys an emotional depth that is to be imagined, but not enacted through use of language that accurately, or inaccurately describes the situation, circumstance, or idea, which does not imply that any action occur other than the consideration of the thought, for which beyond the author has no control, or liability for the action of the reader as presented in all terms of this diclaimer, and may simply be the venting of emotions with the intent of no consequence by the author to an audience the author assumes will understand the message and intent, and wishes to hear those views.

h) Since all intellectual property, discussions and other communications this disclaimer applies to, either in written, or electronic form, subscribe to the terms described in paragraph (e) and (g) of this disclaimer, under no circumstances are any communications meant to violate the terms of any electronic harassment laws which include the word “harm”, for which the author understands to be limited to the definition of physical harm (not self inflicted mental harm) that requires immediate medical attention based solely or in part by the communications of the author, regardless of whether the author chooses to remain anonymous or not.

i) It is the intention and opinion of the author that History is full of individuals that are not harmed by criticism, and in fact such criticism can motivate and inspire them to prove their critics wrong. Based on this historical evidence, any alleged mental harm amounts to self inflicted injury not treatable by either medical or other professionals (despite the fact that many people live from the profits of lies through gradual illusion, without judicial interference), for which the author has no control over the mental development of any potential reader prior to the discovery or reading of the material for which this disclaimer applies, as evident by the necessity that speech is to be protected by law as determined by the founders of the United States of America, who, in the opinion of the author, wrote the legal framework, which was created by God, not slaves.

j) Additional use of automated anonymous page use tracking computer scripts (web page programs) or advertisements may be licensed by www.google.com, for bandwidth verification, or determination of potential advertisement opportunities subject to all other terms described in this disclaimer.

k) Advertisements that may appear are not necessarily endorsed by the author, either by admission, or by silence, nor are any electronic links that may transport the reader to other web pages, sites, or computers, and such links that may be provided for all or any of the following known or unknown purposes, but not limited to, informational, educational, and for the purpose of giving copy right credit referral information under the terms outlined in the conditions applied to the term "fair use" regarding conversations and print under US Copy Right Law, and for which the author assumes no liability for any particular use, fitness, or legality there of, any link, current, past, or future, which the reader should use at their sole risk, with no liability to the author, or any other party that may store, transmit, or otherwise facilitate use of the material for which this disclaimer applies.

l) It is the opinion of the author that effective 1 December, 2009, the proposed regulations from the FTC violate the first and fifth amendments of the United States Constitution, by infringing through economic affliction the burden without compensation all financial details concerning the communications of both free enterprise and opinion, and other civil rights such as "punishment must be fair" and not at the "discretion" of public officials, or that advertisers are assumed to be guilty of deception when United States law provides that you are innocent before being proven guilty, and are in fact demonstrations that there are current members of Congress that neither understand the spirit of the law our founding fathers made for the United States of America, or understand how they work in the opinion of the author, as of October 10th, 2009, especially in light of anticipated, and hopefully defeated, legislative taxes relating to energy use and the burden of publishers and advertisers to comply with the law and manage the environment, and in light that there are various consumer protection agencies, including the Better Business Bureau, which has free consumer information which preclude the use and need for excessive government regulation that burdens business with obstacles it may sense that it can not overcome without inflicting harm on the business plan or survival ability of the business to provide advertised, goods and or services.

m) Although the content provided meets or exceeds those new requirements to the knowledge of the author, and modifications to version 1.3 or 1.4 of this disclaimer is a result of the opinion of the author that “blogging” is another definition for a potentially infinite number or forms of electronic communication, as such the author will retroactively apply this version, 1.5 to all forms of previous communications, when and wherever possible, as time allows, in order to properly convey the intention of the author and to demonstrate an enthusiasm to comply with the law, and not enthusiastically pursue getting high on cocaine as often as possible as Barack Hussein Obama has admitted in his book (paraphrase, synopsis), according to (mmm, mmm, mmm (sonic emphasis)) Rush Hudson Limbaugh, (mmm mmm mmm (sonic emphasis)).

n) Use of this disclaimer for either personal or professional use is permitted with no restrictions. These restrictions or disclaimers do not prohibit the author from pursuing or communicating in a truthful manner, or guarantee that the audience will understand all things as intended, and, or result in being called incoherent, or even a Chicken Chaser!

o) This disclaimer is meant to establish the intent of the author who may participate in message forums, or create other written or electronic forms of communication to comply with current law, and may be revoked without prior notice, due to circumstances beyond the author's control, changes in the law, or for any of the purposes, terms, or conditions that may be in effect or described by this disclaimer, or to changes in this disclaimer that the author may clarify in a revised version of this disclaimer.

p) This disclaimer is attached to this message, and retroactively applies to all previous forms of communication by the author, and is done so because there is no recognized central suppository of a public disclaimer recognized by the Government of the United States to the author, and as such, the legal imperative of the author is to apply this disclaimer to all manner of correspondence as the author seems fit or prudent, so that no misunderstandings occur, or to comply with past, current or future revisions of the law, due to any of, but not limited to, any or all of the terms, partial terms, or combination of terms, of this disclaimer, which is derived from the freedom of speech, for it appears to the author that the zeal of lawmakers to take away free speech outweigh the providence of attaching this disclaimer to all correspondence for which this applies, and any inconvenience for which this presents, is the result of simply complying with the law, and not to inconvenience the reader.

Yes, as a matter of fact I do report message posts that threaten the President and Democrat members of Congress, I think it is our civic duty, and I know that the wrong people in office will loose the elections. would you see more of a bunch of fruitcakes on usenet trying to get Speaker Pelosi harmed etc., if it were not for users like me?

It is not necessary to give yourself a pornographic nickname, it is not necessary to say the f-bumb (there are other words that are more meaningful) in every post, and it's pretty dang strange when you see a user visit nothing but forums dedicated to crime, gun shows, politics, and other wierd forums, and talks about nothing but the most awful crime events? This is not a person that visits occasionally, either, this is a pattern, (sound familiar), and anyone who bothered to use a search engine other than google can pull up entire lists of who is on what group, and how many messages they posted.

I'm the biggest fan of free speech, but this stuff is clearly harrassment and worse? Just ask yourself, what news groups are you visiting, what are you saying, what are you talking about, what is your theme, are you using a false identity? If I am a web master at google it would not take but 10 minutes to look at some of these users, ban them, and delete all the archives from google, believe me, we are not going to miss anything.

Don't like what I say, it's not personal, we are at least expected to agree on common things, and constant (this stuff is not an occasional ooops) references to violence, rape, sex, crime, while being a potty mouth, if that's all you can say, why shouldn't other members of usenet complain to get you banned?

Well, if I am the only one complaining then you got nothing to worry about, since I am the minority? Uh Oh, did I just use a political term that should get ME banned? Why should google archive messages from people that are using false identities? Isn't that what terrorists do? Should google then become a conspirator of any criminal activity these people commit in the future because they assisted them in spreading their messages under a false identity by archiving them? Anyone who disagrees with the fact we should not archive material provided under false identification methods (invalid email accounts) probably applauded 9/11?

Just say you are mad about something, you don't have to use potty mouth language or threaten people?

Universal Disclaimer for the Public Domain, Version 1.5, dated Nov 7th, 2009 (which supersedes all previous versions, to which this new version applies)

The writings, views, expressions expressed by this author to include all written and electronic forms of communication are subject to the following disclaimer and conditions:

a) The views expressed by this website and the author to include all electronic forms of communication are not representative of advertisers, or other third parties that may store and or transmit the messages from this private computer, which you may observe at your own risk, with no liability to the authors, or any party related to transmitting, storing, or any other aspect of the material involved, including email correspondence, which is not necessary to the function of the website, and may or may not be archived due to other limitations incorporated into the licensed email software in use at the time such as automated spam or virus filters. No personal information exchanged will be shared without your consent, or provided to third parties with out the express permission of the parties and, or, individuals concerned.

b) The author(s) of this content and those who may interact with it in various known or unknown electronic methods do not give permission to any third parties to share or provide private personal information who may operate as part of any type of electronic or written communications system, including all parties, who may technically intercept communications due to the nature of network conditions beyond both the author's legal and physical control, unless those communications represent violations of the law, upon which the author, and or web site will cooperate to pursue any legal remedies.

c) The views expressed by the author or website may or may not contain factual information, due to the use of sarcasm or parody. The views may or may not be complete, either by design, to pre-empt being called a liar even if telling the truth, or by error due to typographical, grammer, or other technical communication problems not realized or imagined, or the possibility of views based on false or missing information, or with the intention of being used for entertainment purposes only, and not as a definitive judgment on the actions, character, or reputation of an organization, individual, or groups of individuals, with the intent of communicating with a limited group of people, and not the general public, however no distribution restrictions apply for fair use purposes described by the US Copyright Office, if no other restrictions are present or communicated, with all commercial proceeds associated with the distribution of the content to remain the sole possession of the original author.

d) Any reference to copyrighted material is done in the spirit of fair use, to illustrate the context of a discussion regarding public events for reference purposes that adds to the conversation, for which that discussion constitutes a new and separate piece of intellectual property, for which the referenced copyrighted material can not convey by itself, and that the author reserves the right to retain any profits from the newly created intellectual property. This term also serves to promote the referenced copyrighted material, without necessarily endorsing the material for any particular fitness, use, or purpose, for which the purpose of fair use referral law was created for, through inclusion of a partial, but not whole, body of works that the copyright fair use reference applies, for which the intent of all terms of this disclaimer apply to that reference of a copyrighted work.

e) Any humor if used, is not intended to offend people, and may be designed to apply the principals of peer pressure through reverse examination to accomplish the communication of principals or ideas that consist of traditional or proposed social values that are proven to advance the common good, and are not meant to discredit, disparage or demean any person or entities in any professional or personal manner, by attempting to share through the eyes or opinion of the author, for which it is expected that you read at your own risk, with no liability held to the author or any third parties who may store, transfer, or forward this message to others, in the traditions of free speech, fair use, and to play a positive role in a society that believes that graphically depicting male homosexuals having sex, and other unusual sex acts is considered free speech or that the use of abortion to limit Negros, Latinos, and other races from "spreading the wealth around" as a "matter of privacy" (which the author does not condone).

f) The use of humor is a known ingredient in providing teachable moments, and to validate and even demonstrate artistic expressions that are not shared by others, as demonstrated by many valuable scientific observations that were scoffed at in the past, yet proven to be quite valid decades later, upon which the humor used in all electronic communications by the author are based, in the principals and traditions of free speech and pursuit of happiness, and may not be a representation of others, including God.

g) It is the opinion of the author that you respect people when you consider their views, by reflecting their thoughts or actions against your own, which may include use of language that conveys an emotional depth that is to be imagined, but not enacted through use of language that accurately, or inaccurately describes the situation, circumstance, or idea, which does not imply that any action occur other than the consideration of the thought, for which beyond the author has no control, or liability for the action of the reader as presented in all terms of this diclaimer, and may simply be the venting of emotions with the intent of no consequence by the author to an audience the author assumes will understand the message and intent, and wishes to hear those views.

h) Since all intellectual property, discussions and other communications this disclaimer applies to, either in written, or electronic form, subscribe to the terms described in paragraph (e) and (g) of this disclaimer, under no circumstances are any communications meant to violate the terms of any electronic harassment laws which include the word “harm”, for which the author understands to be limited to the definition of physical harm (not self inflicted mental harm) that requires immediate medical attention based solely or in part by the communications of the author, regardless of whether the author chooses to remain anonymous or not.

i) It is the intention and opinion of the author that History is full of individuals that are not harmed by criticism, and in fact such criticism can motivate and inspire them to prove their critics wrong. Based on this historical evidence, any alleged mental harm amounts to self inflicted injury not treatable by either medical or other professionals (despite the fact that many people live from the profits of lies through gradual illusion, without judicial interference), for which the author has no control over the mental development of any potential reader prior to the discovery or reading of the material for which this disclaimer applies, as evident by the necessity that speech is to be protected by law as determined by the founders of the United States of America, who, in the opinion of the author, wrote the legal framework, which was created by God, not slaves.

j) Additional use of automated anonymous page use tracking computer scripts (web page programs) or advertisements may be licensed by www.google.com, for bandwidth verification, or determination of potential advertisement opportunities subject to all other terms described in this disclaimer.

k) Advertisements that may appear are not necessarily endorsed by the author, either by admission, or by silence, nor are any electronic links that may transport the reader to other web pages, sites, or computers, and such links that may be provided for all or any of the following known or unknown purposes, but not limited to, informational, educational, and for the purpose of giving copy right credit referral information under the terms outlined in the conditions applied to the term "fair use" regarding conversations and print under US Copy Right Law, and for which the author assumes no liability for any particular use, fitness, or legality there of, any link, current, past, or future, which the reader should use at their sole risk, with no liability to the author, or any other party that may store, transmit, or otherwise facilitate use of the material for which this disclaimer applies.

l) It is the opinion of the author that effective 1 December, 2009, the proposed regulations from the FTC violate the first and fifth amendments of the United States Constitution, by infringing through economic affliction the burden without compensation all financial details concerning the communications of both free enterprise and opinion, and other civil rights such as "punishment must be fair" and not at the "discretion" of public officials, or that advertisers are assumed to be guilty of deception when United States law provides that you are innocent before being proven guilty, and are in fact demonstrations that there are current members of Congress that neither understand the spirit of the law our founding fathers made for the United States of America, or understand how they work in the opinion of the author, as of October 10th, 2009, especially in light of anticipated, and hopefully defeated, legislative taxes relating to energy use and the burden of publishers and advertisers to comply with the law and manage the environment, and in light that there are various consumer protection agencies, including the Better Business Bureau, which has free consumer information which preclude the use and need for excessive government regulation that burdens business with obstacles it may sense that it can not overcome without inflicting harm on the business plan or survival ability of the business to provide advertised, goods and or services.

m) Although the content provided meets or exceeds those new requirements to the knowledge of the author, and modifications to version 1.3 or 1.4 of this disclaimer is a result of the opinion of the author that “blogging” is another definition for a potentially infinite number or forms of electronic communication, as such the author will retroactively apply this version, 1.5 to all forms of previous communications, when and wherever possible, as time allows, in order to properly convey the intention of the author and to demonstrate an enthusiasm to comply with the law, and not enthusiastically pursue getting high on cocaine as often as possible as Barack Hussein Obama has admitted in his book (paraphrase, synopsis), according to (mmm, mmm, mmm (sonic emphasis)) Rush Hudson Limbaugh, (mmm mmm mmm (sonic emphasis)).

n) Use of this disclaimer for either personal or professional use is permitted with no restrictions. These restrictions or disclaimers do not prohibit the author from pursuing or communicating in a truthful manner, or guarantee that the audience will understand all things as intended, and, or result in being called incoherent, or even a Chicken Chaser!

o) This disclaimer is meant to establish the intent of the author who may participate in message forums, or create other written or electronic forms of communication to comply with current law, and may be revoked without prior notice, due to circumstances beyond the author's control, changes in the law, or for any of the purposes, terms, or conditions that may be in effect or described by this disclaimer, or to changes in this disclaimer that the author may clarify in a revised version of this disclaimer.

p) This disclaimer is attached to this message, and retroactively applies to all previous forms of communication by the author, and is done so because there is no recognized central suppository of a public disclaimer recognized by the Government of the United States to the author, and as such, the legal imperative of the author is to apply this disclaimer to all manner of correspondence as the author seems fit or prudent, so that no misunderstandings occur, or to comply with past, current or future revisions of the law, due to any of, but not limited to, any or all of the terms, partial terms, or combination of terms, of this disclaimer, which is derived from the freedom of speech, for it appears to the author that the zeal of lawmakers to take away free speech outweigh the providence of attaching this disclaimer to all correspondence for which this applies, and any inconvenience for which this presents, is the result of simply complying with the law, and not to inconvenience the reader.

LOL! That's the new name for the AM band? The "Senior Band"? LOL

As seniors get older, there is no younger population willing to tune AM to replace them. SO it's just a matter of time.

re:pandora

the general motors wi-fi device for the car cost $499

the service is $29 per month knowing how apathetic people are to pay $10 for sirius/xm, i hardly think this will take off anytime soon.

people are compaining about the price of gas, dont see the value of sattelite radio....and you are going to put all your eggs in the pandora model?

i think people are staying with the "free" model. free radio is what people want.

That fact that you would imagine that I would somehow be distressed with the threat of my posts being deleted from Google's archives gives me a Whom ever said Pandora would need Internet connections? The Slacker portable comes pre-loaded, refreshed through Wifi hotspots. Pandora could easily do the same thing. Online, terrestrial radio will die a slow death, as "personalized" music services take over - LOL!

I suppose when it's the only way you can defend this guy, I guess desperation requires you to continue to blame his shortcomings on Bush.

I don't like the guy because he's an incompetent boob. And a reprehensibly arrogant political hack. Witness his shameful appearance after Ft Hood.

Measuring the dislike of the guy in the chair as a function of the mess created by his predecessor makes as much sense blaming the shortcomings of the Sat 800 on the current state of shortwave radio.

Grow up.

I am fixin to get started on building a dog trap for those stray dogs, roaming around the neighborhood, tearing into peoples garbage bags and crapping on the yards (including my yard too) around here.A wooden box with a door hinged at the top and one or two old door latches at the bottom of the door, they can go in the box (box baited with dry dog food) but they can't get out.Each time I catch a stray dog, I will take it to Carams on North Flag Chapel Road. http://carams.org

Then, after I build my dog trap, I am going to buy some sheets of plywood and lay the plywood on top of my house roof rafters in the attic for a floor up there so I can stash my old junk (it isn't all junk, though, most of it is real good antique stuff) up there.
Keeps me busy, keeps me out of truble.

That's quite an indictment. I have been a radio professional since December, 1963. I am a major fan of web radio (both web-only and simulcast).

Radio is a craft that requires a human element to be any good. Radio is not a cosmic jukebox.

Typical killer Christan... There is nothing in the health care bill limiting coverage for the aged. Another GOP Do-nothing republican't party of NO lie!

Young <65yo terminal cancer patient do not even get these options. Small businesses fire cancer patients as they can't take the hit in insurance premiums. Insurance companies deny most all treatments after a few months and raise their rates and deductibles when your insurance contract renews. (In the area of $2k/month w/$7k deductible)

See the problem?

If victims can't pay the premium, they loose insurance and are bared from getting insurance ever again.

These people never make it to 65!

Health insurance agents need to be prosecuted for manslaughter and the insurance industry need to be replaced.

Wednesday, for U.S.Veterans and U.S.Active Duty personel.
I reckon this Wednesday I will head on over to the Appleby's restaurant

As already stated and published in the non-faux media, there is much to be saved in reforming the GOP mandated changes to medicare that end up giving medical corporations and insurance companies frivolous money for nothing in return. Also, there are changes that would save money, such as repetitive meaningless testing just be cause the medicare act allows them.

Do you actually believe that the insurance companies are spending BILLIONS of $$$ in advertising for YOUR health?! (or freedom?) Is your real name Homer Simpson?!

Hypocritical GOP Do-nothing republican't party of NO!

The Wreck of the Edmund Fitzgerald
Gordon Lightfoot
The legend lives on from the Chippewa on down
Of the big lake they call Gitche Gumee
The lake, it is said, never gives up her dead
When the skies of November turn gloomy.

With a load of iron ore - 26,000 tons more Than the Edmund Fitzgerald weighed empty
That good ship and true was a bone to be chewed
When the gales of November came early

The ship was the pride of the American side
Coming back from some mill in Wisconson
As the big freighters go it was bigger than most
With a crew and the Captain well seasoned.

Concluding some terms with a couple of steel firms
When they left fully loaded for Cleveland
And later that night when the ships bell rang Could it be the North Wind they'd been feeling.

The wind in the wires made a tattletale sound
And a wave broke over the railing
And every man knew, as the Captain did, too, T'was the witch of November come stealing.

The dawn came late and the breakfast had to wait
When the gales of November came slashing
When afternoon came it was freezing rain
In the face of a hurricane West Wind

When supper time came the old cook came on deck Saying fellows it's too rough to feed ya
At 7PM a main hatchway caved in

He said fellas it's been good to know ya.

The Captain wired in he had water coming in
And the good ship and crew was in peril
And later that night when his lights went out of sight
Came the wreck of the Edmund Fitzgerald.

Does anyone know where the love of God goes
When the words turn the minutes to hours
The searchers all say they'd have made Whitefish Bay
If they'd fifteen more miles behind her.

They might have split up or they might have capsized
They may have broke deep and took water
And all that remains is the faces and the names
Of the wives and the sons and the daughters.

Lake Huron rolls, Superior sings
In the ruins of her ice water mansion Old Michigan steams like a young man's dreams,
The islands and bays are for sportsmen.

And farther below Lake Ontario Takes in what Lake Erie can send her
And the iron boats go as the mariners all know
With the gales of November remembered.

In a musty old hall in Detroit they prayed
In the Maritime Sailors' Cathedral
The church bell chimed, 'til it rang 29 times
For each man on the Edmund Fitzgerald.

The legend lives on from the Chippewa on down
Of the big lake they call Gitche Gumee
Superior, they say, never gives up her dead
When the gales of November come early.

Short Term Change, or Long Time Misery?

Bruce Barlett (whom you can thank for inspiring me to write this piece, along with George Shultz) contradicts himself by saying the government is the engine that drives the economy, but then laments that he did not support the stimulus spending package? Well, which is it? The private sector creates the intellectual property that allows government to print more money. So to say that the government is the engine is like saying gasoline is the engine. The government has no pistons, no rings, no lubrication, no timing mechanism, no throttle, it is simply the fuel, it prints money.

Mr. Barlett was being interviewed on CSPAN regarding economic policy from the 1970s through the present. He thought it was "stupid" (paraphrasing here) that Republicans who sought to cut the funding of the "beast" (members of Congress who have unlimited spending habits) was to limit their power by cutting their ability to collect taxes.

Like it or not, the Constitution of the United States was based on the People having individual freedom, and the strategy of throwing out irresponsible members of Congress who transgress that freedom through the economic affliction by excessive taxation is not only smart, but the most fundamental mechanisms of American government, and the United States Government was intentionally designed to function that way.

So what happens during the election cycles? Economic chaos or political representation? If you are seeing cycles of economic chaos, does that not signal that your conservative side of the table is in fact right, because it takes excessive spending to create that chaos? So then we also have two conflicting sciences in the economic community, we have currency rates, and taxation issues? Well, it boils down to simple auditing, and the "keep it simple, stupid!", is a time proven one.

If you are just printing money because you can, your auditing of spending will show you two things, waste, and growing deficit bubbles? A growing bubble always pops, because sooner or later, whatever that elastic material is, is going to go past its breaking point? If you are printing money because you who have new intellectual property, that generates more economic growth (responsible lending associated with new business plans, services, or products) you will not find deficit bubbles because your spending is constrained, and your tax base is growing not shrinking?

Mr. Barlett also implied that the United States should emulate other countries concerning value added tax rates, which usually only accomplishes one thing, create a legal quagmire with so much administrative costs that any alleged benefits are burdened by compliance costs that not worth the endeavor, and are frequently hidden from the public view (for metaphoric example, financial reports that the cash for clunker program cost tax payers approximately $24K for each $4,500 credit, or that each stimulus job created, cost over approximately $299K to tax payers)? Carbon Credit trading is a form of Value Added Tax (VAT)?

When you bury the tax collection system so that you don't notice how much they are taking, are you really trying to hide how much they are spending? So why go through all the hoops of hiding the collection process? Because what do people historically do? They will figure out the cheapest way of avoiding that tax collection process, and again, we end up with politicians gambling with your future, because they have introduced uncertainty into the life blood of government, the tax system, by spending on what they predict what will happen, rather than by economic reality.

Remember, the government is the gasoline, it is not the engine. People are the engine, and we all have to be firing on the same page, the same timing, and in the designed, factory recommended firing order with all the proper parts, settings, and property trained mechanics to keep it running right.

Properly trained mechanics include lawyers that do not seek to practice law to earn money, but to practice law? That is why lawyers and doctors (or so I am told) are paid so well? As an approximate metaphoric example, do you want a lawyer in your town who says, you can not build a tower holding poison gas that will fail, or do you want a lawyer working for government who says that you should pay taxes tomorrow because the weather is going to change while ignoring a global warming and cooling periods centuries ago, medieval times? Well of course the weather will change, that is why it is called weather? That follows up with our ability and necessity to adapt and overcome to change.

Why the tax cuts during the Reagan were so successful in my opinion is simply this, the tax rate was as fair as we could get them, and they were instituted by someone who was not willing to bluff, stick his finger in the air, and see which way the wind was blowing. I think President Reagan could have done even better if he had not faced such opposition to enacting fair taxes (otherwise they would not need to be cut).

The number one value of tax rates is not how much they are, but how long are they going to stay there? When you don't know what the tax rate is going to be, you can't make any budget decisions, which freezes economic activity. When you have to price your goods and services according to what you guess or predict the government tax rates (or “regs”) are going to be, you are not planning, you are gambling. As an employer, I don't want to gamble with your loyalty to either me or my company.

And this is what happens, people don't guess correctly what the tax rates are going to be, and then they try to manipulate the markets to effect currency rates, because what is the first thing people will try to do when your tax rates are not productive? They will do as much business as they can overseas. And the United States practices this theory when it give big tax breaks and incentives to foreigners who do business in the United States and meet certain conditions (think 7-11). But that is not fair tax policy, it is exploiting a niche with a limited effect.

All right, all the smart money is now overseas and effecting the currency rates, then what happens? You've got artificial bubbles in the labor markets. Some of those bubbles are fueled by cheap energy prices, and if those cheap energy prices fall, you will have chaos, especially for the countries with high energy prices who can not match labor pay conditions (unions have no control over issues outside of labor)?

So here is the Reagan economic success formula. Tax revenue grows under a tax rate that is fair, and is not being inflated (through new spending programs, or other methods). By the way, I want to thank George Shultz for reminding us that thanks to Ronald Reagan, the world does support perhaps the only real international treaty concerning the banned use of materials that were depleting the ozone layer (alternative solutions were available, and affordable). Population growth means tax revenue growth.

There are too many people that distort the records of others because they simply want to see if they can, if they work hard and long enough at it? I heard a lot of talk about Mr. Bush and a company named Halliburton (a silly company that does not even have a television station or media outlet?) for no bid contracts, yet we see today that the alternative party is supporting a rival conglomerate who is also a defense contractor and positioning itself for no bid contracts courtesy of the US government, General Electric?

There is nothing wrong with either Halliburton or General Electric, but we are becoming apathetic to claims that either of them are “evil” and that supporting one political party or the other has become some sort of patriotic duty that defends irresponsible spending, and that apathy will show itself on election days? So why should foreign nations be dragged into such political dramas?

The world economy however suffers when we play such political sagas of drama instead of focusing on currency rates that do not steal the inherent wealth of a country, adequately reflect financial responsibility, and provide a valid unit of wage for the worker of that country to actually compete world wide, if and as long as it is prudent to do so, for which I must remind us all, those who formed the United States Government did not take such issues for granted, by granting powers to Congress.

The United States currently uses three taxing systems:

Consumption taxes (sales tax),

Income taxes (Federal and some State)

Acquirement taxes (property and estate taxes combined).

Exploding deficits signals obvious over spending that is choking not only personal liberty and freedoms, but our very sanity, and peace of mind? That's why when Ronald Reagan heard the leadership of Iran say they would not plant mines in the gulf, sank a ship that was dropping mines in the gulf after photographing them doing it and taking mines as evidence?

Government is the gasoline that recognizes the competence of political leaders, bankers, and citizens who work together to recognize, cherish, develop, guard, and grow economic activity through the proven methods of personal responsibility, thrift, innovation, and the ability to motivate the growth necessary to keep up with the pace of population growth, and not barter it away as some sort of lottery system or ponzi scheme, or though the imaginations of reparations and wealth redistribution schemes that only promise short term change, but long term misery.

With rumors of a foundation for all sorts of new taxes and regulations to cover all sorts of the parts of our lives that range from those that impact the environment to our health, we must recognize that consent is one of the key ingredients of freedom, because anyone can fire up the banana peels.

Being that this is the most exciting, most entertaining, fact finding, idea busting, fun loving, egg shell mind crunching, invincible smacketh downeth erectus among us, you can't see the truth coming, but you know it is anyway, sonic boom of Conservatism, and, most powerful keyboard in the world,

Do you feel lucky?

include the word “harm”, for which the author understands to be limited to the definition of physical harm (not self inflicted mental harm) that requires immediate medical attention based solely or in part by the communications of the author, regardless of whether the author chooses to remain anonymous or not.

i) It is the intention and opinion of the author that History is full of individuals that are not harmed by criticism, and in fact such criticism can motivate and inspire them to prove their critics wrong. Based on this historical evidence, any alleged mental harm amounts to self inflicted injury not treatable by either medical or other professionals (despite the fact that many people live from the profits of lies through gradual illusion, without judicial interference), for which the author has no control over the mental development of any potential reader prior to the discovery or reading of the material for which this disclaimer applies, as evident by the necessity that speech is to be protected by law as determined by the founders of the United States of America, who, in the opinion of the author, wrote the legal framework, which was created by God, not slaves.

j) Additional use of automated anonymous page use tracking computer scripts (web page programs) or advertisements may be licensed by www.google.com, for bandwidth verification, or determination of potential advertisement opportunities subject to all other terms described in this disclaimer. The author is not responsible for distributions of this work, which may be posted in public forums, and archived by www.google.com which may then create comments from people who hide their true identities by using false email credentials, who will then be violating terms of service regarding accessing computer systems by directly or indirectly accessing computer systems through hacking (hiding their requested email address or other forms of requested identification) which should not be archived for public display by www.google.com in order to fight acts of criminal behavior ranging from acts of nuisance, to lethal forms of terrorism, for which the author does not intend to encourage, and to remind it is a civic duty to all web masters to remove from public view such illegal postings by hackers, and ban their use.

k) Advertisements that may appear are not necessarily endorsed by the author, either by admission, or by silence, nor are any electronic links that may transport the reader to other web pages, sites, or computers, and such links that may be provided for all or any of the following known or unknown purposes, but not limited to, informational, educational, and for the purpose of giving copy right credit referral information under the terms outlined in the conditions applied to the term "fair use" regarding conversations and print under US Copy Right Law, and for which the author assumes no liability for any particular use, fitness, or legality there of, any link, current, past, or future, which the reader should use at their sole risk, with no liability to the author, or any other party that may store, transmit, or otherwise facilitate use of the material for which this disclaimer applies.

l) It is the opinion of the author that effective 1 December, 2009, the proposed regulations from the FTC violate the first and fifth amendments of the United States Constitution, by infringing through economic affliction the burden without compensation all financial details concerning the communications of both free enterprise and opinion, and other civil rights such as "punishment must be fair" and not at the "discretion" of public officials, or that advertisers are assumed to be guilty of deception when United States law provides that you are innocent before being proven guilty, and are in fact demonstrations that there are current members of Congress that neither understand the spirit of the law our founding fathers made for the United States of America, or understand how they work in the opinion of the author, as of October 10th, 2009, especially in light of anticipated, and hopefully defeated, legislative taxes relating to energy use and the burden of publishers and advertisers to comply with the law and manage the environment, and in light that there are various consumer protection agencies, including the Better Business Bureau, which has free consumer information which preclude the use and need for excessive government regulation that burdens business with obstacles it may sense that it can not overcome without inflicting harm on the business plan or survival ability of the business to provide advertised, goods and or services.

m) Although the content provided meets or exceeds those new requirements to the knowledge of the author, and modifications to version 1.3 or 1.4 of this disclaimer is a result of the opinion of the author that “blogging” is another definition for a potentially infinite number or forms of electronic communication, as such the author will retroactively apply this version, 1.6 to all forms of previous communications, when and wherever possible, as time allows, in order to properly convey the intention of the author and to demonstrate an enthusiasm to comply with the law, and not enthusiastically pursue getting high on cocaine as often as possible as Barrack Hussein Obama has admitted in his book (paraphrase, synopsis), according to (mmm, mmm, mmm (sonic emphasis)) Rush Hudson Limbaugh, (mmm mmm mmm (sonic emphasis)).

n) Use of this disclaimer for either personal or professional use is permitted with no restrictions. These restrictions or disclaimers do not prohibit the author from pursuing or communicating in a truthful manner, or guarantee that the audience will understand all things as intended, and, or result in being called incoherent, or even a Chicken Chaser!

o) This disclaimer is meant to establish the intent of the author who may participate in message forums, or create other written or electronic forms of communication to comply with current law, and may be revoked without prior notice, due to circumstances beyond the author's control, changes in the law, or for any of the purposes, terms, or conditions that may be in effect or described by this disclaimer, or to changes in this disclaimer that the author may clarify in a revised version of this disclaimer.

p) This disclaimer is attached to this message, and retroactively applies to all previous forms of communication by the author, and is done so because there is no recognized central suppository of a public disclaimer recognized by the Government of the United States to the author, and as such, the legal imperative of the author is to apply this disclaimer to all manner of correspondence as the author seems fit or prudent, so that no misunderstandings occur, or to comply with past, current or future revisions of the law, due to any of, but not limited to, any or all of the terms, partial terms, or combination of terms, of this disclaimer, which is derived from the freedom of speech, for it appears to the author that the zeal of lawmakers to take away free speech outweigh the providence of attaching this disclaimer to all correspondence for which this applies, and any inconvenience for which this presents, is the result of simply complying with the law, and not to inconvenience the reader.

So that's why President Obama hired "skin head" Van Jones?

Why do liberals try to hide the fact that their policies actually hurt people, and not wste time trying to get people to hallucinate if they talk long and hard enough about whatever they want to imagine?

Universal Legal Disclaimer for the Public Domain, Version 1.6, dated Nov 10th, 2009 (which supersedes all previous versions, to which this new version applies, which takes approximately 8 minutes to read)

The writings, views, expressions expressed by this author to include all written and electronic forms of communication are subject to the following disclaimer and conditions:

a) The views expressed by this website and the author to include all electronic forms of communication are not representative of advertisers, or other third parties that may store and or transmit the messages from this private computer, which you may observe at your own risk, with no liability to the authors, or any party related to transmitting, storing, or any other aspect of the material involved, including email correspondence, which is not necessary to the function of the website, and may or may not be archived due to other limitations incorporated into the licensed email software in use at the time such as automated spam or virus filters. No personal information exchanged will be shared without your consent, or provided to third parties with out the express permission of the parties and, or, individuals concerned.

b) The author(s) of this content and those who may interact with it in various known or unknown electronic methods do not give permission to any third parties to share or provide private personal information who may operate as part of any type of electronic or written communications system, including all parties, who may technically intercept communications due to the nature of network conditions beyond both the author's legal and physical control, unless those communications represent violations of the law, upon which the author, and or web site will cooperate to pursue any legal remedies.

c) The views expressed by the author or website may or may not contain factual information, due to the use of sarcasm or parody. The views may or may not be complete, either by design, to pre-empt being called a liar even if telling the truth, or by error due to typographical, grammar, or other technical communication problems not realized or imagined, or the possibility of views based on false or missing information, or with the intention of being used for entertainment purposes only, and not as a definitive judgment on the actions, character, or reputation of an organization, individual, or groups of individuals, with the intent of communicating with a limited group of people, and not the general public, however no distribution restrictions apply for fair use purposes described by the US Copyright Office, if no other restrictions are present or communicated, with all commercial proceeds associated with the distribution of the content to remain the sole possession of the original author.

d) Any reference to copyrighted material is done in the spirit of fair use, to illustrate the context of a discussion regarding public events for reference purposes that adds to the conversation, for which that discussion constitutes a new and separate piece of intellectual property, for which the referenced copyrighted material can not convey by itself, and that the author reserves the right to retain any profits from the newly created intellectual property. This term also serves to promote the referenced copyrighted material, without necessarily endorsing the material for any particular fitness, use, or purpose, for which the purpose of fair use referral law was created for, through inclusion of a partial, but not whole, body of works that the copyright fair use reference applies, for which the intent of all terms of this disclaimer apply to that reference of a copyrighted work.

e) Any humor if used, is not intended to offend people, and may be designed to apply the principals of peer pressure through reverse examination to accomplish the communication of principals or ideas that consist of traditional or proposed social values that are proven to advance the common good, and are not meant to discredit, disparage or demean any person or entities in any professional or personal manner, by attempting to share through the eyes or opinion of the author, for which it is expected that you read at your own risk, with no liability held to the author or any third parties who may store, transfer, or forward this message to others, in the traditions of free speech, fair use, and to play a positive role in a society that believes that graphically depicting male homosexuals having sex, and other unusual sex acts is considered free speech or that the use of abortion to limit Negroes, Latinos, and other races from "spreading the wealth around" as a "matter of privacy" (which the author does not condone).

f) The use of humor is a known ingredient in providing teachable moments, and to validate and even demonstrate artistic expressions that are not shared by others, as demonstrated by many valuable scientific observations that were scoffed at in the past, yet proven to be quite valid decades later, upon which the humor used in all electronic communications by the author are based, in the principals and traditions of free speech and pursuit of happiness, and may not be a representation of others, including God.

g) It is the opinion of the author that you respect people when you consider their views, by reflecting their thoughts or actions against your own, which may include use of language that conveys an emotional depth that is to be imagined, but not enacted through use of language that accurately, or inaccurately describes the situation, circumstance, or idea, which does not imply that any action occur other than the consideration of the thought, for which beyond the author has no control, or liability for the action of the reader as presented in all terms of this disclaimer, and may simply be the venting of emotions with the intent of no consequence by the author to an audience the author assumes will understand the message and intent, and wishes to hear those views.

h) Since all intellectual property, discussions and other communications this disclaimer applies to, either in written, or electronic form, subscribe to the terms described in paragraph (e) and (g) of this disclaimer, under no circumstances are any communications meant to violate the terms of any electronic harassment laws which include the word “harm”, for which the author understands to be limited to the definition of physical harm (not self inflicted mental harm) that requires immediate medical attention based solely or in part by the communications of the author, regardless of whether the author chooses to remain anonymous or not.

i) It is the intention and opinion of the author that History is full of individuals that are not harmed by criticism, and in fact such criticism can motivate and inspire them to prove their critics wrong. the author does not intend to encourage, and to remind it is a civic duty to all web masters to remove from public view such illegal postings by hackers, and ban their use.

k) Advertisements that may appear are not necessarily endorsed by the author, either by admission, or by silence, nor are any electronic links that may transport the reader to other web pages, sites, or computers, and such links that may be provided for all or any of the following known or unknown purposes, but not limited to, informational, educational, and for the purpose of giving copy right credit referral information under the terms outlined in the conditions applied to the term "fair use" regarding conversations and print under US Copy Right Law, and for which the author assumes no liability for any particular use, fitness, or legality there of, any link, current, past, or future, which the reader should use at their sole risk, with no liability to the author, or any other party that may store, transmit, or otherwise facilitate use of the material for which this disclaimer applies.

Islam is not equivalent to Neo-Nazism. But let's say, for example, a Neo Nazi went nuts and shot a bunch of people. Did he do it because he's a Neo Nazi, or did he do it because he went nuts?

Simply put, the facts are not all in.

One evening, when I was in down town Killeen, (Killeen is right next door to Fort Hood) I saw a pretty gal who worked in a cafe.I walked in there and I sat down at the lunch counter and I ordered a cup of coffee.I plopped a few coins in one of the music/songs selection thingy at the lunch counter for the juke box.I played The Third Man song theme thingy.She said, Who is playing that song?

I didn't say anything.I finished my cup of coffee and I got out of there.

Another time in down town Killeen, one afternoon, an elderly couple were sitting in their car by the sidewalk.One of them asked me to drop a letter in the post office box on the corner of the sidewalk.I took their letter and I walked to the post office box and I put it in the post office box.

Hello Gentlemen,

Due to life changes, different interests and the wife's request, I am thinking of thinning down my collection of radios. I say thinning because I need to keep something just in case interests ever come back to me. I'm still really struggling over which to sell between the Drake or the JRC. Both these rigs are king in their own right. It's so hard to pick one over the other. Maybe you guys can help me. What's really hard is coming up with a price for all these too. In the end I would like to keep one desktop and one portable.

Drake R7A – like new • Filters 6.0, 4.0, 3.2, 2.7, 1.8, 1.0 (I also have the 8.0 but not installed)
• AUX 7 Board (not installed)
• MS4 Speaker
• Full set of factory manuals including service manual
• New blue LED light retrofit. No more incandescent bulbs to burn out
• Fully serviced by Drake just before they shut down this service
• Drake RV75 VFO with all cables and boxes plus manual
• Sherwood made converter box for SE-3 compatibility

JRC NRD-515 – like new • Gilfer filter mod with 8.0, 6.0, 3.5, 2.4
• Bournes 10-Turn Pot mod by Gilfer
• Sherwood modified for SE-3 compatibility
• NDH-518 96 channel memory unit
• NVA-515 Matching speaker and original box
• Full documentation including service manual
• NCM-515 key pad controller

Collins R390 (Collins tagged) - excellent condition with all Army manuals
• Technical Material Corp. CV-591A SSB Converter with factory manual
• CY979A/URR Case

Collins R390A - good condition with all Army manuals
• Technical Material Corp. CV-657A SSB Converter with factory manual
• CY979A/URR Case

Panasonic RF2200 – excellent condition
• With reprinted manual

Sony 2010 with Kiwa filter mod and Gilfer bag and cover – excellent condition

Sherwood SE-3 Synch Detector

Okay, I guess that would've been a good enough reason, especially since Obama probably would've done a better job of it than when Bush went.

"I was placed in a room that didn't have heat in the winter," recalled former Walter Reed resident Brian McGough, a senior adviser to the nonprofit VoteVets.org. "It took forever for them to fix it, so I was finally moved into another facility."

It would be around the time of that move when McGough received his Purple Heart. In 2003, Bush traveled to Walter Reed for a MRI and, hoping to knock off two birds with one stone, passed around awards to some of the wounded soldiers resting under that roof.

"We got called up in the morning told to be at a room in 10," McGough said. "We were called to attention, so you had a bunch of wounded soldiers trying to stand up for the president. He walked around and handed us our purple hearts and left a few minutes later... Six months after that I got a random email from a software engineer for the Army who had the same name as me. He had received a photo in the mail -- a picture of me shaking hands with the president. They had my name, Social Security number, and address and they still sent it to the wrong guy... [And] if you look at the photo... you will see that my first name is spelled wrong. That sums up a lot about this administration."

Pelosi's victory for women

Speaker of the House Nancy Pelosi scored a giant gain for feminism last weekend. In shoving her controversy-plagued healthcare reform bill to victory by a paper-thin margin, she conclusively demonstrated that a woman can be just as gritty, ruthless and arm-twisting in pursuing her agenda as anyone in the long line of fabled male speakers before her. Even a basic feminist shibboleth like abortion rights became just another card for Pelosi to deal and swap.

It was a stunningly impressive recovery for someone who seemed to be coming apart at the seams last summer, when a sputtering, rattled Pelosi struggled to deal with the nationwide insurgency of town hall protesters -- reputable, concerned citizens whom she outrageously tried to tar as Nazis. Whether or not her bill survives in the Senate is immaterial: Pelosi's hard-won, trench-warfare win sets a new standard for U.S. women politicians and is certainly well beyond anything the posturing but ineffectual Hillary Clinton has ever achieved.

As for the actual content of the House healthcare bill, horrors! Where to begin? That there are serious deficiencies and injustices in the U.S. healthcare system has been obvious for decades. To bring the poor and vulnerable into the fold has been a high ideal and an urgent goal for most Democrats. But this rigid, intrusive and grotesquely expensive bill is a nightmare. Holy Hygeia, why can't my fellow Democrats see that the creation of another huge, inefficient federal bureaucracy would slow and disrupt the delivery of basic healthcare and subject us all to a labyrinthine mass of incompetent, unaccountable petty dictators? Massively expanding the number of healthcare consumers without making due provision for the production of more healthcare providers means that we're hurtling toward a staggering logjam of de facto rationing. Steel yourself for the deafening screams from the careerist professional class of limousine liberals when they get stranded for hours in the jammed, jostling anterooms of doctors' offices. They'll probably try to hire Caribbean nannies as ringers to do the waiting for them.

A second issue souring me on this bill is its failure to include the most common-sense clause to increase competition and drive down prices: portability of health insurance across state lines. What covert business interests is the Democratic leadership protecting by stopping consumers from shopping for policies nationwide? Finally, no healthcare bill is worth the paper it's printed on when the authors ostentatiously exempt themselves from its rules. The solipsistic members of Congress want us peons to be ground up in the communal machine, while they themselves gambol on in the flowering meadow of their own lavish federal health plan. Hypocrites!

And why are we even considering so gargantuan a social experiment when the nation is struggling to emerge from a severe recession? It's as if liberals are starry-eyed dreamers lacking the elementary ability to project or predict the chaotic and destabilizing practical consequences of their utopian fantasies. Republicans, on the other hand, have basically sat on their asses about healthcare reform for the past 20 years and have shown little interest in crafting legislative solutions to social inequities. The usual GOP floater about private medical savings accounts is a crock -- something that, given the astronomical costs of major medical crises, would be utterly unworkable for families of even average household income.

International models of socialized medicine have been developed for nations and populations that are usually vastly smaller than our own. There are positives and negatives in their system as in ours. So what's the point of this trade? The plight of the uninsured (whose number is far less than claimed) should be directly addressed without co-opting and destroying the entire U.S. medical infrastructure. Limited, targeted reforms can ban gouging and unfair practices and can streamline communications now wastefully encumbered by red tape. But insurance companies and the pharmaceutical industry are not the sole cause of mounting healthcare costs, and constantly demonizing them is a demagogic evasion.

How dare anyone claim humane aims for this bill anyhow when its funding is based on a slashing of Medicare by over $400 billion? The brutal abandonment of the elderly here is unconscionable. One would have expected a Democratic proposal to include an expansion of Medicare, certainly not its gutting. The passive acquiescence of liberal commentators to this vandalism simply demonstrates how partisan ideology ultimately desensitizes the mind.

Last week's startling gubernatorial victories by Republicans in Virginia and New Jersey were routinely dismissed as local aberrations by the liberal media or inflated as referendums on President Obama by the conservative media. But voters were clearly revolting against the deranged excess spending of government at both state and federal levels. So it was as much a protest against Congress as against the White House.

Obama sure needed a lift and got it from Pelosi. The administration has seemed to be drifting lately. Obama has dithered for months about a strategy for Afghanistan -- another rats' nest we should pull our troops out of overnight. Then there was the bizarre disproportion in Obama's flying to Denmark to flog a Chicago Olympics yet not having time to make it to Germany to celebrate the fall of the Berlin Wall -- which suggests a frivolous provincialism as well as ignorance of history among the president's principal advisors. And Obama's muted response to last week's massacre at Fort Hood has exposed ambiguities and uncertainties in the U.S. government and military about how to respond to homegrown militant Islam. The presidency is a heavy burden -- a prize that can become a curse.

Hi John,

I would personally keep the NRD, but the R7A is a great radio too, but not nearly as pleasant to use as the JRC is. I had to sell some of my toys recently due to finances, but I still hung onto my 515. I just got offered a lot of money for it, and I might just bite. With all the stuff you have with it, as a "set" it would probably go for over $2K.

Typical ObamaBot© Reply talking about former members of the US Congress while forgetting that it is :
1 - Senator Harry Reid [D-NV] and the Democrats who run and control the US Senate
2 - Speaker Nancy Pelosi [D-CA] and the Democrats

3 - Prez Obama [D-P] and the Democrats who run

-fyi- There was broad Bi-Partisan support that was Against the Obama-Care© Bill with 176 Republicans

Republican and 219 Democrats Voting YES {50.6%}

said YES to Obama-Care©

Now Prez Obama has called out the Obama-Thugs©

John. I'm with BDK on this one. both are great receivers. the R7A should pull in at the least $1.5K to $2.0K. market is solid on the Drake. the 515 is a real classic. less made than the Drake. the JRC, with the extras, and the SE3 should bring up to $2.5K to maybe $3.0K. i just saw the keyboard and controller go for $650.00 last month on ebay. SE3's go for 4 to $550.00 all the time. i, myself like the 515. got 2 here, one box stock, other with all the mods. i would hate to have to part with either one. always hard to let a receiver go. and, looking down the road, if you let one go, you may never get another. people hang on to both of these. back in the day, i let a JRC 505 go, and have been looking for another for way too long. so, do you really need that second car? just my 2 cents.

You need to pay attention.

Between his inauguration and late April the President had several meetings with Republikkkon members of Congress regardihg health care and after every meeting, they have trooped out of the White House, stood in front of the microphones, and announced their opposition.

Faced with this response from the Party of No, he had no recourse but Why would they want to talk to Obama about legislation that he has not been personally involved in? The insurance reform has been a Legislative situation, not Executive.

Then Obama lied when around three months ago he was going to take a proactive role in the bill.

And why would Obama piss away millions of dollars in hard earned taxpayer money jetting across the country to campaign for a bill that he hasn't been personally involved in?

I can understand you positioning yourself to start distancing Obama from this ridiculous bill, but it will never happen.

3476. Help programming Kaito 1102 preset stations

Hi all, newbie here. I have Googled, I have emailed several experts, even the vendor from whom I bought my Kaito 1102 and no one's been able to answer my question:

I'm trying to program preset stations in my kaito 1102 I bought a month ago. I can't make the frequencies "stick" to the memory. I pick the page I want, I tune into a frequence, I hit M/Lock and while that M is still flashing I select the number that I want it to be and then M stops flashing.

But the station isn't in memory! What am I doing wrong? Am I missing a step here that puts it in some mode to receive programmed stations or is there some other button in the sequence I am omitting? The instructions are, well, poorly translated I guess :)

Please share your wisdom, o Kaito veterans among us. THANKS

His "distance" (until very recently) from this legislation has been widely decried by the progressives. The president doesn't need me to help him with his image. I speak from a position of journalistic neutrality on this one.

A supposedly insured family losing their life savings and home due to an illness is ridiculous. Trying to do something about that is not.

In Flanders Fields
By: Lieutenant Colonel John McCrae, MD (1872-1918)
Canadian Army
In Flanders Fields the poppies blow
Between the crosses row on row,
That mark our place; and in the sky
The larks, still bravely singing, fly Scarce heard amid the guns below.

We are the Dead. Short days ago
We lived, felt dawn, saw sunset glow,
Loved and were loved, and now we lie
In Flanders fields.

Take up our quarrel with the foe:
To you from failing hands we throw
The torch; be yours to hold it high.
If ye break faith with us who die
We shall not sleep, though poppies grow
In Flanders fields.

People with insurance are still getting wiped-out by disease.

Blame the victim; great strategy. It's that kind of thinking that made us what we are today.

Bill Clinton announced with much fan fare, that he expected Congress to pass the health care bill quickly, because He and Hillary are VERY busy setting up shadow agencies in foreign countries that will receive billions of dollars worth of aid anticipated in new international agreements, and threatens to make each member of Congress his personal teabagger if they don't vote for it?

Dang it, what did I do with that novel script I am writing, this is all just so confusing.....didn't the Revolutionary War history involve tossing barrels of tea?

So Mr. Clinton would like us to write stories about his search and conquest of teabaggers? What's wrong "dog", no one wants those old spoiled prune sacks on the commodities market, and you're not happy with your library?

That's ok, this message is about as coherent as his anticipated win of any elections next year by the Democrats?

But of course what do you expect when your imagine runs wild, and the biggest arms in the universe, the massive pythons of truth, result in your imploding egg shell mind from the weight of stupidity, illogic, and poverty?

Wuch ya gonna do, when the CONSERVOMANIACS come running wild over YOU!

Quote: He was standing in the hole waiting for something to develop....and WHAP! He got developed? (John Earl Maddon, unrelated conversational quote, a scenario however that applied to a football player who thought he knew what was going on in the game, and got schooled, seemed like an appropriate metaphoric epiphany at this point in the conversation?)

Resistance if futile, you must comply.....with the truth!

Can you smell el el el el el el el el .....what the Rock of Truth, who has the smartest eyebrow in the Universe, and the whitest teeth known to man, is .....cooking?

Do you feel, lucky?

Do you feel motivated? Hell YA!

Being that this is the most exciting, most entertaining, fact finding, brain busting, fun loving, liberal egg shell mind crunching, invincible smacketh downeth erectus among us, you can't see the truth coming, but you know it is anyway, sonic boom of Conservatism, and,

most powerful keyboard in the world,

Wuch ya gonna do? PROVE IT?

a) The views expressed by this website and the author to include all electronic forms of communication are not representative of advertisers, or other third parties that may store and or transmit the messages from this private computer, which you may observe at your own risk, with no liability to the authors, or any party related to transmitting, storing, or any other aspect of the material involved, including email correspondence, which is not necessary to the function of the website, and may or may not be archived due to other limitations incorporated into the licensed email software in use at the time such as automated spam or virus filters. No personal information exchanged will be shared without your consent, or provided to third parties with out the express permission of the parties and, or, individuals concerned.

b) The author(s) of this content and those who may interact with it in various known or unknown electronic methods do not give permission to any third parties to share or provide private personal information who may operate as part of any type of electronic or written communications system, including all parties, who may technically intercept communications due to the nature of network conditions beyond both the author's legal and physical control, unless those communications represent violations of the law, upon which the author, and or web site will cooperate to pursue any legal remedies.

c) The views expressed by the author or website may or may not contain factual information, due to the use of sarcasm or parody. The views may or may not be complete, either by design, to pre-empt being called a liar even if telling the truth, or by error due to typographical, grammar, or other technical communication problems not realized or imagined, or the possibility of views based on false or missing information, or with the intention of being used for entertainment purposes only, and not as a definitive judgment on the actions, character, or reputation of an organization, individual, or groups of individuals, with the intent of communicating with a limited group of people, and not the general public, however no distribution restrictions apply for fair use purposes described by the US Copyright Office, if no other restrictions are present or communicated, with all commercial proceeds associated with the distribution of the content to remain the sole possession of the original author.

d) Any reference to copyrighted material is done in the spirit of fair use, to illustrate the context of a discussion regarding public events for reference purposes that adds to the conversation, for which that discussion constitutes a new and separate piece of intellectual property, for which the referenced copyrighted material can not convey by itself, and that the author reserves the right to retain any profits from the newly created intellectual property. This term also serves to promote the referenced copyrighted material, without necessarily endorsing the material for any particular fitness, use, or purpose, for which the purpose of fair use referral law was created for, through inclusion of a partial, but not whole, body of works that the copyright fair use reference applies, for which the intent of all terms of this disclaimer apply to that reference of a copyrighted work.

e) Any humor if used, is not intended to offend people, and may be designed to apply the principals of peer pressure through reverse examination to accomplish the communication of principals or ideas that consist of traditional or proposed social values that are proven to advance the common good, and are not meant to discredit, disparage or demean any person or entities in any professional or personal manner, by attempting to share through the eyes or opinion of the author, for which it is expected that you read at your own risk, with no liability held to the author or any third parties who may store, transfer, or forward this message to others, in the traditions of free speech, fair use, and to play a positive role in a society that believes that graphically depicting male homosexuals having sex, and other unusual sex acts is considered free speech or that the use of abortion to limit Negroes, Latinos, and other races from "spreading the wealth around" as a "matter of privacy" (which the author does not condone).

f) The use of humor is a known ingredient in providing teachable moments, and to validate and even demonstrate artistic expressions that are not shared by others, as demonstrated by many valuable scientific observations that were scoffed at in the past, yet proven to be quite valid decades later, upon which the humor used in all electronic communications by the author are based, in the principals and traditions of free speech and pursuit of happiness, and may not be a representation of others, including God.

g) It is the opinion of the author that you respect people when you consider their views, by reflecting their thoughts or actions against your own, which may include use of language that conveys an emotional depth that is to be imagined, but not enacted through use of language that accurately, or inaccurately describes the situation, circumstance, or idea, which does not imply that any action occur other than the consideration of the thought, for which beyond the author has no control, or liability for the action of the reader as presented in all terms of this disclaimer, and may simply be the venting of emotions with the intent of no consequence by the author to an audience the author assumes will understand the message and intent,

and wishes to hear those views.

h) Since all intellectual property, discussions and other communications this disclaimer applies to, either in written, or electronic form, subscribe to the terms described in paragraph (e) and (g) of this disclaimer, under no circumstances are any communications meant to violate the terms of any electronic harassment laws which include the word “harm”, for which the author understands to be limited to the definition of physical harm (not self inflicted mental harm) that requires immediate medical attention based solely or in part by the communications of the author, regardless of whether the author chooses to remain anonymous or not.

i) It is the intention and opinion of the author that History is full of individuals that are not harmed by criticism, and in fact such criticism can motivate and inspire them to prove their critics wrong. Based on this historical evidence, any alleged mental harm amounts to self inflicted injury not treatable by either medical or other professionals (despite the fact that many people live from the profits of lies through gradual illusion, without judicial interference), for which the author has no control over the mental development of any potential reader prior to the discovery or reading of the material for which this disclaimer applies, as evident by the necessity that speech is to be protected by law as determined by the founders of the United States of America, who, in the opinion of the author, wrote the legal framework, which was created by God, not slaves.

j) Additional use of automated anonymous page use tracking computer scripts (web page programs) or advertisements may be licensed by www.google.com, for bandwidth verification, or determination of potential advertisement opportunities subject to all other terms described in this disclaimer. The author is not responsible for distributions of this work, which may be posted in public forums, and archived by www.google.com which may then create comments from people who hide their true identities by using false email credentials, who will then be violating terms of service regarding accessing computer systems by directly or indirectly accessing computer systems through hacking (hiding their requested email address or other forms of requested identification) which should not be archived for public display by www.google.com in order to fight acts of criminal behavior ranging from acts of nuisance, to lethal forms of terrorism, for which the author does not intend to encourage, and to remind it is a civic duty to all web masters to remove from public view such illegal postings by hackers, and ban their use.

k) Advertisements that may appear are not necessarily endorsed by the author, either by admission, or by silence, nor are any electronic links that may transport the reader to other web pages, sites, or computers, and such links that may be provided for all or any of the following known or unknown purposes, but not limited to, informational, educational, and for the purpose of giving copy right

credit referral information under the terms outlined in the conditions applied to the term "fair use" regarding conversations and print under US Copy Right Law, and for which the author assumes no liability for any particular use, fitness, or legality there of, any link, current, past, or future, which the reader should use at their sole risk, with no liability to the author, or any other party that may store, transmit, or otherwise facilitate use of the material for which this disclaimer applies.

l) It is the opinion of the author that effective 1 December, 2009, the proposed regulations from the FTC violate the first and fifth amendments of the United States Constitution, by infringing through economic affliction the burden without compensation all financial details concerning the communications of both free enterprise and opinion, and other civil rights such as "punishment must be fair" and not at the "discretion" of public officials, or that advertisers are assumed to be guilty of deception when United States law provides that you are innocent before being proven guilty, and are in fact demonstrations that there are current members of Congress that neither understand the spirit of the law our founding fathers made for the United States of America, or understand how they work in the opinion of the author, as of October 10th, 2009, especially in light of anticipated, and hopefully defeated, legislative taxes relating to energy use and the burden of publishers and advertisers to comply with the law and manage the environment, and in light that there are various consumer protection agencies, including the Better Business Bureau, which has free consumer information which preclude the use and need for excessive government regulation that burdens business with obstacles it may sense that it can not overcome without inflicting harm on the business plan or survival ability of the business to provide advertised, goods and or services.

m) Although the content provided meets or exceeds those new requirements to the knowledge of the author, and modifications to version 1.3 or 1.4 of this disclaimer is a result of the opinion of the author that “blogging” is another definition for a potentially infinite number or forms of electronic communication, as such the author will retroactively apply this version, 1.6 to all forms of previous communications, when and wherever possible, as time allows, in order to properly convey the intention of the author and to demonstrate an enthusiasm to comply with the law, and not enthusiastically pursue getting high on cocaine as often as possible as Barrack Hussein Obama has admitted in his book (paraphrase, synopsis), according to (mmm, mmm, mmm (sonic emphasis)) Rush Hudson Limbaugh, (mmm mmm mmm (sonic emphasis)).

n) Use of this disclaimer for either personal or professional use is permitted with no restrictions. These restrictions or disclaimers do not prohibit the author from pursuing or communicating in a truthful manner, or guarantee that the audience will understand all things as intended, and, or result in being called incoherent, or even a Chicken

o) This disclaimer is meant to establish the intent of the author who may participate in message forums, or create other written or electronic forms of communication to comply with current law, and may be revoked without prior notice, due to circumstances beyond the author's control, changes in the law, or for any of the purposes, terms, or conditions that may be in effect or described by this disclaimer, or to changes in this disclaimer that the author may clarify in a revised version of this disclaimer.

p) This disclaimer is attached to this message, and retroactively applies to all previous forms of communication by the author, and is done so because there is no recognized central suppository of a public disclaimer recognized by the Government of the United States to the author, and as such, the legal imperative of the author is to apply this disclaimer to all manner of correspondence as the author seems fit or prudent, so that no misunderstandings occur, or to comply with past, current or future revisions of the law, due to any of, but not limited to, any or all of the terms, partial terms, or combination of terms, of this disclaimer, which is derived from the freedom of speech, for it appears to the author that the zeal of lawmakers to take away free speech outweigh the providence of attaching this disclaimer to all correspondence for which this applies, and any inconvenience for which this presents, is the result of simply complying with the law, and not to inconvenience the reader.

Seems as though at least on one or two occasions I've heard Cuba underneath WYFR at that time (and others as well). Yes, weird that WYFR would be challenging Havana on their long time frequency.

Boy, Girl, Minnie Pearl.
Today, I am really going to try to catch one of those stray dogs.One of them hangs out with that democrap dog next door.Soon as I get that dog trapped in the wood box with a stick I tied a rope to the stick, (you know the drill) I will take it to the Animal Rescue League place at 5221 Greenway Drive. ( www.devilfinder.com Animal Rescue League 5221 Greenway Drive Jackson Mississippi ) Yesterday, that dog was ripping away at a big trash bag of tree leaves in my back yard.Those stray dogs have GOT to GO!

Then, I will stop off at the Lowe's store (there are at least four Lowe's stores in the Jackson area, count em, four, the Lowe's store at Greenway Drive is a mile and a half South of doggy's couch) at 2250 Greenway Drive and buy some sheets of 1/2'' thick 4' by 8' plywood to lay on top of the roof rafters in my old house so I can stash a lot of my junk up there in the attic.Good thinking, eh?

He was indeed a disaster for anyone who believes that larger government represents some sort of solution to the ills of man.

As to your opinion of his tenure, the consensus of professional historians and scholars differs from yours. I prefer to agree with the more scholarly analysis:

He was certainly a disaster for anyone who thinks that a multitrillion dollar national debt - in 1986 dollars - was a thing worth avoiding. Likewise, a disaster for anyone who feels that a clean environment is superior to a filthy one.

Yes, he faced down the Soviets using (some would say abusing) the superior GDP of the US. At the time, a big deal. Historically, of somewhat less importance, and not without long-term ramifications.

There is another stray dog I really, really, really want to take over

Take your pick. You can be a slave to corporations or a slave to the government. Democrats would prefer to be government slaves.
Republicans would prefer to be corporate slaves. Personally, I don't see why either form of enslavement is preferable to the other. Does this make me unamerican?

- No, silly. What is the "agenda" he's supposed to have instead?

As Our Elected US President BHO's Agenda should be "The Will of All the American People" {Not Single Party Rule -but- Broad Bi-Partisanship}
* BHO is not just the President of the Democrat Party of the USA; and only the President of Democrats -but- All Americans even those who did not Vote for BHO; or did not Vote at all.

-not- BHO's Own Personal Global Political Agenda.

-hint- Prez Obama is a Servant-of-the-People

-cause- BHO was Not Elected the Czar-of-Czars and Dictator-to-the-Masses.
-question-
Are the American People's National Priorities :
Prez Obama's Global Political Priorities {Agenda} ?

Quite. However, since the incurred deficit is very much related to the "facing down", I think it quite clear that making the incurred debt the most important issue during his Presidency is largely armchair quarterbacking. You weren't going to get the "face down" taken seriously without the military buildup. There was no way to have both.

Although regrettable, Reagan did not take the national debt to anywheres near the maximums seen during WW2 and today, the equity markets exploded under his economics, and the bonds floated during his tenure have largely been paid off without consequence.

Yes. What's even more interesting, as you might have noticed, is that historians and scholars who self describe as "liberal" and "conservative" vary very little in their rankings.

Barack Obama's emphasis on the USA fighting in Afghanistan was cooked up during the presidential elections as a false scam to get himself elected, just like his phony energy policy promoting biofuels, windmills, and solar panels. It is all nonsense that cannot possibly work now or ever. Obama said that Afghanistan was the good fight and that Iraq was Bush's mistake. The fact is they are both foolish mistakes!

You can win a war but you cannot win an occupation! The situation in Afghanistan is a pointless, fruitless occupation of a foreign nation where the people think and act very differently than we do. The longer we stay, the more they hate us. John McCain, Barack Obama, and all those who want to send more US troops into quicksand should be jailed. We need to wage war on the warmongers, not on these distant small nations that have no real ability or desire to harm us. Afghanistan is not even a coherent nation, just a geographic area controlled by many separate groups who do not agree on very much except that they do not want to be occupied by foreigners.

Barack Obama is a big mouth empty suit who is getting us deeper and deeper into trouble because his over sized ego that will not allow him to admit he has been horribly, horribly wrong (as usual).

Actually, I was on the netbook at BNA. Roy and Steve are prime examples of what happens when you let corporations do what they want. Bring back the Fairness Doctrine and save those two lost puppies (and millions more like them). Our government will not survive otherwise.

Nobody's perfect. But to pretend that the government is an entity separate from the people is to betray a total lack of understanding of basic civics. We get the exact government we deserve.

28 years of Reaganomics got us totally robbed to the bone by the piggish rich fucks. They literally looted empty the treasury during that time and now we have nothing but trillions of notes owed to the Chinese.

Reagan et al borrowed money from the Chinese to finance his "tax cuts".
They then transferred all the liability to wage earners. We got fucked.

I don't care, because this always happens and there is no reason why this time should be any different. (Did you really think that absurd 1775 rebellion was going to go unanswered. Look up British East India Company; the Goldman Sacks of the 18th century). I am just frustrated as hell when theoretically intelligent people can't see what happened.

Eat the rich.

*I second the nomination. The BushCraft has been on the side of the DTS for as long as I can remember and never failed to take on the Kraven (or any of his sock puppets), the Clown from YH-knives, Chilla, or any other buffoons that inhabit UseNet. What is "the will of all the American people" when the American people can't even agree among themselves as to what the will should be? So define will. And I'll bet you'll be wrong when you do. See the problem with the way you think?

Same could've been said about Bush, right? You actually think he had everybody on his side the whole time? So much for that will of the American people.

Name one president who ever was what you think he should be. And you'll be wrong.

Was the American People's national priority to have free trade at the expense of lost jobs to overseas? No. But Reagan, Bush I and Clinton went ahead and did it just the same. Presidents will do whatever they feel they must do, whether it's right or wrong for them to do it, because it's not only about the U.S., it's about how the U.S. has to deal with the rest of the world. You want to be isolationist? Move to an island.

There's nothing to read in the Thai group Gregg, or the RK group for that matter. Your troll mates have well and truly trashed both those groups. Now, upon your invite, they are setting out to do the same thing to RSS. I hope you fell real proud of yourself. Maybe, just maybe, you're even getting that warm flush in your cheeks as you realise what a fool you've been. Well, I'm here to tell you that it's too late now.
Your "friends", and I use the term loosely, are in RSS to stay because YOU invited them to assist in your harassment of Bryant. Does it make you feel like a hero when you're ganging up on someone? Well Gregg, I'm here to tell you that you and your mates are the lowest form of lowlife on the planet.

Speak for yourself Dave ;-}

Other Governments {Big "G" Goverments} 'impose'
"Values" of the People that they control

ROTF. "Carter tricked them into Afghanistan."

You gotta quit drinking the Kool Aid.

And you need to start being honest. I was an adult during the period. There was no public discourse about any pending economic dissolution of the Soviet Union, and since Reagan ran on a platform of increased military spending because of the demonstrated Soviet imperialism, it obviously would have been raised during the campaign by Carter and the Democrat Doves. It was not.

What story is that? Do you believe that government has, as its

I'd disagree. That's more of a Soviet notion than one to be found in a free society. Are you a communist?

I was a major market radio news director during the period.

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Operation_Cyclone

(this is from your CIA)

"The Failing System

From the mid-1970s to the eve of Gorbachev's assumption of party leadership in the spring of 1985, the CIA portrayed a Soviet Union plagued by a deteriorating economy and intensifying societal problems.
CIA products described the growing political tensions resulting from these failures, the prospect that sooner or later a Soviet leadership would be forced to confront these issues, and the uncertainty over what form this confrontation would take.

These products include the unclassified testimony from each of DCI Admiral Stansfield Turner's annual appearances before the JEC from 1977 through 1980 (Appendix A, references 1-4)--part of the "annual public reports" cited by the HPSCI Review Committee. Turner's testimony and the written submissions for these hearings described a "bleak" Soviet economy for which continued decline through most of the 1980s was "inevitable." The hearing reports include:

* CIA descriptions of how badly Soviet economic performance lagged behind that of the West and the prospect that Soviet leaders would be forced to confront growing conflicts between civilian and military uses of resources and investment.
* CIA assessments that the Brezhnev leadership recognized the potential for larger political repercussions from the economic failure; that the Brezhnev regime (and possibly even an initial successor) was nonetheless likely to attempt to muddle through rather than confront the politically difficult choices necessary to deal with the decline; that muddling through was not a viable option for the longer term; and that by the mid-1980s the economic picture "might look so dismal" that a post-Brezhnev leadership might coalesce behind policies that could include "structural reforms."

Other unclassified CIA publications disseminated in 1977 and 1980 (Appendix A, references 5 and 6) presented the same picture of a deteriorating economy that ultimately could provoke more radical policies.

From the late 1970s through the early 1980s, CIA produced several papers addressing the prospects for "serious economic and political problems" arising from the combined effect of growing consumer discontent, ethnic divisions, a corrupt and incompetent political system, and widespread cynicism among a populace for whom the system had failed to deliver on its promises. (Appendix A, references 7 and 8 and 10-13). One of these papers, for example, described the problems stemming from "long continued investment priorities favoring heavy industry and defense, coupled with a rigid and cumbersome system of economic organization" which "have combined to produce a consumer sector that not only lags behind both the West and Eastern Europe, but also is in many ways primitive, grossly unbalanced, and in massive disequilibrium":

* These products portrayed a Soviet leadership caught in a descending spiral: declining productivity was depressing the economy, which aggravated the cynicism and alienation of the populace; this in turn further reduced productivity.
* CIA concluded that this "vicious circle" was potentially more significant for the 1980s than "anything the regime has had to cope with in the past three decades," and that the leadership and elites were fully aware they confronted major problems.
* The analyses repeated the judgment that the Brezhnev regime and the Andropov/Chernyenko successions were likely to rely on the traditional Soviet instruments for controlling unrest and imposing "discipline," but that such approaches would not hold for the longer term in the face of a Soviet populace that was becoming less pliable and more demanding."

See above. You may wish to focus your attention on the term "public" prior to "discourse." These issues were not front-and-center during the 1980 presidential campaign, which is the relevant issue.

A strong central goverment is antithetical to libertarianism.

Interesting theory. One would have through it would not have taken us, then, 150 years to come up with the notion of income taxation.

(who were way smarter than Ayn Rand.)

Does that sort of "cheap shot" make you feel better about yourself and your views?

Do you remember Iran-Contra? Reagan had more convicted staffers than any president since Grant probably.

Totally. I don't believe in any government larger than a community.

FYI, the entire cost of the Federal government was at one time paid for by tariffs and duties.

Thom Hartmann may intrigue you. He has people from the Ayn Rand Institute on his program regularly. I was kind of philosophically adrift when I ran across Hartmann's radio show on XM back in 2002. I am not in lock-step with him, but he helped me get my bearings. Very lucid.

Exactly the point. The candidate Reagan ran, in part, on a platform of rebuilding the military in the face of increasing Soviet imperialism. IN HINDSIGHT, history appears to show that the USSR would have caved in on its own over time. That's fine, but it's hardly Reagan's fault that he was unable to see into the future. (Although his wife tried her best.)

Nixon wins that metric, but Reagan had his share.

However, if you use that metric, the best president in modern times was GW Bush, with zero convictions from the Cabinet or key staff.

I'm guessing you dislike that fact.

Never completely true. The government used to borrow in the debt market to fund various things. Read up on what Lincoln had to do to finance the Civil War. Fascinating read. If not for a single Jewish bond salesman, there might not have ever been a war.

Socialism is 180 degrees out of phase with Libertarians. Both Socially

That is not Libertarian, Libertarians believe that individuals seeking their own best interest, will also benefit society in general.

Government will seek to benefit the government, so high taxes will benefit the government that is spending that tax for their own best interest.

It would be typical of you to refer to something else as a definition rather than coming up with your own. That only means you can't define the "will" that you yourself are talking about. If you can't define on your own what you're talking about, then you can't possibly believe in whatever it is you say.

Clearly, you don't remember any of those presidents and what they had to deal with in terms of opposition as well as whatever screw-ups they did. You need to refresh your memory with some top-notch history books because none of them had free rides, i.e. Ike's U2 spy plane affair, JFK's Bay of Pigs fiasco, Johnson's Vietnam mess, Nixon's Watergate, Ford's inconsequentialism, Reagan's Iran Contra affair, Bush I's S&L collapse and subsequent recession, Clinton's moment with Lewinsky, and that's just scraping the very surface of things for each of them.

It'll never happen, energy independence, that is. Meaning, isolationism will never happen also. That's not the way the whole world is headed anyway. You'll have to be isolationist all by your

TEXARKANA, Ark. — Evangelist Tony Alamo has been sentenced to 175 years in federal prison for taking underage girls across state lines for sex.

Alamo was sentenced Friday in Texarkana, Arkansas.

U.S. District Judge Harry F. Barnes listened to testimony from three of Alamo's victims before giving Alamo the maximum time allowed by federal guidelines. He told Alamo that he will one day face "a greater judge," and said "may (God) have mercy on your soul."

A hearing is set for Jan. 13 to determine whether Alamo's victims will get restitution.

THIS IS A BREAKING NEWS UPDATE. Check back soon for further information. AP's earlier story is below.

TEXARKANA, Ark. (AP) — Several of the child "wives" who helped convict evangelist Tony Alamo of federal sex charges were expected to return to the witness stand on Friday during his sentencing hearing.

The 75-year-old leader of the Tony Alamo Christian Ministries were scheduled to appear in court in Texarkana. A jury convicted him in July on a 10-count indictment accusing him of taking young girls across state lines for sex. Alamo faces up to 175 years in prison

After the jury's decision, the apocalyptic preacher told reporters:
"I'm just another one of the prophets that went to jail for the Gospel."

How long he stays behind bars will be up to U.S. District Judge Harry
F. Barnes, who will rule after Alamo's lawyers plead for leniency.
However, prosecutors believe Barnes will side with victims and apply a sentencing ensuring that Alamo never gets released.

"We believe he will face the rest of his natural life in prison," Assistant U.S. Attorney Kyra Jenner said in July.

Each count also carries possible fines of $250,000.

In court filings, federal prosecutors said three of the women Alamo "married" at ages as young as 8 will offer victim-impact testimony.
Prosecutors said the three also offered written statements for Alamo's sentencing report.

In their efforts to sway Barnes, defense lawyers offered letters from followers and a report from one of Alamo's doctors. The doctor expressed alarm that the evangelist has lost around 70 pounds since his arrest in September 2008 and noted that Alamo suffered a fainting spell and has had hallucinations.

That weight loss, and his previous poor health, leaves Alamo dangerously exposed to heart problems, Dr. Samuel Berkman wrote.

"I would call him a walking time bomb," Berkman wrote.

During the trial, Alamo's child "brides" described how he "married" them in private ceremonies while they were minors, sometimes giving them wedding rings. Each detailed trips beyond Arkansas' borders during which Alamo had sex with them.

With little physical evidence, prosecutors relied on the women's stories to paint an emotional portrait of a charismatic religious leader who was in charge of every aspect of his subjects' lives.

With defense witnesses, Alamo's lawyers offered questions trying to show that the his trips out of state came from business, ministerial or personal reasons. Defense lawyers largely left the issue of Alamo having sex with the girls alone.

FBI agents and Arkansas State Police troopers had raided Alamo's Fouke compound on Sept. 20, 2008, searching for evidence of the photos the evangelist took of the underage girls he abused. He was arrested five days later in Arizona.

Without reason to think otherwise, I suspect the reason has more to do with a lack of actionable evidence. Criminal courts still run on a beyond-reasonable-doubt standard, and it is highly unlikely that anything related to the decisioning around the Iraqi invasion would meet that standard.

I've a feeling that someday, the criminal regime of the Obamaco gang will provide much fodder for discussion here!

Democrats fall into the quicksand of Gitmo?

Does it occur to anyone with that perhaps, just perhaps, the people down there in Gitmo, are still there as a political election trip wire, a sand trap, or as a pit of quicksand? They could have been sentenced a long time ago, they are just there as low hanging fruit, so that intelligence officials can get more intel on people sympathetic to terrorists?

In the spirit of helping Mr. Obama and his administration, not get mired in the laborious endeavor of prosecuting traitors against the United States, and to ensure a speedy trial, we will offer this legal advise for the employees of the CIA and others whom the American so that Mr. Obama will not become distracted or confused?

Prosecuter question:

Did you eat mint ice cream on December 7th, 2002?

US Government employee response:

In order to prevent this trial from becoming an object of political manipulation, I refuse to answer that question due to my fifth amendment rights, and to not wish to mitigate the fact that the accused has already pleaded guilty, and it is my civil duty to not waste taxpayer money with further explanation since the accused wishes to assume responsibility for his actions, and any answer that I may provide, may involve reduction of the consideration of that key fact , by the jury or the judge, and to remind those affected that the accused was not arrested, he was captured as a prisoner of war, which requires that he be tried by a military tribunal, and not a civil trial?

Or some variant of that statement?

c) The views expressed by the author or website may or may not contain factual information, due to the use of sarcasm or parody. The views may or may not be complete, either by design, to pre-empt being called a liar even if telling the truth, or by error due to typographical, grammar, or other technical communication problems not realized or imagined, or the possibility of views based on false or missing information, or with the intention of being used for entertainment purposes only, and not as a definitive judgment on the actions, character, or reputation of an organization, individual, or groups of individuals, with the intent of communicating with a limited group of people, and not the general public, however no distribution restrictions apply for fair use purposes described by the US Copyright Office, if no other restrictions are present or communicated, with all commercial proceeds associated with the distribution of the content to remain the sole possession of the original author.

d) Any reference to copyrighted material is done in the spirit of fair use, to illustrate the context of a discussion regarding public events for reference purposes that adds to the conversation, for which that discussion constitutes a new and separate piece of intellectual property, for which the referenced copyrighted material can not convey by itself, and that the author reserves the right to retain any profits from the newly created intellectual property. This term also serves to promote the referenced copyrighted material, without necessarily endorsing the material for any particular fitness, use, or purpose, for which the purpose of fair use referral law was created for, through inclusion of a partial, but not whole, body of works that the copyright fair use reference applies, for which the intent of all terms of this disclaimer apply to that reference of a copyrighted work.

e) Any humor if used, is not intended to offend people, and may be designed to apply the principals of peer pressure through reverse examination to accomplish the communication of principals or ideas that consist of traditional or proposed social values that are proven to advance the common good, and are not meant to discredit, disparage or demean any person or entities in any professional or personal manner, by attempting to share through the eyes or opinion of the author, for which it is expected that you read at your own risk, with no liability held to the author or any third parties who may store, transfer, or forward this message to others, in the traditions of free speech, fair use, and to play a positive role in a society that believes that graphically depicting male homosexuals having sex, and other unusual sex acts is considered free speech or that the use of abortion to limit Negroes, Latinos, and other races from "spreading the wealth around" as a "matter of privacy" (which the author does not condone).

f) The use of humor is a known ingredient in providing teachable moments, and to validate and even demonstrate artistic expressions that are not shared by others, as demonstrated by many valuable scientific observations that were scoffed at in the past, yet proven to be quite valid decades later, upon which the humor used in all electronic communications by the author are based, in the principals and traditions of free speech and pursuit of happiness, and may not be a representation of others, including God.

g) It is the opinion of the author that you respect people when you consider their views, by reflecting their thoughts or actions against your own, which may include use of language that conveys an emotional depth that is to be imagined, but not enacted through use of language that accurately, or inaccurately describes the situation, circumstance, or idea, which does not imply that any action occur other than the consideration of the thought, for which beyond the author has no control, or liability for the action of the reader as presented in all terms of this disclaimer, and may simply be the venting of emotions with the intent of no consequence by the author to an audience the author assumes will understand the message and intent, and wishes to hear those views.

h) Since all intellectual property, discussions and other communications this disclaimer applies to, either in written, or electronic form, subscribe to the terms described in paragraph (e) and (g) of this disclaimer, under no circumstances are any communications meant to violate the terms of any electronic harassment laws which include the word “harm”, for which the author understands to be limited to the definition of physical harm (not self inflicted mental harm) that requires immediate medical attention based solely or in part by the communications of the author, regardless of whether the author chooses to remain anonymous or not.

i) It is the intention and opinion of the author that History is full of individuals that are not harmed by criticism, and in fact such criticism can motivate and inspire them to prove their critics wrong. Based on this historical evidence, any alleged mental harm amounts to self inflicted injury not treatable by either medical or other professionals (despite the fact that many people live from the profits of lies through gradual illusion, without judicial interference), for which the author has no control over the mental development of any potential reader prior to the discovery or reading of the material for which this disclaimer applies, as evident by the necessity that speech is to be protected by law as determined by the founders of the United States of America, who, in the opinion of the author, wrote the legal framework, which was created by God, not slaves.

j) Additional use of automated anonymous page use tracking computer scripts (web page programs) or advertisements may be licensed by www.google.com, for bandwidth verification, or determination of potential advertisement opportunities subject to all other terms described in this disclaimer. The author is not responsible for distributions of this work, which may be posted in public forums, and archived by www.google.com which may then create comments from people who hide their true identities by using false email credentials, who will then be violating terms of service regarding accessing computer systems by directly or indirectly accessing computer systems through hacking (hiding their requested email address or other forms of requested identification) which should not be archived for public display by www.google.com in order to fight acts of criminal behavior ranging from acts of nuisance, to lethal forms of terrorism, for which the author does not intend to encourage, and to remind it is a civic duty to all web masters to remove from public view such illegal postings by hackers, and ban their use.

l) It is the opinion of the author that effective 1 December, 2009, the proposed regulations from the FTC violate the first and fifth amendments of the United States Constitution, by infringing through economic affliction the burden without compensation all financial details concerning the communications of both free enterprise and opinion, and other civil rights such as "punishment must be fair" and not at the "discretion" of public officials, or that advertisers are assumed to be guilty of deception when United States law provides that you are innocent before being proven guilty, and are in fact demonstrations that there are current members of Congress that neither understand the spirit of the law our founding fathers made for the United States of America, or understand how they work in the opinion of the author, as of October 10th, 2009, especially in light of anticipated, and hopefully defeated, legislative taxes relating to energy use and the burden of publishers and advertisers to comply with the law and manage the environment, and in light that there are various consumer protection agencies, including the Better Business Bureau, which has free consumer information which preclude the use and need for excessive government regulation that burdens business with obstacles it may sense that it can not overcome without inflicting harm on the business plan or survival ability of the business to provide advertised, goods and or services.

m) Although the content provided meets or exceeds those new requirements to the knowledge of the author, and modifications to version 1.3 or 1.4 of this disclaimer is a result of the opinion of the author that “blogging” is another definition for a potentially infinite number or forms of electronic communication, as such the author will retroactively apply this version, 1.6 to all forms of previous communications, when and wherever possible, as time allows, in order to properly convey the intention of the author and to demonstrate an enthusiasm to comply with the law, and not enthusiastically pursue getting high on cocaine as often as possible as Barrack Hussein Obama has admitted in his book (paraphrase, synopsis), according to (mmm, mmm, mmm (sonic emphasis)) Rush Hudson Limbaugh, (mmm mmm mmm (sonic emphasis)).

n) Use of this disclaimer for either personal or professional use is permitted with no restrictions. These restrictions or disclaimers do not prohibit the author from pursuing or communicating in a truthful manner, or guarantee that the audience will understand all things as intended, and, or result in being called incoherent, or even a Chicken Chaser!

o) This disclaimer is meant to establish the intent of the author who may participate in message forums, or create other written or electronic forms of communication to comply with current law, and may be revoked without prior notice, due to circumstances beyond the author's control, changes in the law, or for any of the purposes, terms, or conditions that may be in effect or described by this disclaimer, or to changes in this disclaimer that the author may clarify in a revised version of this disclaimer.

p) This disclaimer is attached to this message, and retroactively applies to all previous forms of communication by the author, and is done so because there is no recognized central suppository of a public disclaimer recognized by the Government of the United States to the author, and as such, the legal imperative of the author is to apply this disclaimer to all manner of correspondence as the author seems fit or prudent, so that no misunderstandings occur, or to comply with past, current or future revisions of the law, due to any of, but not limited to, any or all of the terms, partial terms, or combination of terms, of this disclaimer, which is derived from the freedom of speech, for it appears to the author that the zeal of lawmakers to take away free speech outweigh the providence of attaching this disclaimer to all correspondence for which this applies, and any inconvenience for which this presents, is the result of simply complying with the law, and not to inconvenience the reader.

Watching the Democrat(s) eyes widen with horror, as the venom begins to chemically destroy the tissue, and the pain, the memory, that never fades away, slowly begins flowing through the veins, as they turn to dial ..... 9, 1, 1? (metaphoric scenario?)

President Bush was just soooooooo MBA material? He just wants to edge a mi gate us? Don't worry, be happy? Don't let your heart be troubled, they just want to talk bad about Republicans, because they can't explain their own faults?

Did ya notice how Andy Stern compared "union plans" to "congressional plans"? Well why would he make a comparison to something that is subsidized, by the tax payer (and not fees alone), to something that is not? Apparently these people have not mastered the english language, and they want to sell their "experience" world wide?

President Obama Stabs Unions in Back?

Did I hear Rush Limbuagh right the other day, that Mr. Obama wants to purge all Republican members from the Civil Service? Well guess what all Civil Service members are a part of? Ever hear of the AFL-CIO, or the American Federal Government Employees Union? Let's go to www.ontheissues.org That's not politics, that denying Federal Workers their civil rights, their freedom of speech? This is the kind of “civil rights” attorney coming out of Harvard? He loves Latinos, Asian and Black people, but if you are a White Republican, we'll just look the other way while I put on my Kommunist Krooks in Kongress Robe and Hood on? And this President campaigned on the phrase “we want to move beyond our divisions”?

When he talks about “diversity”, the first thing that comes to mind, as with any other subject, is himself? But of course, he knows all too well, the “politics of fear, undermines basic civil liberties”? So that means if you are a Republican, or not a registered Democrat, you will loose your civil liberties of free speech, and your job too? “Warping our domestic policies”? You want to explain that phrase again? Undermining civil liberties, or our “reputation around the world”? I think Jerry Kellman was wrong, Mr. Obama is not the heir of MLK, he is the distortion of Martin Luther King's ideals, aspirations, and ideology? What is Jerry Kellman, some sort of black nationalist? Is he a “skin head, black supremacist?” Isn't that how the media distorts and escalates the emotion of the day to affect the agenda of tomorrow? I don't get it. There is no racial equality agenda left on the table. There is no segregation, there is no legal rights held by one race over another. We are all responsible for our own success, or failures.

The strange part about this is that Mr. Obama recognized personal responsibility, but then claimed that racial equality was not achieved? Excuse me Mr. Obama, you can't have it both ways. I find it offensive and even deceptive that he chooses to speak this way. He does not like the Confederate Flag, because it reminds him of a People's rebellion? Is that why he takes so many international trips, he can't stand to be around the White House, with all those symbols of freedom and liberty all around? US policies are not unpopular in the Muslim world, and it is mainly one country, Iran, that is stoking the fires of hate in the region, because America allows them too? That's not a popularity contest Mr. Obama, that's a fight that's waiting to happen when the bell rings after the school day ends? All that time spent thinking, they are digging in?

And if there is no color in America, then quit talking about it? If we are all unified Americans, stop making policies that favor one over the other? President Obama has not been a fierce defender of the fundamental American values of freedom and equality under the law, purging Republican appointees is not equality, and bail outs instead of take overs and bail outs are not fundamental American values, those are experiments of disaster?

Affirmative Action in College? Why? Legalized discrimination was outlawed, so why does he bring up the allegation that segregation meant that blacks could not amass wealth? He blames history for not giving blacks loans for college, business, or mortgages, but then fails to explain high drop out rates of school children? And yes, there is a big obstacle to funding schools, especially when some cities, even though they spend billions, are not funding education because of oppressive property tax rates that drain the pool of tax payers and their ability to pay? Equal pay? Do you want to pay for a bag of peanuts that is half shelled, the same as one that is not? Pay is based on performance, on opportunity and a host of other factors that the government has no business micro managing?

Does it occur to anyone that maybe, just maybe, men are a little more aggressive and successful at earning money, because they are stronger? So basically, affirmative action is just a tool to get votes for the Democrat Party, it is not a real social tool, because you never over come an imaginary obstacle you create, but it can sure sound good trying to convince people you are trying, so you get votes? He believes in affirmative action, but that marriage is not a civil right? Unbelievable, this person passed a law school exam? What is an anti-discrimination law? A vote for the Democrat Party? Well, that's what a lot of this stuff is, just a bunch of hype to make you look more sophisticated than your opponent, but all it does is add more legal code that we don't need, for people that can't get over the fact that others don't think like they do, because they look different?

Sure, you can talk about internment camps for people, but we don't need them today, and we don't need to create them in our minds with imaginary razor wire either. I suggested a witch hunt in the US military to find others that might commit violence, and that may simply involve making sure those suspected of wrong doing are either thrown out, or given limited opportunities to do others harm with friendly fire. Populations are too large today to go through internment camps, and prison does not bring out the best in society when it can be avoided.

This is really the first time I've looked over the issues that Mr. Obama ran on in paper, and it just doesn't make sense, why he is so popular to run on themes of empty rhetoric. When times were tough in the past, Americans turned to the art of being polite, and good manners, and being patient to weather out the spells of famine. I don't remember any time where Americans thought of hating each other as a way of life. Please don't tell me we should start now.

Being that this is the most exciting, most entertaining, fact finding, idea busting, fun loving, egg shell mind crunching, invincible smacketh downeth erectus among us, you can't see the truth coming, but you know it is anyway, sonic boom of Conservatism, and, most powerful keyboard in the world,

g) It is the opinion of the author that you respect people when you consider their views, by reflecting their thoughts or actions against your own, which may include use of language that conveys an emotional depth that is to be imagined, but not enacted through use of language that accurately, or inaccurately describes the situation, circumstance, or idea, which does not imply that any action occur other than the consideration of the thought, for which beyond the author has no control, or liability for the action of the reader as presented in all terms of this disclaimer, and may simply be the venting of emotions with the intent of no consequence by the author to an audience the author assumes will understand the message and intent, and wishes to hear those views.

h) Since all intellectual property, discussions and other communications this disclaimer applies to, either in written, or electronic form, subscribe to the terms described in paragraph (e) and (g) of this disclaimer, under no circumstances are any communications meant to violate the terms of any electronic harassment laws which include the word “harm”, for which the author understands to be limited to the definition of physical harm (not self inflicted mental harm) that requires immediate medical attention based solely or in part by the communications of the author, regardless of whether the author chooses to remain anonymous or not.

i) It is the intention and opinion of the author that History is full of individuals that are not harmed by criticism, and in fact such criticism can motivate and inspire them to prove their critics wrong. Based on this historical evidence, any alleged mental harm amounts to self inflicted injury not treatable by either medical or other professionals (despite the fact that many people live from the profits of lies through gradual illusion, without judicial interference), for which the author has no control over the mental development of any potential reader prior to the discovery or reading of the material for which this disclaimer applies, as evident by the necessity that speech is to be protected by law as determined by the founders of the United States of America, who, in the opinion of the author, wrote the legal framework, which was created by God, not slaves.

j) Additional use of automated anonymous page use tracking computer scripts (web page programs) or advertisements may be licensed by www.google.com, for bandwidth verification, or determination of potential advertisement opportunities subject to all other terms described in this disclaimer. The author is not responsible for distributions of this work, which may be posted in public forums, and archived by www.google.com which may then create comments from people who hide their true identities by using false email credentials, who will then be violating terms of service regarding accessing computer systems by directly or indirectly accessing computer systems through hacking (hiding their requested email address or other forms of requested identification) which should not be archived for public display by www.google.com in order to fight acts of criminal behavior ranging from acts of nuisance, to lethal forms of terrorism, for which the author does not intend to encourage, and to remind it is a civic duty to all web masters to remove from public view such illegal postings by hackers, and ban their use.

k) Advertisements that may appear are not necessarily endorsed by the author, either by admission, or by silence, nor are any electronic links that may transport the reader to other web pages, sites, or computers, and such links that may be provided for all or any of the following known or unknown purposes, but not limited to, informational, educational, and for the purpose of giving copy right credit referral information under the terms outlined in the conditions applied to the term "fair use" regarding conversations and print under US Copy Right Law, and for which the author assumes no liability for any particular use, fitness, or legality there of, any link, current, past, or future, which the reader should use at their sole risk, with no liability to the author, or any other party that may store, transmit, or otherwise facilitate use of the material for which this disclaimer applies.

l) It is the opinion of the author that effective 1 December, 2009, the proposed regulations from the FTC violate the first and fifth amendments of the United States Constitution, by infringing through economic affliction the burden without compensation all financial details concerning the communications of both free enterprise and opinion, and other civil rights such as "punishment must be fair" and not at the "discretion" of public officials, or that advertisers are assumed to be guilty of deception when United States law provides that you are innocent before being proven guilty, and are in fact demonstrations that there are current members of Congress that neither understand the spirit of the law our founding fathers made for the United States of America, or understand how they work in the opinion of the author, as of October 10th, 2009, especially in light of anticipated, and hopefully defeated, legislative taxes relating to energy use and the burden of publishers and advertisers to comply with the law and manage the environment, and in light that there are various consumer protection agencies, including the Better Business Bureau, which has free consumer information which preclude the use and need for excessive government regulation that burdens business with obstacles it may sense that it can not overcome without inflicting harm on the business plan or survival ability of the business to provide advertised, goods and or services.

m) Although the content provided meets or exceeds those new requirements to the knowledge of the author, and modifications to version 1.3 or 1.4 of this disclaimer is a result of the opinion of the author that “blogging” is another definition for a potentially infinite number or forms of electronic communication, as such the author will retroactively apply this version, 1.6 to all forms of previous communications, when and wherever possible, as time allows, in order to properly convey the intention of the author and to demonstrate an enthusiasm to comply with the law, and not enthusiastically pursue getting high on cocaine as often as possible as Barrack Hussein Obama has admitted in his book (paraphrase, synopsis), according to (mmm, mmm, mmm (sonic emphasis)) Rush Hudson Limbaugh, (mmm mmm mmm (sonic emphasis)).

n) Use of this disclaimer for either personal or professional use is permitted with no restrictions. These restrictions or disclaimers do not prohibit the author from pursuing or communicating in a truthful manner, or guarantee that the audience will understand all things as intended, and, or result in being called incoherent, or even a Chicken Chaser!

o) This disclaimer is meant to establish the intent of the author who may participate in message forums, or create other written or electronic forms of communication to comply with current law, and may be revoked without prior notice, due to circumstances beyond the author's control, changes in the law, or for any of the purposes, terms, or conditions that may be in effect or described by this disclaimer, or to changes in this disclaimer that the author may clarify in a revised version of this disclaimer.

p) This disclaimer is attached to this message, and retroactively applies to all previous forms of communication by the author, and is done so because there is no recognized central suppository of a public disclaimer recognized by the Government of the United States to the author, and as such, the legal imperative of the author is to apply this disclaimer to all manner of correspondence as the author seems fit or prudent, so that no misunderstandings occur, or to comply with past, current or future revisions of the law, due to any of, but not limited to, any or all of the terms, partial terms, or combination of terms, of this disclaimer, which is derived from the freedom of speech, for it appears to the author that the zeal of lawmakers to take away free speech outweigh the providence of attaching this disclaimer to all correspondence for which this applies, and any inconvenience for which this presents, is the result of simply complying with the law, and not to inconvenience the reader.

- The key word is problem, not think.

Yeah clearly the key-word for 'you' is "Problem"

-while- The Key-Word for 'me' is "Think"

You view 'problems' and I "Think" about finding Solutions.

- Yeah, just as it did in 2008 - remember that will?
- Can't seem to accept it, can you?

Remember 2008 very well -but- this is 2009 and many/most Americans are now actually seeing Prez Obama as 'The US President' for these many months; and they are feeling a little Case of "Buyer's Remorse" -translation- Prez Obama could NOT be re-elected today.

Reality -if- the 2012 Presidential Election were held today Prez Obama most likely would NOT be re-elected.

OK, so our British Communists are going to introduce to the international courts, that Democrat members of Congress, in the House and Senate, are guilty of war crimes for approving weapons systems that just happen to cause birth defects, because the citizens of the country that started the war by causing it (Iraq by invading Kuwait, and then looted UN money to rebuild and break international laws) are too lazy to clean up the mess, and American members of Congress should be prosecuted as war criminals?

How's that hope and change working for ya? Temporary Change, Long Time Misery? Don't worry, be happy, President Obama is not at home, where all those symbols of liberty and freedom can bother him in the White House, he is out, making plans for international treaties?

George Bush is just soooooooo MBA material? He's edge a mi gated?

To rub your nose in your new found affection for those that kill Americans? So that jurists could be stalked by arab cab drivers in their spare time? A jury of officers in the US military is not educated, not objective enough, in a tribunal?

Military officers spend hundreds of hours in training, and have college educations? A civilian jury member only has to have a basic qualification of what, a voter registration card? Does the phrase "rub your nose in it" ring a bell?

Does the phrase "coward" mean anything, to anyone?

Universal Disclaimer for the Public Domain, Version 1.5, dated Nov 7th, 2009 (which supersedes all previous versions, to which this new version applies)

The writings, views, expressions expressed by this author to include all written and electronic forms of communication are subject to the following disclaimer and conditions:

a) The views expressed by this website and the author to include all electronic forms of communication are not representative of advertisers, or other third parties that may store and or transmit the messages from this private computer, which you may observe at your own risk, with no liability to the authors, or any party related to transmitting, storing, or any other aspect of the material involved, including email correspondence, which is not necessary to the function of the website, and may or may not be archived due to other limitations incorporated into the licensed email software in use at the time such as automated spam or virus filters. No personal information exchanged will be shared without your consent, or provided to third parties with out the express permission of the parties and, or, individuals concerned.

b) The author(s) of this content and those who may interact with it in various known or unknown electronic methods do not give permission to any third parties to share or provide private personal information who may operate as part of any type of electronic or written communications system, including all parties, who may technically intercept communications due to the nature of network conditions beyond both the author's legal and physical control, unless those communications represent violations of the law, upon which the author, and or web site will cooperate to pursue any legal remedies.

c) The views expressed by the author or website may or may not contain factual information, due to the use of sarcasm or parody. The views may or may not be complete, either by design, to pre-empt being called a liar even if telling the truth, or by error due to typographical, grammer, or other technical communication problems not realized or imagined, or the possibility of views based on false or missing information, or with the intention of being used for entertainment purposes only, and not as a definitive judgment on the actions, character, or reputation of an organization, individual, or groups of individuals, with the intent of communicating with a limited group of people, and not the general public, however no distribution restrictions apply for fair use purposes described by the US Copyright Office, if no other restrictions are present or communicated, with all commercial proceeds associated with the distribution of the content to remain the sole possession of the original author.

d) Any reference to copyrighted material is done in the spirit of fair use, to illustrate the context of a discussion regarding public events for reference purposes that adds to the conversation, for which that discussion constitutes a new and separate piece of intellectual property, for which the referenced copyrighted material can not convey by itself, and that the author reserves the right to retain any profits from the newly created intellectual property. This term also serves to promote the referenced copyrighted material, without necessarily endorsing the material for any particular fitness, use, or purpose, for which the purpose of fair use referral law was created for, through inclusion of a partial, but not whole, body of works that the copyright fair use reference applies, for which the intent of all terms of this disclaimer apply to that reference of a copyrighted work.

e) Any humor if used, is not intended to offend people, and may be designed to apply the principals of peer pressure through reverse examination to accomplish the communication of principals or ideas that consist of traditional or proposed social values that are proven to advance the common good, and are not meant to discredit, disparage or demean any person or entities in any professional or personal manner, by attempting to share through the eyes or opinion of the author, for which it is expected that you read at your own risk, with no liability held to the author or any third parties who may store, transfer, or forward this message to others, in the traditions of free speech, fair use, and to play a positive role in a society that believes that graphically depicting male homosexuals having sex, and other unusual sex acts is considered free speech or that the use of abortion to limit Negros, Latinos, and other races from "spreading the wealth around" as a "matter of privacy" (which the author does not condone).

f) The use of humor is a known ingredient in providing teachable moments, and to validate and even demonstrate artistic expressions that are not shared by others, as demonstrated by many valuable scientific observations that were scoffed at in the past, yet proven to be quite valid decades later, upon which the humor used in all electronic communications by the author are based, in the principals and traditions of free speech and pursuit of happiness, and may not be a representation of others, including God.

g) It is the opinion of the author that you respect people when you consider their views, by reflecting their thoughts or actions against your own, which may include use of language that conveys an emotional depth that is to be imagined, but not enacted through use of language that accurately, or inaccurately describes the situation, circumstance, or idea, which does not imply that any action occur other than the consideration of the thought, for which beyond the author has no control, or liability for the action of the reader as presented in all terms of this diclaimer, and may simply be the venting of emotions with the intent of no consequence by the author to an audience the author assumes will understand the message and intent, and wishes to hear those views.

h) Since all intellectual property, discussions and other communications this disclaimer applies to, either in written, or electronic form, subscribe to the terms described in paragraph (e) and (g) of this disclaimer, under no circumstances are any communications meant to violate the terms of any electronic harassment laws which include the word “harm”, for which the author understands to be limited to the definition of physical harm (not self inflicted mental harm) that requires immediate medical attention based solely or in part by the communications of the author, regardless of whether the author chooses to remain anonymous or not.

i) It is the intention and opinion of the author that History is full of individuals that are not harmed by criticism, and in fact such criticism can motivate and inspire them to prove their critics wrong. Based on this historical evidence, any alleged mental harm amounts to self inflicted injury not treatable by either medical or other professionals (despite the fact that many people live from the profits of lies through gradual illusion, without judicial interference), for which the author has no control over the mental development of any potential reader prior to the discovery or reading of the material for which this disclaimer applies, as evident by the necessity that speech is to be protected by law as determined by the founders of the United States of America, who, in the opinion of the author, wrote the legal framework, which was created by God, not slaves.

j) Additional use of automated anonymous page use tracking computer scripts (web page programs) or advertisements may be licensed by www.google.com, for bandwidth verification, or determination of potential advertisement opportunities subject to all other terms described in this disclaimer.

k) Advertisements that may appear are not necessarily endorsed by the author, either by admission, or by silence, nor are any electronic links that may transport the reader to other web pages, sites, or

computers, and such links that may be provided for all or any of the following known or unknown purposes, but not limited to, informational, educational, and for the purpose of giving copy right credit referral information under the terms outlined in the conditions applied to the term "fair use" regarding conversations and print under US Copy Right Law, and for which the author assumes no liability for any particular use, fitness, or legality there of, any link, current, past, or future, which the reader should use at their sole risk, with no liability to the author, or any other party that may store, transmit, or otherwise facilitate use of the material for which this disclaimer applies.

l) It is the opinion of the author that effective 1 December, 2009, the proposed regulations from the FTC violate the first and fifth amendments of the United States Constitution, by infringing through economic affliction the burden without compensation all financial details concerning the communications of both free enterprise and opinion, and other civil rights such as "punishment must be fair" and not at the "discretion" of public officials, or that advertisers are assumed to be guilty of deception when United States law provides that you are innocent before being proven guilty, and are in fact demonstrations that there are current members of Congress that neither understand the spirit of the law our founding fathers made for the United States of America, or understand how they work in the opinion of the author, as of October 10th, 2009, especially in light of anticipated, and hopefully defeated, legislative taxes relating to energy use and the burden of publishers and advertisers to comply with the law and manage the environment, and in light that there are various consumer protection agencies, including the Better Business Bureau, which has free consumer information which preclude the use and need for excessive government regulation that burdens business with obstacles it may sense that it can not overcome without inflicting harm on the business plan or survival ability of the business to provide advertised, goods and or services.

m) Although the content provided meets or exceeds those new requirements to the knowledge of the author, and modifications to version 1.3 or 1.4 of this disclaimer is a result of the opinion of the author that “blogging” is another definition for a potentially infinite number or forms of electronic communication, as such the author will retroactively apply this version, 1.5 to all forms of previous communications, when and wherever possible, as time allows, in order to properly convey the intention of the author and to demonstrate an enthusiasm to comply with the law, and not enthusiastically pursue getting high on cocaine as often as possible as Barack Hussein Obama has admitted in his book (paraphrase, synopsis), according to (mmm, mmm, mmm (sonic emphasis)) Rush Hudson Limbaugh, (mmm mmm mmm (sonic emphasis)).

n) Use of this disclaimer for either personal or professional use is permitted with no restrictions. These restrictions or disclaimers do not prohibit the author from pursuing or communicating in a truthful manner, or guarantee that the audience will understand all things as intended, and, or result in being called incoherent, or even a Chicken Chaser!

o) This disclaimer is meant to establish the intent of the author who may participate in message forums, or create other written or electronic forms of communication to comply with current law, and may be revoked without prior notice, due to circumstances beyond the author's control, changes in the law, or for any of the purposes, terms, or conditions that may be in effect or described by this disclaimer, or to changes in this disclaimer that the author may clarify in a revised version of this disclaimer.

p) This disclaimer is attached to this message, and retroactively applies to all previous forms of communication by the author, and is done so because there is no recognized central suppository of a public disclaimer recognized by the Government of the United States to the author, and as such, the legal imperative of the author is to apply this disclaimer to all manner of correspondence as the author seems fit or prudent, so that no misunderstandings occur, or to comply with past, current or future revisions of the law, due to any of, but not limited to, any or all of the terms, partial terms, or combination of terms, of this disclaimer, which is derived from the freedom of speech, for it appears to the author that the zeal of lawmakers to take away free speech outweigh the providence of attaching this disclaimer to all correspondence for which this applies, and any inconvenience for which this presents, is the result of simply complying with the law, and not to inconvenience the reader.

Botox with dripping infant blood, air raiding congressional budget sessions and killing common sense, says that it is fair for you to go to jail if you don't participate in the new health care plan for America, after all, you did not pay your fair share over the years with state sales tax, car insurance, or medicare or medicaid taxes?

And with a smile on her face?

No, No, No, No, Nooooo, we can't just raise payroll taxes a few dollars a week, we have to cut millions from destitute seniors budget assistance plans, and create more chaos?

g) It is the opinion of the author that you respect people when you consider their views, by reflecting their thoughts or actions against your own, which may include use of language that conveys an emotional depth that is to be imagined, but not enacted through use of language that accurately, or inaccurately describes the situation, circumstance, or idea, which does not imply that any action occur other than the consideration of the thought, for which beyond the author has no control, or liability for the action of the reader as presented in all terms of this diclaimer, and may simply be the venting of emotions with the intent of no consequence by the author to an audience the author assumes will understand the message and intent, and wishes to hear those views.

h) Since all intellectual property, discussions and other communications this disclaimer applies to, either in written, or electronic form, subscribe to the terms described in paragraph (e) and (g) of this disclaimer, under no circumstances are any communications meant to violate the terms of any electronic harassment laws which include the word “harm”, for which the author understands to be limited to the definition of physical harm (not self inflicted mental harm) that requires immediate medical attention based solely or in part by the communications of the author, regardless of whether the author chooses to remain anonymous or not.

i) It is the intention and opinion of the author that History is full of individuals that are not harmed by criticism, and in fact such criticism can motivate and inspire them to prove their critics wrong. Based on this historical evidence, any alleged mental harm amounts to self inflicted injury not treatable by either medical or other professionals (despite the fact that many people live from the profits of lies through gradual illusion, without judicial interference), for which the author has no control over the mental development of any potential reader prior to the discovery or reading of the material for which this disclaimer applies, as evident by the necessity that speech is to be protected by law as determined by the founders of the United States of America, who, in the opinion of the author, wrote the legal framework, which was created by God, not slaves.

j) Additional use of automated anonymous page use tracking computer scripts (web page programs) or advertisements may be licensed by www.google.com, for bandwidth verification, or determination of potential advertisement opportunities subject to all other terms described in this disclaimer.

k) Advertisements that may appear are not necessarily endorsed by the author, either by admission, or by silence, nor are any electronic links that may transport the reader to other web pages, sites, or

computers, and such links that may be provided for all or any of the following known or unknown purposes, but not limited to, informational, educational, and for the purpose of giving copy right credit referral information under the terms outlined in the conditions applied to the term "fair use" regarding conversations and print under US Copy Right Law, and for which the author assumes no liability for any particular use, fitness, or legality there of, any link, current, past, or future, which the reader should use at their sole risk, with no liability to the author, or any other party that may store, transmit, or otherwise facilitate use of the material for which this disclaimer applies.

l) It is the opinion of the author that effective 1 December, 2009, the proposed regulations from the FTC violate the first and fifth amendments of the United States Constitution, by infringing through economic affliction the burden without compensation all financial details concerning the communications of both free enterprise and opinion, and other civil rights such as "punishment must be fair" and not at the "discretion" of public officials, or that advertisers are assumed to be guilty of deception when United States law provides that you are innocent before being proven guilty, and are in fact demonstrations that there are current members of Congress that neither understand the spirit of the law our founding fathers made for the United States of America, or understand how they work in the opinion of the author, as of October 10th, 2009, especially in light of anticipated, and hopefully defeated, legislative taxes relating to energy use and the burden of publishers and advertisers to comply with the law and manage the environment, and in light that there are various consumer protection agencies, including the Better Business Bureau, which has free consumer information which preclude the use and need for excessive government regulation that burdens business with obstacles it may sense that it can not overcome without inflicting harm on the business plan or survival ability of the business to provide advertised, goods and or services.

m) Although the content provided meets or exceeds those new requirements to the knowledge of the author, and modifications to version 1.3 or 1.4 of this disclaimer is a result of the opinion of the author that “blogging” is another definition for a potentially infinite number or forms of electronic communication, as such the author will retroactively apply this version, 1.5 to all forms of previous communications, when and wherever possible, as time allows, in order to properly convey the intention of the author and to demonstrate an enthusiasm to comply with the law, and not enthusiastically pursue getting high on cocaine as often as possible as Barack Hussein Obama has admitted in his book (paraphrase, synopsis), according to (mmm, mmm, mmm (sonic emphasis)) Rush Hudson Limbaugh, (mmm mmm mmm (sonic emphasis)).

n) Use of this disclaimer for either personal or professional use is permitted with no restrictions. These restrictions or disclaimers do not prohibit the author from pursuing or communicating in a truthful manner, or guarantee that the audience will understand all things as intended, and, or result in being called incoherent, or even a Chicken Chaser!

o) This disclaimer is meant to establish the intent of the author who may participate in message forums, or create other written or electronic forms of communication to comply with current law, and may be revoked without prior notice, due to circumstances beyond the author's control, changes in the law, or for any of the purposes, terms, or conditions that may be in effect or described by this disclaimer, or to changes in this disclaimer that the author may clarify in a revised version of this disclaimer.

p) This disclaimer is attached to this message, and retroactively applies to all previous forms of communication by the author, and is done so because there is no recognized central suppository of a public disclaimer recognized by the Government of the United States to the author, and as such, the legal imperative of the author is to apply this disclaimer to all manner of correspondence as the author seems fit or prudent, so that no misunderstandings occur, or to comply with past, current or future revisions of the law, due to any of, but not limited to, any or all of the terms, partial terms, or combination of terms, of this disclaimer, which is derived from the freedom of speech, for it appears to the author that the zeal of lawmakers to take away free speech outweigh the providence of attaching this disclaimer to all correspondence for which this applies, and any inconvenience for which this presents, is the result of simply complying with the law, and not to inconvenience the reader.

How about discussing the emotions of getting off the short leash of McCain? Would that be "going rogue"? Should you ask Oprah, are you a "Doofus"?

Arguing with idiots anyone?

Universal Disclaimer for the Public Domain, Version 1.5, dated Nov 7th, 2009 (which supersedes all previous versions, to which this new version applies)

The writings, views, expressions expressed by this author to include all written and electronic forms of communication are subject to the following disclaimer and conditions:

a) The views expressed by this website and the author to include all electronic forms of communication are not representative of advertisers, or other third parties that may store and or transmit the messages from this private computer, which you may observe at your own risk, with no liability to the authors, or any party related to transmitting, storing, or any other aspect of the material involved, including email correspondence, which is not necessary to the function of the website, and may or may not be archived due to other limitations incorporated into the licensed email software in use at the time such as automated spam or virus filters. No personal information exchanged will be shared without your consent, or provided to third parties with out the express permission of the parties and,

or, individuals concerned.

b) The author(s) of this content and those who may interact with it in various known or unknown electronic methods do not give permission to any third parties to share or provide private personal information who may operate as part of any type of electronic or written communications system, including all parties, who may technically intercept communications due to the nature of network conditions beyond both the author's legal and physical control, unless those communications represent violations of the law, upon which the author, and or web site will cooperate to pursue any legal remedies.

c) The views expressed by the author or website may or may not contain factual information, due to the use of sarcasm or parody. The views may or may not be complete, either by design, to pre-empt being called a liar even if telling the truth, or by error due to typographical, grammer, or other technical communication problems not realized or imagined, or the possibility of views based on false or missing information, or with the intention of being used for entertainment purposes only, and not as a definitive judgment on the actions, character, or reputation of an organization, individual, or groups of individuals, with the intent of communicating with a limited group of people, and not the general public, however no distribution restrictions apply for fair use purposes described by the US Copyright Office, if no other restrictions are present or communicated, with all commercial proceeds associated with the distribution of the content to remain the sole possession of the original author.

d) Any reference to copyrighted material is done in the spirit of fair use, to illustrate the context of a discussion regarding public events for reference purposes that adds to the conversation, for which that discussion constitutes a new and separate piece of intellectual property, for which the referenced copyrighted material can not convey by itself, and that the author reserves the right to retain any profits from the newly created intellectual property. This term also serves to promote the referenced copyrighted material, without necessarily endorsing the material for any particular fitness, use, or purpose, for which the purpose of fair use referral law was created for, through inclusion of a partial, but not whole, body of works that the copyright fair use reference applies, for which the intent of all terms of this disclaimer apply to that reference of a copyrighted work.

e) Any humor if used, is not intended to offend people, and may be designed to apply the principals of peer pressure through reverse examination to accomplish the communication of principals or ideas that consist of traditional or proposed social values that are proven to advance the common good, and are not meant to discredit, disparage or demean any person or entities in any professional or personal manner, by attempting to share through the eyes or opinion of the author, for which it is expected that you read at your own risk, with no liability held to the author or any third parties who may store, transfer, or forward this message to others, in the traditions of free speech, fair use, and to play a positive role in a society that believes that graphically depicting male homosexuals having sex, and other unusual sex acts is considered free speech or that the use of abortion to limit Negros, Latinos, and other races from "spreading the wealth around" as a "matter of privacy" (which the author does not condone).

f) The use of humor is a known ingredient in providing teachable moments, and to validate and even demonstrate artistic expressions that are not shared by others, as demonstrated by many valuable scientific observations that were scoffed at in the past, yet proven to be quite valid decades later, upon which the humor used in all electronic communications by the author are based, in the principals and traditions of free speech and pursuit of happiness, and may not be a representation of others, including God.

g) It is the opinion of the author that you respect people when you consider their views, by reflecting their thoughts or actions against your own, which may include use of language that conveys an emotional depth that is to be imagined, but not enacted through use of language that accurately, or inaccurately describes the situation, circumstance, or idea, which does not imply that any action occur other than the consideration of the thought, for which beyond the author has no control, or liability for the action of the reader as presented in all terms of this diclaimer, and may simply be the venting of emotions with the intent of no consequence by the author to an audience the author assumes will understand the message and intent, and wishes to hear those views.

Yeah cause BHO might be the former president Obama.

- Besides, it's too early for buyer's remorse.

Prove It.

- Sensible people would give till he's halfway

Not in the least. A flaw in the model doesn't mean you throw the model away. You fix the flaw and move on. Greenspan went on to declare his continued faith in the free market system.

So much for your puerile response.

It was a drug addled response as well!

He needs to be moved along to another country where he'd be much happier right

I didn't say I agree with the Founders' concept of stifling inherited wealth and preventing blood dynasties because I am a libertarian.

Libertarian just means favoring less government (and hierarchical power trips in general). In a fascist state like the one we have now, government and business are one, so to bring down either, you have to kill them both.

I consider libertarian socialism as an ideal or Utopian concept, that will never again be fully achieved. But it's a great camera platform for my perspective and it helps to clarify the absurdity of what passes for civilization today.

2 dimensional political models are too simplistic to capture the nuances. I can see that it would be attractive to those who need to boil the world down into simplistic chunks, but that's not how it works.

Much better is this view, which does show the correct relationship between libertarians and anarchists (which is sharing only a distrust of goverment and no other motivations).

We'll see how reception is this year, but I was just thinking that in the past their directional antenna certainly had some strange lobes and that reception here at least was generally better off the side of the antenna rather than the beam.

Libertarianism results in less government because of it's belief in individual rights....

It's not libertarianism that means less government, it's the beliefs that they follow that mean more freedom, and that results in less government intrusions.

creates problems, the more government interferes the more problems we have.

Freedom is Libertarian, and it may be gone for ever, Socialism has never worked and was extinct before it ever lived.

It is as absurd as todays civilization...

Government is taking freedoms, every freedom taken away is a step away from freedom and a step away from Libertarianism.

I can't see Libertarians connected to socialism, they seem to be polar opposites.

I can follow Democrat to Liberal to Socialist to Marxist to fascist to Communist.

I can see Anarchist to Libertarian

Palin was supposed to be the running mate of McCain. She was supposed to be the candidate for VICE president. She was supposed to act in concert with McCain.

But she was to stupid to do that. The only thing she saw at first was all the bright shiny stuff glowing in the stores and she realized that she could have it. Then she figured out that she, with her demented ideas, could do stuff on her own, screw McCain.

One reason there is President Obama is because of Palin. If McCain had picked any one else, the local wino, a prostitute, a good 'ole boy, any one, it would have been better.

We dems had to do little actual politiking in the last two years, mostly we just watched as the repugs self destructed.

3642. Citadel Broadcasting going bankrupt

As reported by Jerry Del Colliano
http://www.insidemusicmedia.blogspot.com

Citadel CEO Farid "Fagreed" Suleman yesterday did what we said he was going to eventually do - turn to the "Nuclear Option".

In advance of the anticipated bankruptcy of Citadel on or before January 15th, Fagreed started to blow up what's left of his company after years of mismanagement on his part.

And, this is only the beginning - sad to say.

Here it is -- unfiltered -- keeping in mind that I read a trade press story yesterday playing up the "hiring marquee talent" instead of all of Fagreed's firings. While I can appreciate good spin on occasion, it's the holidays, talented people are getting fired, stations are being gutted and lies are being told.

1. Citadel started massive layoffs in Dallas and elsewhere yesterday. Talent, program directors and more will likely follow. PDs Richard Lee and Peter Stewart are out. Watch how many more Citadel tries to slip under the radar because under their repeater radio scenario no PDs will be needed on the local level. Just "traffic cops" as I was saying yesterday to direct repeater programming onto local stations. (Someone please, contact FCC Commissioner Michael Copps who is aiming to tighten what it takes to hold an FCC license. So much for getting the FCC off our backs if it results in this mess called consolidated radio).

2. Live and local morning shows will be a thing of the past on most Citadel stations. In their place, Repeater Radio - syndicated non-local, less expensive options.

3. Citadel will be adopting what it calls a new approach to on-air talent. They call it "Marquee Talent" from Citadel-owned major market stations voice tracking shifts in other markets. I call it "Cheapee Talent" -- not local and amortized by the more stations that carry it. You can decide if they are marquee talent when you see their ratings - in local markets

To all radio amateurs

SB PROP ARL ARLP046
ARLP046 Propagation de K7RA

Sunspot region 1029 disappeared after October 30, but not because it faded away. It was transiting over our Sun's western horizon on its trip around the back side. Six days after it was gone a new region 1030 appeared for several days, November 5-7. On November 8 region 1030 had faded away and seemed like other weak spots we've seen over the past couple of years, except they appeared for one day with a sunspot number of 11. Sunspot region 1030 ran for three days with sunspot numbers of 15, 16 and 11. But then on November 9 the sunspot region re-emerged, with sunspot numbers of 14, 13, 11 and 11 through November 12.

While 1030 is passing over the western limb, we can still see sunspot region 1029 transiting the far side of our local star, and now it is approaching the eastern horizon. A short time ago this observation would have been impossible, but with the STEREO mission (see http://stereo.gsfc.nasa.gov/) our total vision of the Sun now approaches 85%.

Old region 1029 appears as a bright area of magnetic disturbance, and we can't actually determine what the sunspot number or the total area of the region might be, but it still appears to have a large and robust magnetic signature.

The 45-day Air Force and NOAA Ap and flux forecast gives us some clue about the dates it may emerge into view, and when it is most directly facing Earth.

Predicted solar flux is 73 for November 13, 74 on November 14, 75 on November 15-21, and 80 for November 22-24. After that the forecast shows it declining to 75, 72 and 70. This suggests it might reach the most geoeffective position, that is, the position where it is near the Sun's central meridian relative to the Earth, around November 22-24.

Conditions have been good, with continued weak or missing solar wind, and very quiet geomagnetic indicators. As noted in previous weeks, a check of geomagnetic data at http://www.swpc.noaa.gov/ftpdir/indices/DGD.txt shows day after day with K index values at 0, which is as low as it can go. During past times and previous cycles, it was common to see a constant K index of 3, and A index of 12-15 for mid-latitudes. Note at the bottom of our bulletin that the average daily mid-latitude A index for the past week was less than 1!

That same NOAA and Air Force prediction shows a low planetary A index of only 5 for November 13-18, 8 on November 19-20, 6 on November 21, and back to 5 again for November 22 and onward. Geophysical Institute Prague for November 13-19 predicts quiet November 13-14, quiet to unsettled November 15, and quiet again November 16-19.

Bernie Mitchell, KD8KEO of Wayne, Michigan says he is a new amateur radio operator (about 9 months) and had good luck on 40 meters with the Nightwatch Net in the evening, but around the end of October after 0000 UTC he noted signals seemed weak.

He didn't say where the other stations are, but running some numbers through a propagation program -- such as W6ELprop -- shows quite a seasonal variation between the end of October and two months earlier, when using targets such as the center of the continental United States, or Atlanta, for example. But looking west, the propagation is better on 40 meters. Using California as a target, about 2000 miles away, propagation seems to be good day and night in August or October, whether we have sunspot activity or not.

Atlanta is only about 600 miles from Bernie, and 40 meters seems to need a longer path at this time of year, and also note that signals to the west have sunlight over the path much later in the day.

Willis Cooke, K5EWJ wrote in with a comment about backscatter. He writes, "I read with interest about the QSO between W5ZIT and AE5PW on 10/30/09."

He continues, "On 11/02/09 I found HL3ERJ at 5x7 on 17 meters SSB at 2311 UTC. I gave him a quick call in the pile and received a prompt answer with a 4x4 report. Many others across the western US were calling but he could not hear them. W5/VK2ACM came on and announced that he was in Louisiana and was the only other station to work Choi (HL3ERJ) while I was listening. A California station asked Clint (W5/VK2ACM) to QSY up and I followed. I found that Clint was 5x9 with my beam pointed toward Korea, but disappeared when I pointed it at about 17 degrees toward Shreveport (where Clint was), 229 miles to the North. After the California station finished, I called Clint and we talked for about 5 minutes before he disappeared during one of my short transmissions. An email to Clint confirmed that he had not moved his beam from the NW and I had dropped out suddenly."

He goes on to say, "This is what I think is an E layer Ion Cloud lying over the NW US and back scatter. W5ZIT with a fixed pattern antenna would not be able to detect his path. We see this fairly often on ten meters where it is often the only mode of propagation available. It is also present on lower frequencies, but is sometimes masked by F layer propagation so the only clues are shorter than normal propagation to nearby stations. Actually, I think it is not really short when the signal bounces off a cloud 1 or 2 thousand miles away to return to Earth 1 or 2 hundred miles away. Usually back scatter signals are not so strong, but sometimes they are."

Thanks, Willis!

Jon Jones, N0JK of Wichita, Kansas dropped a short line about 10 meters in the CQ Worldwide SSB DX Contest. On Saturday afternoon, October 24, HT2N in Nicaragua and several Brazilian stations were very loud. Using 10 watts on 10 meter SSB into a shortened mag-mount CB whip on the roof of his car, he worked HT2N and PY5KD around 2100 UTC while driving around and listening.

"...modern social democracy has deviated from socialism, and supports the idea of a mixed economy which incorporates elements of both socialism and capitalism.[2] Social democrats aim to reform capitalism democratically through state regulation and the creation of programs that work to counteract or remove the social injustice and inefficiencies they see as inherent in capitalism. A product of this effort has been the modern democratic welfare state. This approach significantly differs from traditional socialism, which aims to replace the capitalist system entirely with a new economic system characterized by either state or direct worker ownership of the means of production.

In many countries, social democrats continue to exist alongside democratic socialists, who stand to the left of them on the political spectrum. The two movements sometimes operate within the same political party, such as the Brazilian Workers' Party[3] and the French Socialist Party. In recent years, several social democratic parties (in particular, the British Labour Party) have embraced more centrist, Third Way policy positions. This development has generated considerable controversy..."

I left for dinner at 2130, returned home at around 2300 and found the signal to be pretty much as before, maybe slightly better. Still playing quite a few recognizable tunes.

Will be interesting to see what difference the beam change at 2330 will make.

Still using the Drake R8 with 200' W-E wire. I have the pre-amp on, AGC off.

Nice of the Oblama white House to put NYC back in the cross hairs in an even bigger way than it always is anyway. Should be quite the worldwide spectacle and the militant muslim loons will be wanting to make another splash during it. Might as well put NY on highest terror alert for the multi-month trial. A full defense will include all the crackpot conspiracy theories being trotted out. They just gave the extremists the largest publicity forum on earth. Nice move, O.

Hiya

Sorry, I've just arrived from the 20th century and I need some info.
Wife and I are hunkering down here in NY and cutting costs wherever possible. (We would rather spend our money on food & water, gold & silver and guns & ammo.) I just bought the TV described below, Samsung LN32B460B2DXZA, and I'm going to try and run this thing on an antenna. Am I going to need a converter box between the antenna and set? I'm thinking probably not.

All SAMSUNG LCD HDTVs have an integrated digital tuner. So, whether you're watching over-the-air HD digital broadcasts or connecting to cable/satellite service, SAMSUNG has you covered.

Thank you for your time and Obama sucks.

Kind regards,
Bob

P.S. Silver is still a nice buy at this time. Under $18 and expected to go to $22 by April 2010. I just bought 50K worth and I'm hoping to finance a garage in the spring with my profits.

If it has bad dial calibration or other well-known flaws, well at this price who cares?

It's a few cents higher than it was earlier today when I ordered one but it's still a fantastic buy at this price. I don't know how long Amazon will keep it this low, today is Nov. 14, but it's sure worth ordering at today's price.

Do you think the Europeans will decide to defend themselves and pay for their Socialism?

How will that work? They barely have any economy as it is... Add in the 20% it will cost to keep a real army and they will be pushing 95% taxes for the average worker. It will also drop their GDP to a -19.5% GDP.

DxAce,

I tried to mail you.

look at the different sources for the sw lists: a for Aoki, e for Eibi:
http://users.fulladsl.be/~spb13810/radio/indexsrc.htm
(unfortunately freqs with the . in it (comma) at the end)

I have the idea that Eibi is more up to date (I found some of these freqs for Radio Netherlands/RNW) .. Is that true??)
I think about squeezing Eibi's data into the same format as I did for Aoki:
http://users.fulladsl.be/~spb13810/radio/txlistaoki/
http://users.fulladsl.be/~spb13810/radio/swlistaoki/

This means you'll have the eibi data in a per hour format. (And I will delete this hourly data for Aoki/ space on the webserver..)

Strange thing too: the hfcc data is 5500 tx, while both Aoki and Eibi are +- 10500.

When I have Hfcc in my kind of format, I can publish it as well...

I have the idea some people think "what! 3 sources for SW data?? Then no one is good!"
But I can't help that ;-) I can show one source... ;-) and delete the rest/ keep it for me & myself & I.

And they do. Various countries have lowered the VAT over the last few years in response to the economic downturn.

The also mess with the income tax rates. 25 years ago, I was writing compensation plans for sales reps in Sweden. The challenge was how to compensate high wage earners in a country where the government was going to take 93% of what I paid them above a certain point. So, you paid them with perks that the goverment doesn't tax: a better company car, fully paid for vacations, etc.

Now, the highest income tax rate in Sweden is 57%. Big difference.

Correct. However, the core difference is that social democrats recognize that government ownership of the means of production is, at its core, counterproductive to a prosperous society. (Even though they may very well own certain productive processes deemed essential to society, they do so not because they think they can improve their efficiency, but because they feel it necessary to prioritize the process differenly than the free market would allot.)

Socialists refuse to recognize this.

Eventually, yes. The younger generation in Europe is much more concerned about fiscal responsibility (and sustainable social welfare systems) than their parents are.

It would of course help if the US would grow a pair and tell them that they're no longer going to contribute substantially to NATO.

They've created a generational mess. It will take them time to work out

Looks like Prez Obama's US AG Eric Holder is trying hard to make Obama a one term president and cost the Democrats control of both the US House and US Senate in the next Elections.

? Has US AG Eric Holder Give The Republicans
the 2010 and 2012 Elections ?

Trying Islam-O-Fascist Terrorist WAR CRIMINALS {Foreign Mass Murderers} as everyday Civilian Criminals : Begs Disaster {Attacks} to Happen Again in New York City.

The US Congress passed Laws to Try all these Non-Combatant Islam-O-Fascist Terrorist WAR
CRIMINALS -via- a Military Tribunal System :
But the Obama-Regime© seams to Ignore this Law and the Public Safety of the Citizens of New York City.

Another Islam-O-Fascist Terrorist Attack on New York City might have happen some day -but- Now an Attack on NYC is certain to Happen one day in the next Year or two or three because of this Trial of the Islam-O-Fascist Terrorist in New York City. {Holder Is Inviting Disaster To Happen}

Some Attack {Any Attack} on/in New York City during the Trial will be BLAMED on the Trial and Holder and on Prez Obama -then- Prez Obama and the Democrats will Pay for this Mistake and Inviting another Attack in Elections of 2010, 2011 and 2012. {BHO's Re-Election}

The Any Attack Scenario :
The Attack by the Islam-O-Fascist Terrorists could be on many 'soft-targets' within NYC that will produce High Body Counts and Video Images of Destruction for the Islam-O-Fascist Terrorist and the World Media will gladly run the Videos around the World 24/7 showing the Death and Destruction. This will be Great Propaganda for the Islam-O-Fascist Terrorists -but- Make Prez Obama and the Obama-Regime© to appear to be Foolish and Stupid for Inviting the Attacks once again on NYC.
-wrt- 2005 London UK Subway and Bus Attacks
by the Islam-O-Fascist Terrorists.
http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/7_July_2005_London_bombings

The Courts Attack Scenario :
Worse for Prez Obama and the Obama-Regime© would be a Direct Attack on the NYC Federal Court House. The Attack could be a stand-off-attack on the US Federal Court building from four-or-more nearby adjacent buildings that the Islam-O-Fascist Terrorists can easily see the Court Room Floor that the Trial is being held on with any variant of RPGs.
The US Federal Government has to Defend the Whole Building and it's perimeter -while- all the Islam-O-Fascist Terrorists have to do to make the 24/7 News Headlines around the World is Hit the Court Building on all four sides to have a Terror Propaganda Victory and Bad News for the USA and NYC.

IMHO - US AG Eric Holder has make the US
Federal Courts Building in NYC the new PRIME TARGET {Ground-Zero} for every Islam-O-Fascist Terrorist on this Planet Earth to Attack.
-note- Remember to the Islam-O-Fascist Terrorists those on Trial will Die as Martyrs for Islam.
-obtw- These same Islam-O-Fascist Terrorists will 'see' the failure of Prez Obama to get re-elected in 2012 as a Result of these Attacks as another Propaganda Victory for their Jihad cause any Attack on NYC during the Trial will Impact the US Elections in 2010 and 2012.
-omg- Holder may just have given the Republicans control of the US House and the US Senate in 2010 and put a Republican in the White House in 2012.

HEY US AG ERIC HOLDER JUST MAY BE
YOU SHOULD RETHINK THIS ONE ~ RHF
-hint- You Prosecute Criminals to Protect the Citizens of the USA -not- To Put The Citizens of NYC & the USA at Risk of Terrorist Attacks by Islamic Jihadists.
-tip- A US Military Tribunal for these Terrorist at GITMO would have been Legal and Served Justice; plus Protected the Citizens of the USA too.

- Correct. However, the core difference is that social democrats recognize
- that government ownership of the means of production is, at its core,
- counterproductive to a prosperous society. (Even though they may very

- well own certain productive processes deemed essential to society, they
- do so not because they think they can improve their efficiency, but
- because they feel it necessary to prioritize the process differenly than
- the free market would allot.)
- Socialists refuse to recognize this.

Sort of like a Government Enterprise being Taxed

Tax Payers = Share Holders in the Government.

Then imagine the IRS Paying a Dividend to the

I travel extensively for work in Europe, talk just as extensively about these issues to my colleagues, and have relatives who live and work in Belgium, Germany, Sweden, The Netherlands, Austria, and Italy.

So, the answer to your question is "I go there and talk to people who live there", which is always advantageous to really understanding what is happening on the ground, considering the challenged and adversarial nature of much of the European media.

I would suggest that if you DON'T go there and talk to people, and instead rely on the european and US media, you are going to be a bit challenged in your understanding of european issues.

What did I write that was 'coward'ly ?

No -but- I been to NYC a few times.

Abuse Rhetoric - I really don't remember Killing any Americans any where around the World even here in the USA.

Not in NYC so my 'butts' not at risk.

it's time to be the big scaredy cat.

NO - It's Time for Practical War Time Decisions

IMHO - US AG Eric Holders decision to Move the Trial of the Islam-O-Fascist Terrorists from Again Calling me a "Coward" does not change the 'potential' outcome by Moving the Trial from GITMO to NYC. ? Why Create a Disaster ?

Necessary Trials in GITMO that were accompanied by Attacks around the World or in the USA would have engendered a disassociated response from the American Voters : As the unfortunate Price of Doing the Necessary Justice in the Right Place.

Unnecessary Trials in NYC that were accompanied by Attacks in NYC will engendered an Associated Response from the American Voters : As the Completely Unnecessary and Deadly Price of Doing Justice in the Wrong Place.

Very clever posting...I enjoyed it. Don't understand the response deriding the "intelligence" of what you wrote because your posting was clearly written by a bright and clever individual.

Yes, we too have just arrived from the 20th century; quite frankly I am looking around on Priceline.COM to buy affordable tickets back to the 20th Century. After arriving in the 21st Century we feel it is much over-rated and sucks.

Bought my wife a really slick SONY LCD under cabinet TV/CD for the kitchen 2 years ago. It too has a digital tuner but you still need one of their damned converter boxes. By the way, the first thing you'll notice about the crappy new HDTV system is that it is susceptible to every form of interference and you will lose portions of programs in fading and look at a screen full of "squares" until the signal level returns to full strength.

Most of the time we are watching old analog reruns from VHS tapes anyway. Too bad the NAB and TV industry couldn't have grown some cajones and spoke up against changing over to the new and inferior system. By the way, even Radio Havana Cuba (Cuba!) is laughing at us for making this change. Since buying a digital converter (at a garage sale) 2 months ago we've probably logged no more than an hour watching TV. The morons in the industry haven't heard yet about all the competition TV stations have from high speed Internet etc etc etc. Not a smart move to make it MORE DIFFICULT to build an audience, was it? It's just as well...fewer people to see the insipid political ads they'll be running in 2010 and 2012. Justice.

Good luck.

A socialist is someone that wants to take my money to pay for their shit.

Like we paid for the military security of Europe and Europe decided to give their people government health care, soon they'll be paying for their own military and their own health care.

We will be in the toilet and Europe will get no subsidy to prop up their Socialist systems.

Obama will bankrupt America and by doing so he will bankrupt the entire Socialist world we supported.

NATO the UN, World bank and S. KOREA Sending our "industry" abroad and now the redistrobution of our last income producing industry of health care.

The Progressives have run every other industry from our shores with government intrusion into the free markets and taxes.

depression and it will linger for decades.

The "federalists" of the 1780's were actually the "unionists". If the English language is held to account the "anti-federalist" were the true defenders of the federation described in the "Articles of Confederation" and the so called "federlists" were the "unionists". By adopting the moniker of "federalist" these unionists left the true federalist with a serious political problem and forced them to the defensive posture of being against something as opposed to _for_ something. They became the "anti-federalists". It is much the same thing with the "National Socialist German Workers Party".

http://www.fordham.edu/halsall/mod/mussolini-fascism.html

The movement led by the "National Socialist German Worker's Party" was fascist just as the movement of the federalists was actually unionist and the opposite of true federalism. Ain't politics grand?

The rightarded refuse to understand that government is simply NOT a business. Government is not supposed to make a profit and it is not actually advisable for government to operate without _SMALL_ deficits.

0.9% (2008 est.)
country comparison to the world: 181
3% (2007 est.)
3.4% (2006 est.)

Expect as they use their GDP for military that it will fall and it is generally within the margin of error so it will be flat to negative GDP.

(paraphrase quote) "if the terrorists are not convicted, we will hold them anyways, since international law allows us to hold people that are a threat to others"? (with a smile on his face) (Fox News with Chris Wallace)?

How many people are smiling when they pay taxes in New York? Isn't this the kind of eccentric thinking that motivated the Americans to leave the British Empire? With a smile on your face you say that, and yet we just went through months of President Bush bashing, and you did nothing?

And you wonder why there some feel the Democrat party is not thinking about its citizens, but it's own pocket book, and they are like out of control gamblers, only there is no "Congressional Member Anonymous", like other gambling or drug prevention organizations? Should there be?

So the truth is, these "leaders" expect their supporters and opponents, to just ignore the common sense that when members of a German U-Boat team, who did not blow anything up, were convicted of treason, and executed within months, not years, we are supposed to think what, of the Supreme Court, who claims that when the media reports that these guys admitted they were guilty, we should applaud their efforts?

Is the competition for political elections worth the smile on your face when you pay taxes?

And unless some political leaders in the United States, apply the international peer pressure that hey, if you are Muslim, your religion is being used as a potential tool of genocide, if you don't examine how radical killers in the name of Islam are distorting the international community values, if these radical killers are not stopped, and that genocide may apply gradually over time, and cover all races, not just a few?

By ignoring the fact that Muslim radicals should be held out as terrorists, how do you build consensus in the international community that radical acts of Islam are not necessary and evil, when those radicals ignore the media, and only listen to one message, the one written in blood?

If international law provides that the United States can hold dangerous people indefinitely, then this is not about world opinion, is it?

e) Any humor if used, is not intended to offend people, and may be designed to apply the principals of peer pressure through reverse examination to accomplish the communication of principals or ideas that consist of traditional or proposed social values that are proven to advance the common good, and are not meant to discredit, disparage or demean any person or entities in any professional or personal manner, by attempting to share through the eyes or opinion of the author, for which it is expected that you read at your own risk, with no liability held to the author or any third parties who may store, transfer, or forward this message to others, in the traditions of free speech, fair use, and to play a positive role in a society that believes that graphically depicting male homosexuals having sex, and other unusual sex acts is considered free speech or that the use of abortion to limit Negros, Latinos, and other races from "spreading the wealth around" as a "matter of privacy" (which the author does not condone).

f) The use of humor is a known ingredient in providing teachable moments, and to validate and even demonstrate artistic expressions that are not shared by others, as demonstrated by many valuable scientific observations that were scoffed at in the past, yet proven to be quite valid decades later, upon which the humor used in all electronic communications by the author are based, in the principals and traditions of free speech and pursuit of happiness, and may not be a representation of others, including God.

g) It is the opinion of the author that you respect people when you consider their views, by reflecting their thoughts or actions against your own, which may include use of language that conveys an emotional depth that is to be imagined, but not enacted through use of language that accurately, or inaccurately describes the situation, circumstance, or idea, which does not imply that any action occur other than the consideration of the thought, for which beyond the author has no control, or liability for the action of the reader as presented in all terms of this diclaimer, and may simply be the venting of emotions with the intent of no consequence by the author to an audience the author assumes will understand the message and intent, and wishes to hear those views.

h) Since all intellectual property, discussions and other communications this disclaimer applies to, either in written, or electronic form, subscribe to the terms described in paragraph (e) and (g) of this disclaimer, under no circumstances are any communications meant to violate the terms of any electronic harassment laws which include the word “harm”, for which the author understands to be limited to the definition of physical harm (not self inflicted mental harm) that requires immediate medical attention based solely or in part by the communications of the author, regardless of whether the author chooses to remain anonymous or not.

i) It is the intention and opinion of the author that History is full of individuals that are not harmed by criticism, and in fact such criticism can motivate and inspire them to prove their critics wrong. Based on this historical evidence, any alleged mental harm amounts to self inflicted injury not treatable by either medical or other professionals (despite the fact that many people live from the profits of lies through gradual illusion, without judicial interference), for which the author has no control over the mental development of any potential reader prior to the discovery or reading of the material for which this disclaimer applies, as evident by the necessity that speech is to be protected by law as determined by the founders of the United States of America, who, in the opinion of the author, wrote the legal framework, which was created by God, not slaves.

j) Additional use of automated anonymous page use tracking computer scripts (web page programs) or advertisements may be licensed by www.google.com, for bandwidth verification, or determination of potential advertisement opportunities subject to all other terms described in this disclaimer.

k) Advertisements that may appear are not necessarily endorsed by the author, either by admission, or by silence, nor are any electronic links that may transport the reader to other web pages, sites, or computers, and such links that may be provided for all or any of the following known or unknown purposes, but not limited to, informational, educational, and for the purpose of giving copy right credit referral information under the terms outlined in the conditions applied to the term "fair use" regarding conversations and print under US Copy Right Law, and for which the author assumes no liability for any particular use, fitness, or legality there of, any link, current, past, or future, which the reader should use at their sole risk, with no liability to the author, or any other party that may store, transmit, or otherwise facilitate use of the material for which this disclaimer applies.

l) It is the opinion of the author that effective 1 December, 2009, the proposed regulations from the FTC violate the first and fifth amendments of the United States Constitution, by infringing through economic affliction the burden without compensation all financial details concerning the communications of both free enterprise and opinion, and other civil rights such as "punishment must be fair" and not at the "discretion" of public officials, or that advertisers are assumed to be guilty of deception when United States law provides that you are innocent before being proven guilty, and are in fact demonstrations that there are current members of Congress that neither understand the spirit of the law our founding fathers made for the United States of America, or understand how they work in the opinion of the author, as of October 10th, 2009, especially in light of anticipated, and hopefully defeated, legislative taxes relating to energy use and the burden of publishers and advertisers to comply with the law and manage the environment, and in light that there are various consumer protection agencies, including the Better Business Bureau, which has free consumer information which preclude the use and need for excessive government regulation that burdens business with obstacles it may sense that it can not overcome without inflicting harm on the business plan or survival ability of the business to provide advertised, goods and or services.

m) Although the content provided meets or exceeds those new requirements to the knowledge of the author, and modifications to version 1.3 or 1.4 of this disclaimer is a result of the opinion of the author that “blogging” is another definition for a potentially infinite number or forms of electronic communication, as such the author will retroactively apply this version, 1.5 to all forms of previous communications, when and wherever possible, as time allows, in order to properly convey the intention of the author and to demonstrate an enthusiasm to comply with the law, and not enthusiastically pursue getting high on cocaine as often as possible as Barack Hussein Obama has admitted in his book (paraphrase, synopsis), according to (mmm, mmm, mmm (sonic emphasis)) Rush Hudson Limbaugh, (mmm mmm mmm (sonic emphasis)).

n) Use of this disclaimer for either personal or professional use is permitted with no restrictions. These restrictions or disclaimers do not prohibit the author from pursuing or communicating in a truthful manner, or guarantee that the audience will understand all things as intended, and, or result in being called incoherent, or even a Chicken Chaser!

o) This disclaimer is meant to establish the intent of the author who may participate in message forums, or create other written or electronic forms of communication to comply with current law, and may be revoked without prior notice, due to circumstances beyond the author's control, changes in the law, or for any of the purposes, terms, or conditions that may be in effect or described by this disclaimer, or to changes in this disclaimer that the author may clarify in a revised version of this disclaimer.

p) This disclaimer is attached to this message, and retroactively applies to all previous forms of communication by the author, and is done so because there is no recognized central suppository of a public disclaimer recognized by the Government of the United States to the author, and as such, the legal imperative of the author is to apply

this disclaimer to all manner of correspondence as the author seems fit or prudent, so that no misunderstandings occur, or to comply with past, current or future revisions of the law, due to any of, but not limited to, any or all of the terms, partial terms, or combination of terms, of this disclaimer, which is derived from the freedom of speech, for it appears to the author that the zeal of lawmakers to take away free speech outweigh the providence of attaching this disclaimer to all correspondence for which this applies, and any inconvenience for which this presents, is the result of simply complying with the law, and not to inconvenience the reader.

The writings, views, expressions expressed by this author to include all written and electronic forms of communication are subject to the following disclaimer and conditions:

a) The views expressed by this website and the author to include all electronic forms of communication are not representative of advertisers, or other third parties that may store and or transmit the messages from this private computer, which you may observe at your own risk, with no liability to the authors, or any party related to transmitting, storing, or any other aspect of the material involved, including email correspondence, which is not necessary to the function of the website, and may or may not be archived due to other limitations incorporated into the licensed email software in use at the time such as automated spam or virus filters. No personal information exchanged will be shared without your consent, or provided to third parties with out the express permission of the parties and, or, individuals concerned.

b) The author(s) of this content and those who may interact with it in various known or unknown electronic methods do not give permission to any third parties to share or provide private personal information who may operate as part of any type of electronic or written communications system, including all parties, who may technically intercept communications due to the nature of network conditions beyond both the author's legal and physical control, unless those communications represent violations of the law, upon which the author, and or web site will cooperate to pursue any legal remedies.

c) The views expressed by the author or website may or may not contain factual information, due to the use of sarcasm or parody. The views may or may not be complete, either by design, to pre-empt being called a liar even if telling the truth, or by error due to typographical, grammer, or other technical communication problems not realized or imagined, or the possibility of views based on false or missing information, or with the intention of being used for entertainment purposes only, and not as a definitive judgment on the actions, character, or reputation of an organization, individual, or groups of individuals, with the intent of communicating with a limited group of people, and not the general public, however no distribution restrictions apply for fair use purposes described by the US Copyright Office, if no other restrictions are present or communicated, with all commercial proceeds associated with the distribution of the content to remain the sole possession of the original author.

d) Any reference to copyrighted material is done in the spirit of fair use, to illustrate the context of a discussion regarding public events for reference purposes that adds to the conversation, for which that discussion constitutes a new and separate piece of intellectual property, for which the referenced copyrighted material can not convey by itself, and that the author reserves the right to retain any profits from the newly created intellectual property. This term also serves to promote the referenced copyrighted material, without necessarily endorsing the material for any particular fitness, use, or purpose, for which the purpose of fair use referral law was created for, through inclusion of a partial, but not whole, body of works that the copyright fair use reference applies, for which the intent of all terms of this disclaimer apply to that reference of a copyrighted work.

e) Any humor if used, is not intended to offend people, and may be designed to apply the principals of peer pressure through reverse examination to accomplish the communication of principals or ideas that consist of traditional or proposed social values that are proven to advance the common good, and are not meant to discredit, disparage or demean any person or entities in any professional or personal manner, by attempting to share through the eyes or opinion of the author, for which it is expected that you read at your own risk, with no liability held to the author or any third parties who may store, transfer, or forward this message to others, in the traditions of free speech, fair use, and to play a positive role in a society that believes that graphically depicting male homosexuals having sex, and other unusual sex acts is considered free speech or that the use of abortion to limit Negros, Latinos, and other races from "spreading the wealth around" as a "matter of privacy" (which the author does not condone).

This entry gives the gross domestic product (GDP) or value of all final goods and services produced within a nation in a given year. A nation's GDP at purchasing power parity (PPP) exchange rates is the sum value of all goods and services produced in the country valued at prices prevailing in the United States. This is the measure most economists prefer when looking at per-capita welfare and when comparing living conditions or use of resources across countries. The measure is difficult to compute, as a US dollar value has to be assigned to all goods and services in the country regardless of whether these goods and services have a direct equivalent in the United States (for example, the value of an ox-cart or non-US military equipment); as a result, PPP estimates for some countries are based on a small and sometimes different set of goods and services. In addition, many countries do not formally participate in the World Bank's PPP project that calculates these measures, so the resulting GDP estimates for these countries may lack precision. For many developing countries, PPP-based GDP measures are multiples of the official exchange rate (OER) measure. The differences between the OER- and PPP-denominated GDP values for most of the wealthy industrialized countries are generally much smaller.

Dollars-Make-Cents Reality Check :

Every US Dollar Increase in the Price of Silver and Gold is One more US Dollar Decrease in the Relative "Value" of the US Dollar; and that does not reprsent a Profit; just the preservation of your original Capital Investment in the Gold anbd Silver.

Once the USA is Bankrupt in the next Decade and can no longer support it's Military and resigns
as a Global Peacekeeper:

USA is Bankruptcy will happen when the US Dollar is Devaluated to 20~25 Cents on the Dollar if 'we' Americans are Lucky
-translation- Your $50K would be worth $200K~$250K
in New {Devalued} Dollars.
-but- a $500 HDTV that is Made-in-China would then Cost $2000~$2500 New {Devalued} Dollars.

-or- to 5~10 Cents on the Dollar if 'we' Americans are Unlucky.
-translation- Your $50K would be worth $500K~$1MK
in New {Devalued} Dollars.
-but- a $500 HDTV that is Made-in-China would then Cost $5K~$10K New {Devalued} Dollars.

Gold Ain't No Investment : It's a Hedge Against the Devaluation of the US Dollar little-by-little year-by-year for Decades -or- a Massive Monetary Collapse of the US Dollar.

gol or silver take your 'pick' -cause- the future

Hi Bill,

I was in the Pharma industry for over 10 years. I've got one that finished an expanded Phase II in California and Thailand (UC781) and should hit market one of these years (5 years would be my guess) and have been involved with Phase III trials with another drug so I know a little bit ;-) about pharmaceuticals.

It's good to see that someone else has a chem. background here.

Cheers!

I like you Nurkie - you're wrong all the time! You really need to quit being so envious of people with an education and try to get one yourself.

I've managed controlled materials with the government's blessings - I doubt any government would ever give you that okay.

It's often easier to recrystallize the salts to increase their purity.
From an industrial point-of-view this easier to do than trying other methods of purification.

Nothing anecdotal about it, child.

My own nephew is now back at work because Sweden reclassified his particular physical problem from "disability" to "able-bodied" as part of the government's pullback of covered benefits of their social welfer system. You can quite easily get a list of such things that are no longer covered if you care to do some research. Same thing for the Netherlands and Germany (at least) which have also pulled back on coverage in their systems.

Simply because the fact is transmitted word-of-mouth rather than in a media outlet does not render it unfactual.

Now, back to your trailer park. You're obviously one of those Americans who doesn't have a passport, but considers themselves an expert on world affairs.

No. You can do social welfare sustainably. That's just arithmetic.

Whether it's wise or not is another matter entirely.

I don't think it has anything to do with the "progressives". It's just capital moving around the globe looking for the highest level of efficiency. We're a along way away from taxation being a major driver of that move, although it may come to that.

My question would be, if they "barely have any economy..." then why is it that the Euro, which started out on par with the $US, is now worth half again as much as said $US?

Three reasons are usually cited:

The first is that the Euro doesn't dilute easily, since individual countries can't be tempted (as we are) to print money to solve their problems. This is why some countries (Italy and Greece, mostly, but it came up in Germany as well) were talking about dropping the Euro for their traditional currencies so they could dilute their way out of some of their financial problems.

The second is that Europe has a very large developing market (Eastern Europe) component, and the currencies of developing markets are doing very well right now. So, if you want to speculate on rapid growth in Romania, you'd do it with the Euro.

The third is that the European central bank has one mission alone, and that's price stability. So, they're inflation hawks. The Fed has two missions which work counter to one another, which is price stability and employment. So, the Fed has to balance the two, and that means that it's a lot more difficult to guess wheither they'll tighten or ease at any given juncture. Investors tend to avoid ambiguity.

All three probably play into it, and their may be more factors as well.

JG

Both theories probably have some truth

>again as much as said $US?

The very reason for the euro was to get rid of so much US currency being used in Europe, it gave some people in some countries a more stable currency for certain purchases.

For instance, I sold some toy cars (slot cars) to people in several countries, and they all said they would just go to the train station and get dollars to send me (before the euro).

When the euro came out, it made the dollars in circulation there no longer needed, so those selling the dollars they had caused a small effect on the exchange rate.

And since that time, some effort by the US treasury was made to weaken the dollar against some currencies.

The euro is pretty much an exception, few currencies have gained against the dollar, but many should because the exchange rate is not good for them.

The US has about the same GDP as the EU, and about the same exports, but the EU has a big advantage in ground shipping to many markets.

The fact that Britain and Norway are/were oil exporters makes a difference too, export-import traffic can have a big effect on exchange rates. Money market speculation can go in either direction, but it was natural for the dollars existing in Europe being sold would have an effect.

More than half of all US currency circulates outside the US, the Federal Reserve Bank of New York in NYC has a huge warehouse which services all the overseas banks that ask for US currency, it would seem natural for those countries close to Europe would change from using dollars to using euros also.

And most countries in Europe may have about the same debt to GDP as the US, a difference in exchange rates of 40 or 50 percent is small compared to many other countries.

In the last 50 years or so the English Pound Sterling has fallen from $4 + as I recall down below what it is now, about $2.

There is a lot of unemployment most places now, and the more money governments borrow, the worse that can get, taxes take money out of the economy, and borrowing by the government is even worse.
That may erode the dollar even more, what is surprising is that very few items from Europe are in US stores, everything is junk from China, the glass in the picture frames breaks too easy, with electronics being of better quality.

The only thing that I have ever bought made in Europe was Norelco razors.

It is possible the Euro will gain against all currencies.

In much the same vein as the more times the name of a country uses the words "democratic", "peoples", "free", "republic", etc. in their name, the more despotic they actually are.

Not as far as reasonable people are concerned, which would not be you.

The best way to find out what's going on anywhere is to go there, be there for awhile, and talk to people. There's no such thing as an unbiased observer of anything, including in the media. So, you have to be there and gather some data.

Then get on a fucking plane and rectify your lack of knowledge. But, it's certainly not any secret that the European programs are unsustainable. Books have been written about for years. It's demographics and a little arithmetic. Pretty simple.

Warning: The following post is off-topic for this group because it is about radio and not the business side of commercial radio. Still, maybe it'll interest someone.

Anyone looking for a Greenland contact take note:

OX - GREENLAND, NA-018
Some members of the Spanish "DX4DX Team" plan to show up from the main island of Greenland (NA-018) from Nov 12-19. Listen for OX/EA4NA (CW), OX/EA7AAW (CW), OX/EA7SB (SSB/digital) and OX/EA4BT (SSB/digital) on 160m-10m using a FT-857s with amplifier and verticals. Pilot stations will be Jose,EA4DB, and Txema,EA5BWR.
QSLs via bureau, direct or LoTW to EA4BT.

They were on 20m CW this morning. For once I managed to make it through a considerable pile up in only a short time. I'm usually not so lucky!

Anyway, you guys can now get back to your discussion of how IBOC is going to make people enjoy listening to infomercials about colloidal silver.

Well if you didn't order it Sunday Nov. 14 you're out of luck. It's back up to its normal price again. Too bad if you missed it. I ordered one @ $20.66 and when I posted the message it was $20.92. But with Amazon you have to move fast or you lose out. Anyway you might want to check the radio's price from time to time this season. Who knows they might lower it again.

Because we are paying for European/Japan/Korean/Israel security and the UN and NATO and European/Japan pay for health care.....

Our dollar is crashing because of our attempt to have it all, Socialist health care and economy, and pay for the security of all the rest.

We will print and print and print until the dollar is destroyed in an Apparently if you were in the jury on a murder trial, you'd discount the eyewitnesses and try and Google up material to base your decision on.

I think you are wrong. It is not because of his lack of intelligence

Right, that's why the U.S. pays for the bulk of NATO and the UN and we have troops in Germany and Japan, Korea, Columbia, Haiti.... and all around where the Nations have little to no military defence like Nuclear Submarines.

While Germany and Japan, Denmark, Sweden and all the others vote to waste money on Socialized health care and social welfare programs. They don't vote to spend to protect themselves(or pay us for the privilege) and instead let us subsidize their security.

We send Billions to Africa in health care and military aid....

Can all those places pay for their own security and support their huge government social welfare states?

Their Socialism will crash and burn if we withdraw from the roll of sugar-daddy and we will crash if we continue towards socialism, there has to be a capitalist engine to fund and subsidize all the socialism.

Of course you can. Just that my nephew's condition (which is a mild

We subsidize them not the other way around. We can't afford out dated Doesn't mean it can't be done. Lift the payroll tax cap, raise the retirement age to 70, and change the way the COLA is calcuated and you've got SS' funding mechanism fixed. Medicare is harder, and probably will have to be reformed to being a high-deductable plan OR experience a significant (400%?) increase in its payroll tax.

It's just arithmetic.

Yet it must occur. Adam Smith was correct, in my view, when he noted that without redistribution, you'll eventually return to a feudal society.

Conservative economics acknowledges the need for redistributive mechanisms.

We are at a tipping point 1% may put us into bankruptcy... then there is the 20% of GDP health care. The 20% home ownership that is be subsidized, the auto markets(Unions) that are subsidized.

Foreign Aid is worthless to us if we can't afford it and Obama has spent till we can no longer afford it.

Change your name, you are not akin to John Galt's philosophy.

Government Redistribution is not a tenet of capitalism, it occurs naturally in capitalism as the markets change, that constant change in markets does in the background what you say must be done by government manually.....

It is government regulations that prevents failure and competition that stifle capitalism from doing what it naturally does when shifting markets, and also shifting assets and profits.

Were Bill Gates or Warren Buffett born Billionaires?

Rubbish. Galt's concern was on intellectual capital protection and egregious theft of personal wealth. As a capitalist, we can logically infer that he wanted capitalism to succeed, not fail. Capitalism fails without some sort of way to insure that all the lucre doesn't end up in the hands of 1% of the society.

Nobody said that it was. I said that there needs to be a redistributive mechanism. You're the one who inserted the government into the process.

Never said that. I simply pointed out how to make SS solvent. I didn't say whether I thought that it's existence was a good idea or not, or necessary or not.

Learn something about US currency, none is printed to pay government bills, every dollar printed is sold dollar for dollar, that is one of the reasons to have a FRB, so the banks and the government do not print money to spend.

There are those Real "Facts" that we personally
"Know" from first-hand experience.

-and- There are those 'facts' that we have read about; and accept as being 'facts'.

First off, I'm not sure why you need citations, unless you're mathematically challenged.

ALL social welfare systems depend on the contributions of the workers to support those who cannot work. Funding mechanisms for all these programs were developed in the 50s through the 70's, before people stopped having so many kids. It's fairly easy to develop an equation that demonstrates a valid funding mechanism; then, cut the money coming into the system through tax receipts by a third a watch it go into the red. Like SS and Medicare, most of these systems amassed large bank accounts while people were still bearing children, and have been tapping those balances for decades now while people scaled back their childbearing. They all have a date when they go into the red; SS is in the late 2030's, Medicare around 2014-2017, and so do the Euro and Japanese systems (the latter being in the worst shape of all, if memory serves.)

Second, it's hardly a secret that the systems are failing. Although mostly focused on the US entitlements, Dr. Koltikoff of MIT did reference the other systems to some extent in his book The Coming Generational Storm. The status of the US entitlements (which is pretty grim) was researched heavily by Drs. Gokhale and Smetters for Paul O'Neill; O'Neill's refusal to bury the findings got him fired. You can google up "Smetters FINAL" and get the core research that the CBO and Trustees are looking at, although it's probably been updated since then, and not for the better.

Third, I'm wondering why we're even talking about this. Assuming you're an American, WTF do you care about the Euro systems? We don't have a Euro system, we'll never have a Euro system, and so what happens over there doesn't matter a whit over here. You've already got an impossible job defending the Rookie-in-Chief's running an October deficit that was as large as the entire 2007 annual deficit, which you Demosocialists were whining about as being way too large.

You need to stay focused.

We subsidized them to the hilt for 40 years and when we were attacked, they turned out to be a pack of limp dicks, totally useless.

NATO was to hit Afghanistan and leave us able to stomp Saddam into the sand, NATO failed while We the USA succeeded, Iraq was beaten and Afghanistan was a multinational failure.

The USA has been monitizing the debt, Borrowing what they print.... that is government printing it and spending it.

Normally they didn't print it to borrow it, they recently did it by buying from a middle man.

What? All the debt is the result of the interest on the 255 Billion at the end of WWII. Figure the interest compounded annually at 6 or 7 percent for 64 years.

>Normally they didn't print it to borrow it, they recently did it by >buying from a middle man.

Normally the new money borrowed was less than the interest paid, so that part of the interest paid was just rolled over.

The total US currency in circulation is less than one Trillion, and more than half of that circulates outside the USA.

The government has already spent all the money collected in SS taxes, so I don't know how they will resolve that.

But things have changed, such a large part of the cash flow is for things other than the most basic items that are in restricted supply, like raw materials, some modernization of funding may be developed, so there is some hope.

Borrowing from the Federal Reserve Bank is an atrocity against the taxpayer, the treasury can create money just as well as the FRB, without printing it.

There are bonds there. I'll accept those as money. However, that doesn't alter the fact that it's a legal Ponzi scheme.

There's nothing new to learn, the radio has been made in one form or another since 1978. It was originally called the GE SuperRadio though the first version wasn't called SuperRadio. They're now referred to as SuperRadio I, SuperRadio II, and SuperRadio III. When the III model came out it was the GE SuperRadio III but then they changed the name to RCA SuperRadio III. I don't know why they did this but it's the same radio.

From everything I have read, the II model is by a very small margin the overall best model, but the III is still one heck of an AM/FM radio. Its AM performance is as good or better than the C.Crane and the sound is way better. You can read lots of information about these radios at http://mysite.verizon.net/vze20h45/radio/superadio/gesr_faq.html and here http://www.radiointel.com/review-gesuperradios.htm

And when I saw $20.66 I didn't even have to think. I just ordered it.

I have a low tolerance for people who sit in barricaded towers and throw stones. Anyone can do that, including monkeys. If you want to understand the world, you need to get out there and learn about it.

There's more than one COLA. The one that SS is tied to is not the cost-of-living COLA, despite its name. It's the one that's tied to WAGE inflation. Wage inflation will always exceed cost of living inflation (in a healthy economy) by a couple of tenths of a percent per year.
Moving SS to the real COLA and off the wage COLA makes a huge difference in the solvency of the system.

It's not arbitrary. Retirees don't work. They're retired. Their financial challenge is the inflation in goods and services. They're tied to the wrong one. It's illogical.

Prez Obama Don't Mess with the Calculation of the Social Security COLA !

NO the Social Security COLA is 'based' on a "Market

This is somewhat interesting in that the rightarded myth really is that Johnson robbed the trust funds to support his dual wars with no tax increase. The truth is that he merely insisted on a "unified budget" regarding the deficit or surplus of the entire federal system. The trust fund was STILL there and still accounted. In 1983 the Republicans insisted that the SS system and other OFF_BUDGET systems be removed from the budgets as to claims of surplus and deficits, but that the change would not take place until 1993 when they had finished stealing as much as they could.

Social
- - Security Trust Funds out of there Locked Boxes and put them into the
- - General Fund and Spent It All on the Great Society and 'other' Social
- - Programs.
- - SO THERE AIN'T NO MONEY THERE [.]

- This is somewhat interesting in that the rightarded myth really is that
- Johnson robbed the trust funds to support his dual wars with no tax
- increase. The truth is that he merely insisted on a "unified budget"
- regarding the deficit or surplus of the entire federal system.
- The trust fund was STILL there and still accounted.

Yes On-Paper the Social Security Trust Fund is Still "There" -but- No One can find 'there' anymore.

Paper Accounting Ain't a Locked Box

Ah so it's all a Republican Myth

[ An Inconvenient Truth -or- Escape from Reality ]

- In 1983 the Republicans insisted that the SS system

Sort of like counting them in a Locked Box :
instead of a Petty Cash Fund open to anyone.

- but that the change would not take place until 1993
- when they had finished stealing as much as they could.

They 'being' the Democrats and Republicans both.

So again remember of how many of those years from LBJ 1963 to WJC 1993 did the Republicans control the US Congress . . .

I don't think I'm going to need a converter box. I put the Samsung on over the air mode and was able to pull in a couple of digital stations. (And yes, it's way different than the old analog when you don't have enough signal strength.) That was down in my living room with a pair of crappy rabbit ears the dunce at radio shack sold me. He wanted me to buy the preamp ears. I told him no. When I was checking out he tried to sell me the extended protection plan. He said a power line disturbance could take out my rabbit ears - Heheh. Tomorrow the rabbit ears go back. I should get buy with a small bow-tie in the attic. I need from 480MHz - 750MHz .The transmitters here in Rochester are about 3 miles line-of-sight from my qth.

Yes, a hedge against inflation. Rhodium went up around 7% today. I think land might be a good deal too. Wife and I are planning to retire to NH in a couple years so we're going up there in the spring. Hope the Chinese don't beat me to it. I think they're going to try and buy up America before their USDs are worthless. Incandesant lightbulbs might be a good investment, and I can't get toilet paper out of my mind for some reason.

NEO

Huh? "Iraq was beaten" you say?

Eight years later and we are still in Iraq and still pouring billions would hate to see what you call losing.

HERE'S the deal. Medicare represents 40 million customers. The Customers will be telling the providers what they will pay for the services. And they will pay $500B less over the next ten years than what was being forecast. The Providers will take the lower reimbursements and lump it. That is the _ONLY way that the rising costs of health care can be controlled. There is no free lunch and market power wins. Granny still gets the services. The tax payers simply pay less.

The Rattle Snake of Gitmo?
Senator Jack Reed said (paraphrase quote) “If the terrorists are not convicted, we will hold them anyways, since international law allows us to hold people that are a threat to others”? (With a smile on his face, during an interview with Chris Wallace, Fox News? Then you think about what you hear from various talk radio shows?

How many people are smiling when they pay taxes in New York? Isn't this the kind of eccentric thinking that motivated Americans to leave the British Empire for unnecessary spending? With a smile on your face you said that, with no reflection over the past few months for a media that basically bashed President Bush, by your political party, the Democrats, and you did nothing effectively to stand up for President Bush, or protect Americans from a vicious media distorting the issues?

And then you wonder why citizens feel the Democrat Party is not thinking about the interests of the citizens, but of their own party, creating political slush funds in the name of “national emergency”, yet spending but a fraction of the money (there was no emergency) acting like out of control gamblers, only there is no “Congressional Member Anonymous”, like other drug prevention organizations? Should there be?

Or is the trial in New York City (or where ever it may occur) for these terrorists supposed to really cover up for a political party who has the lowest polling numbers ever seen, and working American citizens, with limited spare time, will now have a soap opera type news drama to occupy their minds for weeks and months to come by an eager media (who is expecting some of that slush fund money?), instead of the political problems caused by the Democratic Party, and should that make you angry? Well, who covers the military tribunals now?

Political slush funds to further union interests who demand benefits that have no economic justification (other than greed) is supposed to be par for the course (with your “free” golf cart, buried in the fine print of the “stimulus package”, and talk of medical marijuana?) are evidence of these new “slush funds” (stimulus spending packages?). That goes over real well with the Chinese, who are the conservative baby of America, and they have no wish to participate in a post birth abortion?

Americans are supposed to ignore common sense under the pretext that the Supreme Court made additional mandates, yet historical case allowed for the execution of German spies (who blew nothing up) within months, not years (our grandfathers did not give money to lawyers when they did not have to)? This is not about the terrorists, this is about the potential crippling the United States intelligence agencies, by revealing methods in a court of law, since these people have already admitted guilt, and proudly?

Even if you found an “impartial jury of peers” (highly unlikely, loyal Americans that speak Arabic, etc.), which is why there is a process for military tribunals, the legal founders of the country understood the complexities these situations presented, you expect legal process from a jury whose the only qualification is a voter registration card, rather than a jury of highly trained, sworn to oath, military officers who hold college degrees, and are trained in tactics of war (which is what the case is about) than from a judge and jury who are not trained in such things, and must be now trained?

If international law allows the United States to hold dangerous people indefinitely, then this is not about world opinion, is it? Well, (former US Army Ranger?) Senator Jack Reed, tell us that American civil liberties will remain intact, that no legal precedent will be set that places the liberties of American Citizens in danger, if these terrorists are convicted of crimes, but not afforded the same rights expected by Americans prior to their conviction?

I believe this is a “rattle snake” of Gitmo, it has been making a lot of noise, and for some reason, Mr. Holder, who apparently only consulted his wife and brother in law, instead of his peers in law enforcement, judges, and military advocate generals (judges), only lends to the suspicion that Mr. Holder wishes to protect the anonymity of President Obama's decision to pursue the prosecution of this case in this manner, and of course President Obama will take no credit for the failures that may represent?

Conservatism and common sense, never dies, it just multiplies. Did you know that Richard Nixon wrote a book about Vietnam? I wonder why the media, who talked a lot about Vietnam, never mentioned it very often? Fascinating read, huh? This is the same mentality we are facing today, a media, that is ignoring the “inconvenient truth”? God does not have to bug the offices of the media, he opens the ears of the oppressed, by simply explaining things they way they are?

Somebody is going to get bit by the “Rattlesnake of Gitmo”, whether it is the Democrat Party, or the American People, I am not willing to speculate, but we do know that there will be a look of horror on the face of whoever gets bit, their eyes will be wide, and they will feel the permanent destruction of the bite wound, as it dissolves the tissue forever, and the pain, the memory that never fades away, as the venom goes coursing through the blood stream, as they reach for the phone, and dial 9, 1, 1?

There is a Marine Corp gunnery sergeant that said something I will never forget Honorable Senator Jack Reed, he said “I will teach you by the numbers, now get up, get on your feet”. The sentence that he said after that, I will never forget either, and the feeling of making your instructors angry, because you are acting out of your wild imagination, instead of common sense, can make your stomach churn for decades? Should a Supreme Court have members that were ever in the military, in order to apply the concept, “a jury of peers”?

Being that this is the most exciting, most entertaining, fact finding, idea busting, fun loving, egg shell mind crunching, invincible smacketh downeth erectus among us, you can't see the truth coming, but you know it is anyway, sonic boom of Conservatism, and, most powerful keyboard in the world,

Do you feel lucky?

c) The views expressed by the author or website may or may not contain factual information, due to the use of sarcasm or parody. The views may or may not be complete, either by design, to pre-empt being called a liar even if telling the truth, or by error due to typographical, grammar, or other technical communication problems not realized or imagined, or the possibility of views based on false or missing information, or with the intention of being used for entertainment purposes only, and not as a definitive judgment on the actions, character, or reputation of an organization, individual, or groups of individuals, with the intent of communicating with a limited group of people, and not the general public, however no distribution restrictions apply for fair use purposes described by the US Copyright Office, if no other restrictions are present or communicated, with all commercial proceeds associated with the distribution of the content to remain the sole possession of the original author.

d) Any reference to copyrighted material is done in the spirit of fair use, to illustrate the context of a discussion regarding public events for reference purposes that adds to the conversation, for which that discussion constitutes a new and separate piece of intellectual property, for which the referenced copyrighted material can not convey by itself, and that the author reserves the right to retain any profits from the newly created intellectual property. This term also serves to promote the referenced copyrighted material, without necessarily endorsing the material for any particular fitness, use, or purpose, for which the purpose of fair use referral law was created for, through inclusion of a partial, but not whole, body of works that the copyright fair use reference applies, for which the intent of all terms of this disclaimer apply to that reference of a copyrighted work.

e) Any humor if used, is not intended to offend people, and may be designed to apply the principals of peer pressure through reverse examination to accomplish the communication of principals or ideas that consist of traditional or proposed social values that are proven to advance the common good, and are not meant to discredit, disparage or demean any person or entities in any professional or personal manner, by attempting to share through the eyes or opinion of the author, for which it is expected that you read at your own risk, with no liability held to the author or any third parties who may store, transfer, or forward this message to others, in the traditions of free speech, fair use, and to play a positive role in a society that believes that graphically depicting male homosexuals having sex, and other unusual sex acts is considered free speech or that the use of abortion to limit Negroes, Latinos, and other races from "spreading the wealth around" as a "matter of privacy" (which the author does not condone).

f) The use of humor is a known ingredient in providing teachable moments, and to validate and even demonstrate artistic expressions that are not shared by others, as demonstrated by many valuable scientific observations that were scoffed at in the past, yet proven to be quite valid decades later, upon which the humor used in all electronic communications by the author are based, in the principals and traditions of free speech and pursuit of happiness, and may not be a representation of others, including God.

g) It is the opinion of the author that you respect people when you consider their views, by reflecting their thoughts or actions against your own, which may include use of language that conveys an emotional depth that is to be imagined, but not enacted through use of language that accurately, or inaccurately describes the situation, circumstance, or idea, which does not imply that any action occur other than the consideration of the thought, for which beyond the author has no control, or liability for the action of the reader as presented in all terms of this disclaimer, and may simply be the venting of emotions with the intent of no consequence by the author to an audience the author assumes will understand the message and intent, and wishes to hear those views.

h) Since all intellectual property, discussions and other communications this disclaimer applies to, either in written, or electronic form, subscribe to the terms described in paragraph (e) and (g) of this disclaimer, under no circumstances are any communications meant to violate the terms of any electronic harassment laws which include the word “harm”, for which the author understands to be limited to the definition of physical harm (not self inflicted mental harm) that requires immediate medical attention based solely or in part by the communications of the author, regardless of whether the author chooses to remain anonymous or not.

i) It is the intention and opinion of the author that History is full of individuals that are not harmed by criticism, and in fact such criticism can motivate and inspire them to prove their critics wrong. Based on this historical evidence, any alleged mental harm amounts to self inflicted injury not treatable by either medical or other professionals (despite the fact that many people live from the profits of lies through gradual illusion, without judicial interference), for which the author has no control over the mental development of any potential reader prior to the discovery or reading of the material for which this disclaimer applies, as evident by the necessity that speech is to be protected by law as determined by the founders of the United States of America, who, in the opinion of the author, wrote the legal framework, which was created by God, not slaves.

j) Additional use of automated anonymous page use tracking computer scripts (web page programs) or advertisements may be licensed by www.google.com, for bandwidth verification, or determination of potential advertisement opportunities subject to all other terms described in this disclaimer. The author is not responsible for distributions of this work, which may be posted in public forums, and archived by www.google.com which may then create comments from people who hide their true identities by using false email credentials, who will then be violating terms of service regarding accessing computer systems by directly or indirectly accessing computer systems through hacking (hiding their requested email address or other forms of requested identification) which should not be archived for public display by www.google.com in order to fight acts of criminal behavior ranging from acts of nuisance, to lethal forms of terrorism, for which the author does not intend to encourage, and to remind it is a civic duty to all web masters to remove from public view such illegal postings by hackers, and ban their use.

k) Advertisements that may appear are not necessarily endorsed by the author, either by admission, or by silence, nor are any electronic links that may transport the reader to other web pages, sites, or computers, and such links that may be provided for all or any of the following known or unknown purposes, but not limited to, informational, educational, and for the purpose of giving copy right credit referral information under the terms outlined in the conditions applied to the term "fair use" regarding conversations and print under US Copy Right Law, and for which the author assumes no liability for any particular use, fitness, or legality there of, any link, current, past, or future, which the reader should use at their sole risk, with no liability to the author, or any other party that may store, transmit, or otherwise facilitate use of the material for which this disclaimer applies.

l) It is the opinion of the author that effective 1 December, 2009, the proposed regulations from the FTC violate the first and fifth amendments of the United States Constitution, by infringing through economic affliction the burden without compensation all financial details concerning the communications of both free enterprise and opinion, and other civil rights such as "punishment must be fair" and not at the "discretion" of public officials, or that advertisers are assumed to be guilty of deception when United States law provides that you are innocent before being proven guilty, and are in fact demonstrations that there are current members of Congress that neither understand the spirit of the law our founding fathers made for the United States of America, or understand how they work in the opinion of the author, as of October 10th, 2009, especially in light of anticipated, and hopefully defeated, legislative taxes relating to energy use and the burden of publishers and advertisers to comply with the law and manage the environment, and in light that there are various consumer protection agencies, including the Better Business Bureau, which has free consumer information which preclude the use and need for excessive government regulation that burdens business with obstacles it may sense that it can not overcome without inflicting harm on the business plan or survival ability of the business to provide advertised, goods and or services.

m) Although the content provided meets or exceeds those new requirements to the knowledge of the author, and modifications to version 1.3 or 1.4 of this disclaimer is a result of the opinion of the author that “blogging” is another definition for a potentially infinite number or forms of electronic communication, as such the author will retroactively apply this version, 1.6 to all forms of previous communications, when and wherever possible, as time allows, in order to properly convey the intention of the author and to demonstrate an enthusiasm to comply with the law, and not enthusiastically pursue getting high on cocaine as often as possible as Barrack Hussein Obama has admitted in his book (paraphrase, synopsis), according to (mmm, mmm, mmm (sonic emphasis)) Rush Hudson Limbaugh, (mmm mmm mmm (sonic emphasis)).

n) Use of this disclaimer for either personal or professional use is permitted with no restrictions. These restrictions or disclaimers do not prohibit the author from pursuing or communicating in a truthful manner, or guarantee that the audience will understand all things as intended, and, or result in being called incoherent, or even a Chicken Chaser!

o) This disclaimer is meant to establish the intent of the author who may participate in message forums, or create other written or electronic forms of communication to comply with current law, and may be revoked without prior notice, due to circumstances beyond the author's control, changes in the law, or for any of the purposes, terms, or conditions that may be in effect or described by this disclaimer, or to changes in this disclaimer that the author may clarify in a revised version of this disclaimer.

p) This disclaimer is attached to this message, and retroactively applies to all previous forms of communication by the author, and is done so because there is no recognized central suppository of a public disclaimer recognized by the Government of the United States to the author, and as such, the legal imperative of the author is to apply this disclaimer to all manner of correspondence as the author seems fit or prudent, so that no misunderstandings occur, or to comply with past, current or future revisions of the law, due to any of, but not limited to, any or all of the terms, partial terms, or combination of terms, of this disclaimer, which is derived from the freedom of speech, for it appears to the author that the zeal of lawmakers to take away free speech outweigh the providence of attaching this disclaimer to all correspondence for which this applies, and any inconvenience for which this presents, is the result of simply complying with the law, and not to inconvenience the reader.

- Medicare represents 40 million customers. The

NO - Medicare Represents 40 Million "Patients" : Who are American US Senior Citizens that are Forced in to the Medicare System by Law which 'makes' them CLIENTS of Medicare -not- Customers.
Customers get to pick-and-choose -while-Clients are Dictated-To by Medicare by Law.

- The Customers will be telling the providers what
- they will pay for the services.

NO - Medicare will Short Change the Doctors
-aka- The Providers and those Providers will STOP
'providing' those Services. -aka- Medicare Care

- And they will pay $500B less over the next ten
- years than what was being forecast.

That is the 'claim'.

- The Providers will take the lower reimbursements
- and lump it.

Some Providers may . . .
While many/most Providers may STOP 'providing' those Services. -aka- Medicare Care and Tell the US Government {Medicare} to LUMP IT !

- That is the _ONLY way that the rising costs
- of health care can be controlled.

"THE ONLY WAY" rotfl oaoa

There are 'other' Ways including Tort Reform and Elimination Out-of-State Restrictions on Medical Insurance.

- There is no free lunch and market power wins.

Yes - "There is no free lunch"

-and- NOT PAYING THE BILL SHUTS DOWN THE MARKET.

- Granny still gets the services.

NO Granny gets stuck with $500B of Medicare Cuts.

REALITY CHECK ON THE FACTS :

Medicare {The US Government} is the Doctor's actual
"The Customer" {Payer}; not the Senior Citizen 'Patient'.

When "The Customer" {Payer} Does Not Pay : Then the Doctor will stop seeing those 'Patients'.
-result- Denial {Cut-Back} of Services to the 'Patient'.

Now the Money that the "The Customer" is Called a Savings and can be Spent on Obama-Care©.

- The tax payers simply pay less.

NO - The US Government Ends Up Spending the same amount of Money -but- Redirects $500B of Medicare Spending from Medicare {Cut-Backs} to $500B of new Obama-Care© Spending.
-note- Prez Obama claims that this is Revenue
"Neutral" {Balanced-Out} and Cost 'us' nothing.
! D'Oh Hello Prez Obama $500B of Spending
IS $500B OF SPENDING !
-and- $500B of Non-Spending for Medicare is a CUT-BACK in Patient Spending CUT-BACK in Patient Services
CUT-BACK in Patient Care
SHORT CHANGING AMERICA's SENIOR US CITIZENS

WAY TO GO PREZ OBAMA ! ~ RHF

-fyi- Talk to an American Born US Doctor : Who has been in the Business of a Private Medical Practice for 10 Years or More in the USA :
* They will tell you about the reality of Medicare Payments for Patient's Services/Care.
* They will tell you about Limiting the Number of Medicare Patients because of Lack of Adequate Reimbursement from Medicare.
* They will tell you about how Medicare has Limited the type of Patient Care that they can provide as a result of so called Medicare Cost 'Containment' {Cuts in Fees for Service}

- --
- "Those are my opinions and you can't have em" -- Bart Simpson

REALITY CHECK ON THE $500B SAVINGS :
The Unintended Consequences of $500B of Medicare Cost Saving {What very well might happen} :
American Senior US Citizens -aka- Medicare 'Patients' can not see their Doctors for routine Office Visits due to $500B in Medicare Cuts : The 'Patients' eventually go to the Hospital for Emergency Treatment {cause they could not see their Doctor due to the Cuts} and end up Costing Medicare more, & More. & MORE MONEY !
The $500B of Doctors Cost Savings becomes $500B or more of new more expensive Hospital and Emergency Hospital Medicare Spending - oops, Oops. OOPS !

We won.

The problems left just need a "Marshal Plan"

Then if it becomes just another Muslim murdering state, well you can lead a horse to water....

The other option is to destroy their entire society as we did to Germany

The irony is that Farid Suleman was Karmazin's highly vaunted CFO at Infinity.

Living proof that radio isn't a financial game. And attempting to run it as such is down the fast hill to disaster.

You are a lying pig. But it is what you do best. Customers for medical care are very limmited as to the ability to "pick-and-choose", liar.
They are far better served by the market power of solidarity.

And where will they get their INCOME, moronic lying pig? You think their will be a supply NEW customers that will allow the providers to just shift from these customers to this new imported group? You are not only a lair. You are also a moron. The number of rich people seeking medical services is quite limited.

Yes. Government is like a UNION monopsony using solidarity to control rates. That is the reality and it why there will be no cut in services.

> When "The Customer" {Payer} Does Not Pay : Then the Doctor will stop

What will the provider do if the provider does not have patients? Will he retire and go fishing? We have this system called H1B which allows us to import medical professionals from other countries. And according to all the data I have been able to find, these foreign professionals are very much underpaid in their current countries. It is really interesting how the freepers LOVE free trade and monopoly power until it bites them in the ass.

Irrelevant, actually. We are spending too much on these services. Try comparing the costs of health care in this country with all the other civilized nations. You sick puppies live in a little stupidity bubble.

So what's your point??? We will have increased access to health care and a lower price of health care.

1. They will see LESS patients and have lower incomes in that case, because there is not going to be a change in the number of sick people

2. They can be replaced and will be replaced by competent providers from other countries.

They will protect their livelihood like anyone else. They will distort the reality in order to protect their incomes like any other group of human beings.

You notice how the Republicans started the 10 year forecasting especially for the purpose of making the numbers much more scary. The truth is that NO budgets can be forecast in excess of about 3 years. Legislation can be altered with each new congressional session with the cooperation of the president. NO person can predict the future. In 1997 The CBO estimated that the balanced budget of 1999 would be achieved in 2002.
The Republican BUBBLE caused by the 1997 tax cuts for the rich increased revenues to the extent that the projected balance occurred 3 years early and the bubble then popped in 2001 and by 2002 the tax cutting thieves were back in full stride.

Well, maybe we "won" by your definition, but...

-Are we still there after eight long years. YES!
-Is American blood still being spilled? YES!
-Are we still pouring HUNDREDS of BILLIONS into a bottomless pit? YES!
-Do we have young men and women suffering as amputees and from PSD for the rest of their lives? YES!

As stated above:

> If you define that as "winning", I sure would hate to see what you call losing.

In any event, Saddam had NOTHING to do with 9/11, as admitted by both Bush and Cheney. We shouldn't have been there in the first place, much less for the last 8 years.

You are entitled to your opinion, but I would hardly call anything that has gone on in Iraq a "win".

> Then if it becomes just another Muslim murdering state, well you can > lead a horse to water....

"IF it becomes another Muslim murdering state"? Too late; it already IS and has been for the last 1000 years except for the brief period when Saddam's iron fist kept things under control. And Saddam is currently off the job, nursing a stretched neck.

> The other option is to destroy their entire society as we did to Germany

Huh? A whole 'nother topic, but we -destroyed- the German and Japanese societies? They seem quite successful, thank you very much. And even if I gave a shred of credence to your statement, your analogy is completely bogus. Japan and Germany started WW II, got their asses kicked and deserved whatever they got. Iraq (see above) was a sovereign nation that was invaded for bogus reasons.

Oh, sorry. I forgot. You seem to like bogus.
